PUEBLO CREWMAN REUNITED WITH LAKEWOOD FAMILY

Pueblo Crewmen Seal Lips, Eyes Wet

By FRANK ANDERSON
Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO — Eyes awash with tears and lips sealed tightly by U.S. Navy security, the 82 officers and men of the intelligence ship Pueblo were reunited with their families at Miramar Naval Air Station here Tuesday.

The men, who were freed from a North Korean prison Monday after 11 months of captivity, showed signs of the physical and mental torture of their ordeal as they departed from two giant U.S. Air Force jets.

A flotilla of Navy public affairs officers took Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, 41, and his crew in tow after hugs, kisses and words of encouragement were exchanged with the 170 wives, children and parents who had come to meet them.

The returnees were isolated from the press at the air station. Rope barriers, shore patrolmen and military policemen physically enforced the Navy's orders to members of the press:

"You will not be permitted to leave the confines of the press area for any reason until departure."

It was a hero's welcome and reunion that none will forget. Staff writer Mary Neiswender's account with pictures, Page A-14.

of returnees... You are not permitted under any circumstance to communicate, verbally or in writing, with any of the returnees."

Reporters also were forbidden contact with the crew's families.

Security was total from the 2 p.m. landing of the planes until a carefully stage-managed news conference with the Pueblo's executive officer, Lt. Edward R. Murphy, of San Diego, concluded at 5:30 p.m. in Balboa Naval Hospital.

At the airport, Bucher was interrupted quietly several times by Vice Adm. Allen M. Shinn, commander of the Pacific Fleet Naval Air Force. The admiral was heard urging the skipper of the Pueblo to omit details of the ship's capture in the remarks he made to welcoming crowd.

Later, in the hospital news conference, Rear Adm. Edwin M. Rosenberg, who shepherded the crew back from Korea, cautioned Lt. Murphy several times not to detail the capture or the imprisonment.

"It is in the interest of this fine officer's career and the security of the United States that he not answer questions relating to those matters, gentlemen," the admiral told the press.

Murphy, who said, "I'm on your side," to frustrated reporters, finally shook off the muzzle long enough to generalize about a day in prison. However, he made no mention of the physical mistreatment of the crew by their captors. He denied any brain-washing.

Cmdr. Bucher, looking 20 years older than his 41 years, recounted instances of kicking and beating "to the point where I was almost unable to walk for many weeks."

Like Murphy, the skipper denied the North Koreans brainwashed him or his men. He said only that the crew "was subjected SPACECENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 8 astronauts early Christmas Day safely ended 20 hours of orbiting the moon and started a quarter million-mile trip back to the "grand oasis in the big vastness of space"—mother earth.

Air Force Col. Frank Borman, Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. William A. Anders were hurled out of lunar orbit by a three-minute burn of the powerful service propulsion engine and started the two and one-half day trip to earth.

The astronauts' first word, after a chilling silence of more than six minutes after the scheduled time they were to reply to ground call ups was from Lovell.

"Pleased to inform you there is a Santa Claus," said the Navy captain.

THE spacecraft whipped around the back of the moon and out of touch with the earth for the last time at 12:42 a.m. EST.

Television reports on highlights of Apollo 8's progress are listed in Top Viewing, Page C-8.

(9:42 p.m. PST) and 28 minutes later the rocket engine exploded to life, boosting the spacecraft's speed to more than 6,000 miles per hour.

This was fast enough to free Apollo 8 from the moon's gravity, which held it for 10 orbits, and send it winging homeward to a planned landing Friday in the Pacific Ocean south of Hawaii.

Mission controllers had to wait for more than 15 minutes after the burn to learn of its success. The spacecraft rounded the edge of the moon, acquired contact with the earth and reported all was well.

Had the spacecraft engine failed, Apollo's crew would have been trapped in the lunar orbit, unable to reach the safety of earth, beyond rescue and unable to live but a few days orbiting the moon.

DURING their final hours around the moon, the astronauts gave the world a final television closeup view of the lunar surface and a picture of the earth, rising as if it

ASTRONAUTS SHOOT THE MOON

Artist's cutaway rendition of Apollo 8 in lunar orbit Christmas Eve shows an astronaut in lower section of spacecraft photographing proposed landing sites for future flights. Mission was scheduled shortly before the astronauts were to refire their rocket engine and begin the 240,000-mile journey back to earth today. Illustration was prepared by North American Rockwell's Space Division in Downey, builders of the Apollo spacecraft making historic space flight.

Crew Hails Landing Site Choice

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Apollo 8 navigator James Lovell flashed the word back to earthlings Tuesday that the backside of the moon looks like a hostile place to land, but that the prime Apollo landing zone on the right-hand edge of the moon's face appears "a winner."

"The back side looks like a sand pile my kids have been playing in for a long time," lunar photographer William Anders added. "It's all beat up, no definition, just a lot of bumps and holes."

THE SITE on the eastern edge of the moon — most promising of five selected as potential places for two American astronauts to touch down next year — is in the right-hand side of the Sea of Tranquility. It is called "II-P-2."

Apollo 8's launching was timed so the sun would hit this relatively smooth place on the moon's face at about the same shallow angle necessary for a landing mission, casting strong shadows from each rock and crater.

This landing site will be the best photographed of the five after Apollo 8 comes home, the only one with its entire approach path recorded on both color and black-and-white film to train a landing crew. It most likely will be the first target of the landing mission.

APOLLO spacecraft program manager George Low later declared Lovell's navigation and landmark evaluation provided "as close to 100 per cent of the data as we could expect to get."

The first Apollo landing on the moon could come as early as next spring. Until Apollo 8 collected its new data on flying around the moon, a lunar landing mission was impossible.

Christmas Eve Finds Men Divided on Earth

Associated Press

The eyes of Christendom focused on the moon this Christmas Eve, but its heart still turned to the Star.

The hopeful story of the birth of the Prince of Peace brightened lives of many around the world despite the blight, as in Christmases past, of wars and the threat of war.

Arab-Israeli hostilities on a small scale flared in the Holy Land Tuesday only 80 miles north of cold and wind-swept Bethlehem, the Yuletide goal of about 25,000 pilgrims.

GUNSHOTS that allied authorities ascribed to enemy violations punctuated an uneasy truce in Vietnam. Thousands of the 540,000 American servicemen committed to the Vietnam war heard Christmas messages from evangelist Billy Graham, Roman Catholic Archbishop Communist-ruled North Vietnam, whose people are predominantly Buddhists, praised its Roman Catholicism in a Christmas Eve broadcast. It sought to present Catholic achievements in production "and in killing the U.S. aggressors" as "the best offerings to the infant Jesus Christ and the most beautiful flowers to the beloved fatherland."

Nigeria's federal government proclaimed a one-day truce and the rebel Biafra regime called for an eight-day cease-fire in the 18 month-old Nigerian civil war, which numbers many civilians as its chief victims.

On the brighter side, the 82 surviving crewmen of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo sped to San Diego for reunion with loved ones after 11 months of captivity in North Korea.

The three American astronauts aboard Apollo 8, who orbited the moon on schedule Tuesday looked forward to starting their return flight of more than 200,000 miles early Christmas Day.

In a gesture of solidarity with Roman Catholic workingmen, Pope Paul VI celebrated a midnight Mass inside a steel mill at Taranto, Italy. The pontiff, on one of his most unusual missions in his five-year reign, also praised the pioneer flight of

STORM THREATENS THE SOUTHLAND

A winter storm was bearing down on the Southland early today. But the U.S. Weather Bureau predicted the Long Beach area would escape the main blow.

Official prediction late Christmas Eve was for occasional showers (snow at the 5,000-foot level in nearby mountains) through the night, tapering off to become partly cloudy by afternoon. It will be cold and windy, however.

High in downtown Long Beach today is expected to be about 58, low tonight 49 or less. Fair skies, with continued gusty winds and subnormal temperatures, are predicted for Thursday.

Mountain and desert resort areas throughout Southern California won't fare so well with storm effects lingering into tonight or longer.

The southbound storm dumped two feet of snow in sections of the Sacramento Valley, closed mountain roads the length of the state, caused posting of traveler's warnings over Northern and Central California and neighboring states to the east. Skiers and other Southland winter-sports fans were advised to chain-equip cars before entering mountain areas.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Pope Says Historic Mass at Giant Steel Mill

Combined News Service

POPE PAUL VI took the ancient majesty of the Roman Catholic Church to one of Europe's largest steel mills Tuesday night. He celebrated an historic Christmas mass for thousands of workers from a gleaming steel altar before two blast furnaces in Taranto, Italy.

Thousands of overall-clad workers and their families watched the mass, celebrated to demonstrate the church's concern for ordinary working people, in a "cathedral of steel" at Italy's giant Italsider works. The Pontiff called for greater justice for working people.

"Do not think that the church is blind to your needs or deaf to your voice," he said. "The church does recognize the need of justice of honest people . . . it is not only economic justice, salary, material well-being that the worker needs, but also civil and social justice. And in this demand too the church understands and helps you."

Even as the Pope spoke, an inferno-like scene of industrial activity unfolded elsewhere in the plant. Hundreds of workers remained busy pouring hot, orange-shimmering molten steel into conduits with great clouds of smoke rising off it. Two blast furnaces stood only 80 feet from the altar but their fires were snuffed out for the occasion and the great sheet rolling mill turned into a chamber of religious song and prayer.

POPE'S GIFT

The Vatican announced Christmas Eve that Pope Paul VI had paid for the pawnshop of Romans who had pawned clothes, shoes and blankets and couldn't buy them back for Christmas.

ISOLATION

Sir Francis Chichester, who sailed around the world alone, suggested Tuesday that world leaders might be sent by themselves into deep space to enable them to think clearly about world problems.

Chichester compared his voyage around the world with the flight of Apollo 8 around the moon. He said the two voyages were similar in number of respects, including the isolation of the men involved.

40 YEARS

Two New York sisters — one from Brooklyn, the other from Nyack, N.Y. — will have quite a bit to reminisce about this Christmas. Until last week they hadn't seen each other in 40 years.

The reunion took shape in a Brooklyn street. Mrs. Janie Wilson walked up to a strange man and said: "You look like you are related to me." He was. The man was Joel Primus, son of a long-lost brother. Primus closely resembles his father who has been dead many years. He immediately called his other aunt, Mrs. Adelaide Daniels of Nyack, who for 40 years had searched in vain for her sister.

The last time Mrs. Daniels saw her sister, Mrs. Wilson was only 17 and the mother of one child. Now, Mrs. Wilson has 13 children and 60 grandchildren.

GOOD DEED

A young California mother of four children has received a kidney transplanted posthumously from a Boyne City, Mich., Boy Scout who wanted to do one last good deed. The scout, William (Bill) Seelye, 13, died of a blood disease last Saturday, and the kidney transplant followed.

The recipient, who was not identified, was a 27-year-old mother who had been waiting nearly a year for a proper donor. Bill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Seelye, had talked with his parents about possibly giving his body to medical research.

After Bill had expressed a desire to help medical research, a team of doctors was granted permission by the Seelyes to transplant the youth's kidney after his death.

NOT SO MEAGER

The "meanest man" has turned what would have been a meager holiday into a wonderful Christmas for a blind Milwaukee couple. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Northrop were robbed of all their Christmas shopping money—$53 — last week by a man who claimed to be a hippie.

The story of the robbery and the description of the robber, who was called the season's "meanest man," appeared in newspapers around the world. Christmas cards and letters, all containing money, have been received by the Northrops from every state and Europe as well. By Christmas Eve, the Northrops had received at least $950.

Rash of 'Incidents' Spoil Holiday Truce

Combined News Services

SAIGON, Wednesday — Gunfire crackled in a rash of minor skirmishes in South Vietnam Tuesday night and Christmas day. At least 80 "incidents" violated a holiday truce. One American soldier had been killed and 38 wounded since the 24-hour truce agreed to by allied forces went into effect at 6 p.m. Tuesday. Twenty-two Communist soldiers were killed and they listed 25 of the incidents as "significant." The Christmas cease-fire had curtailed fighting in South Vietnam, however. U.S. representatives prepared to meet Viet Cong guerrilla emissaries on a river bank north of Saigon today to discuss release of three American soldiers held captives by the Communists. Ordered to participate in the cease-fire were about 1½-million American and South Vietnam troops. Several Communist shellings were among the incidents.

Russ Says Egypt to Cooperate With U.N.

MOSCOW — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko returned Tuesday from a four-day mission to Cairo. A joint communique issued after his return announced Egypt's readiness to "cooperate fully" with U.N. special envoy Gunnar Jarring in his efforts to resolve the crisis in the Mideast. Jarring, who had sought for more than a year to find a formula to restore peace to the Mideast, is currently in Moscow where he is Swedish ambassador. Gromyko will meet shortly with Jarring to discuss what the Soviet diplomat described as "most important" talks with U.A.R. President Nasser.

Israel Concerned Over U.S. Switch

JERUSALEM — Top officials Wednesday admitted the Israeli government is concerned over a possible drastic switch in U.S. Mideast policy by the incoming administration of President-elect Nixon. The officials, who asked not to be identified, said they were worried over the possibility of an American-Soviet-Egyptian dialogue which is "liable to be at Israel's expense."

Czechs Assured Liberal Smrkovsky to Stay

PRAGUE — Premier Oldrich Cernik assured the Czechoslovak people Tuesday that liberal parliamentary chairman Josef Smrkovsky will remain in the top echelons of the government and partly dispelled rumors that he may be ousted for upsetting the Soviets. Cernik told a nationwide television audience Soviet and Czechoslovak leaders who met in the Russia Dec. 7-8 "Did not discuss any problems concerning either the leadership of the party or the leadership of the state." The Czechoslovak leadership is believed to be under Soviet pressure to edge Smrkovsky, 57, out of power because of his refusal to "cooperate" on key issues.

Nigeria Rejects Christmas Truce

LAGOS, Nigeria — Federal Nigerian leader Gen. Yakubu Gowon Tuesday rejected a call for a week's Christmas truce in the civil war with Biafra. Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie had pleaded with both sides to observe the cease-fire, an idea quickly endorsed by President Johnson. Nigeria and Biafra had announced earlier they would observe Christmas cease-fires.

Masses Banned to Prevent 'Sit-Ins'

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain — An anonymous communique Tuesday banned Christmas midnight masses in every church of the San Sebastian Diocese in an apparent move to prevent "sit-ins" protesting Monday's banishment of lawyers who defended Basque separatists. The unprecedented ban said the masses were cancelled because of the death of Estaban Argaya, the brother of Msgr. Jacinto Argaya, San Sebastian's new bishop. But church sources said, "We are not in the habit of calling off masses as a sign of mourning. On the contrary, we hold suffrage masses in memory of dead persons."

White, Cold Christmas for Most Americans

A Pacific gale punished the Northwest for the third successive day Tuesday, spilling snow eastward to Montana. Bitter cold engulfed the snow-choked upper Midwest and pushed southward to the Mexican border and Florida. Christmas eve was white—a rich, deep white—in most northerly areas of the U.S. Travelers warnings were up in parts of New York and Pennsylvania, and in sections of California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Idaho, Utah and Montana.

NATIONAL

Up to 3 feet of snow covered the upper Midwest in the wake of a record setting blizzard. Along the lee shores of the lower Great Lakes as much as 2½ feet of snow was reported. At Miami, Fla., where the temperature climbed to a record high of 85 Monday, it skidded nearly 40 degrees in 51 hours to a record-tying low of 47. Lows in the 20s were reported as far south as Atlanta, Ga., Birmingham, Ala., and Jackson, Miss. Reading in the 30s were recorded in Jacksonville, Fla., New Orleans, and Houston. It was cold westward through the Arizona winter resorts, where Phoenix and Tucson both listed lows in the mid 30s. At Sioux Falls, S.D., the temperature dipped to 14 below zero. International Falls, Minn., had a low of 20 below. Marquette, Mich., had 3 feet of snow. Booneville, N.Y., had 2½ feet. Areas of Wisconsin had 2 feet and Iowa 1½ feet. Parts of Nebraska had over a foot. Up to 1½ feet of snow was reported from the Cascades and Sierras through the Rockies.

Flu, Weather Hold Down Christmas Sales

NEW YORK — The Hong Kong flu and bad weather whittled down Christmas shopping sales except in the South, retail merchants said Tuesday. Nevertheless, when all the returns are in, the earlier forecasts of retailers that this would be the biggest Yule shopping season ever may still be realized. Dun & Bradstreet reported weekly through last Wednesday that sales were running well ahead of last year. The estimated increases have exceeded forecasts made early in November by merchants all across the country. Sales in the South, where the flu has not appeared to any great extent, were up 10 to 14 per cent from last season.

Hong Kong 'Seeded' Around World

ATLANTA — The Hong Kong flu, which already has struck most of the U.S., has been "seeded" in a large number of other countries, according to World Health Organization figures filed with the National Communicable Disease Center. The flu virus, a new strain to which there is little or no natural immunity, has been detected in the United Kingdom, including London and Surrey, England. Other countries or major foreign cities where the Hong Kong virus has been detected are Australia, Singapore, the Philippines, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Thailand, Iran, India, South Vietnam and Japan.

Dockers' Strike Talks Recess Until Friday

NEW YORK, Wednesday — The $15 million-a-day longshoremen's strike enters its sixth day today with negotiations in recess and shipping halted at ports from Maine to Texas. In the Port of New York, 47 ships were idled although 212 Longshoremen were at work on two military cargo vessels in Bayonne, N.J. There were no picket lines. Talks were recessed Monday night for the Christmas holiday. They were to resume Friday. The International Longshoremen's Association is seeking protection against job loss from containerized shipping and a guaranteed annual wage in all five of the North Atlantic district ports in negotiations with the New York Shipping Association.

Boxed In

Q. My family has a triple-deck road race set made by Eldon Industries. The set has been used only a few times, and we would like to give it to a needy family we know of. However, the original box the set came in is badly beaten up. Can you help us get a new box from Eldon Industries? B. C., Long Beach.

A. Eldon Industries, 2701 W. El Segundo Blvd., Hawthorne, quit making the road race set with the triple deck a few years ago. Donna Leeds of the customer service department checked in the company's store room, but could not find a box for the discontinued set. However, she did find a box for a similar road race which she arranged to let you have.

Twelve Days

Q. At this time of year, we always hear the song "The 12 Days of Christmas." When are the 12 days? what does the song mean? B. H., Downey.

A. "The 12 Days of Christmas" is an old English carol telling about the gifts sent to a lady by her suitor on each of the 12 days beginning with Christmas, up to the Feast of the Epiphany on Jan. 6. The carol was originally part of a game played on the eve of the Epiphany before supper and iced cakes were served. In England from the 11th to the 17th centuries, Christmas was a 12-day affair. Feudal lords invited their friends and tenants in for feasting, games and revelry. The wildness of the merry-making annoyed the Puritans, and the celebrations were forbidden by the Puritan Parliament in 1644. With the help of the Rev. Michael Engels, curate at All Saints Episcopal Church in Long Beach, ACTION LINE learned that the Epiphany is an older holiday than Christ's Mass. It commemorates the Christ child being made known to the non-Jewish world — personified by the Wise Men — as well as the baptism of Christ and His first miracle at the wedding feast in Cana where he turned water into wine. The Christmas celebration started one or two centuries after the Epiphany. The ancient Romans had a week called the Saturnalia at the end of December devoted to gift-giving and merry-making. To encourage Christians to refrain from engaging in the pagan activities of the Saturnalia, the bishops gradually created Christmas in the third and fourth centuries. "Actually, Christ was probably born in the spring," the Rev. Engels said. The Rev. Dr. David de L. Scovill of St. Thomas Episcopal Church noted that Christmas is celebrated on Dec. 25 in most Western churches, but in many Eastern Orthodox churches the birth of Christ is still celebrated on the Epiphany.

Office Help

Q. The Long Beach Retarded Children's Foundation, 4519 E. Stearns St., has opened a sheltered workshop training center for mentally retarded adults who are 18 and older. To get operations going, we need a paper cutter, adding machine, filing cabinets and other office equipment as well as work benches and tools. We also need work contracts so our people can become at least partially self-sufficient. H. E., Long Beach.

A. Bob LaMont, building superintendent for the Independent, Press-Telegram, found a spare paper cutter, adding machine and some office chairs which the newspaper will donate to your group. The Robert Connahan family of Lakewood also has two large patio tables and

Human Relations

Q. I would like some information on the Long Beach Human Relations Committee. What are some of its problems and how is it financed? P. J., Long Beach.

A. The 10-man committee was formed in the fall of 1963. Committee members are appointed by the Long Beach mayor and approved by the City Council. The committee's purpose is to serve as a fact-finding board in the area of civil rights.

It may make recommendations to the City Council and is delegated to investigate civil rights grievances and complaints referred to it by the council. "We have sponsored housing and discrimination seminars and neighborhood meetings," explained E. John Hanna, committee chairman. The chief committee problem, Hanna said, is getting groups to change their attitudes and rent apartments and sell homes to minority group members. "We are trying to work as a catalyst in the community and get things going," Hanna added. The committee has no specific budget; however, the City Council will allocate funds for special committee projects, such as the housing seminar. Committee meetings, held the second Thursday of each month at 3 p.m. in the Long Beach City Council chambers, 205 W. Broadway, are open to the public.

were the moon's own moon.

They closed the telecast taking turns reading the story of creation, the first 10 verses of Genesis from the Bible.

Borman described the moon as "a vast, forbidding expanse of nothing. It's not a very inviting place to live or work."

To Lovell, the bleak moon "makes you realize what you have back on earth," which he called "a grand oasis in the big vastness of space."

Anders provided some narration while operating the television camera.

Like guides taking an entire world on a celestial bus tour, the astronauts pointed out the colorfully-named lunar surface features.

Then, in final Christmas Eve gesture from the moon, the trio took turns reading the story of the Creation, Genesis 1, and closed with "Good night, Good luck, a Merry Christmas and god Bless all of you on the good earth."

Only a few hours earlier, the crew, describing themselves as "very tired," cut their Christmas Eve flight plan to allow for more rest.

BORMAN made the decision to cut out items from the flight plan after he said Lovell made an error on the computer.

"He got screwed up on one of those programs," said Borman. "He's getting tired here."

With that, Borman said he wanted to trim the jobs left on the schedule. "We're getting too tired," he said.

Shortly after Mission Control agreed on the flight plan cuts, Borman reported, "Lovell's snoring already."

Borman, an Air Force colonel, slept much of the fifth and sixth orbits of the moon while Lovell, a Navy captain, and Air Force Maj. William A. Anders kept up the quick pace of their photography and charting of the lunar surface.

When Borman woke, he told Mission Control he wanted his crew right for the rocket burn in the first hours of Christmas Day that would send the spaceship heading back to earth.

"We're scrubbing everything," Borman said. "I'll stay up and . . . keep the spacecraft running . . . and take some automatic pictures but I want Jim and Bill to get some rest."

WHILE Borman babysat the spacecraft and his crew slept in their couches, the spacecraft commander looked at the shimmering blue half-disc 220,000 miles away that was his home planet and asked a ground controller:

"How's the weather down there?"

"It's fine. The temperature's just right."

"How about the recovery area?" Borman asked.

"That's looking real good. They say there's a beautiful moon out there."

"That's a beautiful earth out there," Borman added, wistfully. A few minutes later, Borman counted the seconds ticking away on his spacecraft clock. Mission Control reported that it took three seconds for his voice radio waves to reach the control center.

Anders complained that the spacecraft's guidance optics were "doing better than the eyeball looking through all this smog on the windows."

Maintaining their calm military precision throughout the awesome first minutes of lunar orbit, the crew gave a technical read-out on the health of their spacecraft before giving the eagerly waiting world a description of the moon's surface.

Lovell observed that the lunar craters are "all rounded off — there's quite a few of them."

He said many "look like they've been hit by meteorites or projectiles of some sort . . . The walls of the crater are terraced, about six or seven terraces on the way down."

On their 66-hour journey home the astronauts will send ahead of them more television pictures, hopefully of both the

BORMAN'S PRAYER

By DAVE SWAIM
Special to Independent, Press-Telegram

HOUSTON — Explorers in the Golden Age of sailing ships were known to kneel in prayer on the shores of strange lands. No exception to this expression of faith is Col. Frank Borman, commanding officer of Apollo 8.

From the 20th Century ship circling the moon Tuesday came a message from Borman asking to dedicate a Christmas Eve prayer to the people of his own St. Christophers Church in Seabrook, Texas.

"Give, oh God," Col. Borman said from 230,000 miles away, "the vision which can see thy love in the world in spite of human failure."

"Give us the faith to trust the goodness in spite of our ignorance and weakness."

"Give us the knowledge that we may continue to pray with understanding hearts, and show us what each one of us can do to set forward the coming of the day of universal peace. Amen."

APOLLO 8 ASTRONAUTS streak homeward today at better than 5,000 miles per hour after completing their Christmas moon-orbit mission. Spacecraft covered an estimated 40,000 miles of the return trip up to 8 a.m. today, will slow down while escaping moon gravity and speed up again as earth's gravitation takes effect.

WORLD SEES 'TEEVEENAUTS' Christmas Space Special a Hit

By JIM STROTHMAN

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — "And the earth was without form, and void," an astronaut read from Genesis. And as he read, a television camera in moon-orbiting Apollo — showed the world a void lunar landscape.

"And darkness was upon the face of the deep," Air Force Maj. William Anders continued. "And the spirit of God moved upon the face of the water. And God said, 'Let there be light.' And there was light, and God saw the light. And it was good." And Apollo 8's television camera showed the light — sunlight on the moon, a bleak expanse sliding under the spacecraft 231,000 miles away from earth.

"AND LET the dry land appear," Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. continued the reading. "And it was so. And God called the dry land earth, and the gathering together of the water He called seas. And God saw that it was good."

"And from the crew of Apollo 8," Air Force Col. Frank Borman concluded as lunar darkness could be seen approaching on television screens. "We close with good night, good luck, a Merry Christmas, and God Bless all of you — all of you on the good earth."

The 25-minute telecast — second TV show of the day from moon orbit was the longest show ever beamed from a U.S. manned spacecraft. It began with a view of earth out the spacecraft window — a blur of light on TV screens — as Apollo 8 came around the moon's backside on its ninth orbit.

"It makes you realize that you've got back on earth," Lovell commented as the bleak and uninviting lunar land appeared.

Reflection from the sun prevented a clear look at craters at first, but the view improved along the way.

"THE SKY is pitch black and the moon is quite light," Anders said. "No stars are visible when flying over the moon in daylight."

"The best way to describe this is a vastness of black and white, absolutely no color."

"This planet has been bombarded through the eons with numerous meteorites. Ever square inch is pockmarked," Anders said. "Only the newest features have any shape definition to them."

"The color of the moon looks like a very whitish gray, like dirty beach sand with lots of footprints in it," narrated Air Force Maj. William A. Anders as he aimed the hand-held television camera out an Apollo 8 window during the first 12-minute show on the moonship's second lunar orbit.

Some of the "craters look like a pickax striking concrete, leaving a lot of fine space dust," Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. said.

The historic TV first from about 150 miles above the lunar surface began as Apollo 8 rounded toward earth from behind the moon.

"THE TV show was a big success," Air Force Lt. Col. Mike Collins, capsule communicator, radioed to Apollo 8 after the 12-minute telecast.

"It was seen by most of the nations on your neighboring planet," Collins quipped, noting the show had been picked up by networks in North and South America and portions of Europe.

During the morning telecast, a bleak and inhospitable terrain, pocked like bubbling pancake batter, slipped across screens on earth nearly 231,000 miles away.

"It's fantastic," said persons swarmed around TV sets in offices and pubs of Western Europe.

"We are now approaching the craters Sea and Bassett," Anders said as the show began. "That's the crater Brand. Sorry we missed Carr."

It was the first time many people realized how extensively the Apollo 8 pilots and planners had unofficially named features on the moon for their friends.

moon and the earth. They will also perhaps use their faithful service propulsion engine to make midcourse corrections.

THEN on Friday at about 7:30 a.m. (PST), one crewman will push the button for separation of the rocket engine that has gone all the way to the moon and back with them, allowing it to plunge into the earth's atmosphere and burn up like a meteor.

The Apollo command module alone, with its cone-shaped protective heat shield, will make its own reentry into the earth's environment ten minutes later, and in another ten minutes will parachute into the middle of the Pacific Ocean.

There, at the prearranged point in the vicinity of Christmas Island, the aircraft carrier USS Yorktown and other naval vessels will be standing by for recovery.

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — Apollo 8 "looked like a star" in pictures made by the U.S. Naval Observatory Monday night, Dr. Gerald E. Kron, director, said today.

He described the photographs as "very successful," saying other stars show as a "field of lines," making the spaceship quite visible.

The photographs were made by using a regular camera with the observatory's 61 inch reflecting telescope, Kron said. Apollo 8 is expected to be too far away tonight for pictures.

Future Apollo Windows Will Be Defogged

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (UPI) — Space Agency officials said Tuesday they planned to make some changes in the treatment of the material used in caulking spacecraft windows on the next spaceship.

The Apollo 8 astronauts have been bothered by fogged-up windows since shortly after they blasted off on their trip to the moon. One of the five spacecraft windows clouded over completely and two others became partially fogged.

Mission Control said the caulking material in the two windows which are still clear was treated differently from the material around the windows where fogging occurred.

Official said the problem was caused by "outgassing" — the chemical breakdown of certain materials under space conditions, causing condensation to form on the windows. The same fogging problem troubled the three Apollo 7 astronauts.

ADM. ROSENBERG, in reply to a question directed at Murphy, said "20 to 30 per cent of the men have visible injuries. There also is malnutrition and shock for the doctors to deal with."

Rosenberg said the men would spend the next day and a half celebrating Christmas with their families and that "debriefing" would begin Thursday.

Full details of the "debriefing" and the crew's ordeal from capture to release will be revealed in a naval court of inquiry, scheduled in about two weeks, Rosenberg said. He said the record would be made public, but he would not elaborate on how national security figured in the maltreatment of the crew.

A court of inquiry is standard procedure in cases where a U.S. naval ship is lost and the conduct of its officers and men is under a cloud, the admiral said. He indicated he, for one, would not prejudice the crew, all of whom he characterized as "fine Americans."

"I felt it a privilege to serve in the same Navy with them," Rosenberg said.

EARLIER at Midway Island, Bucher said North Korea captured the Pueblo to "embarrass the United States government more than anything else."

Bucher questioned whether "the people who came out and captured the Pueblo had actually been authorized. We had a feeling they had blown it."

The skipper, in an interview on Midway en route here, also described how

LT. EDWARD MURPHY JR.
Executive Officer

he and the 81 other surviving members of the Pueblo's 83-man crew suffered through 11 months of imprisonment and torture at the hands of the Communist North Koreans before they were released last Monday and began their flight to freedom from Seoul.

The crew applauded the 41-year-old commander loudly when he referred to their tormentors as "apes" who beat and terrified them.

"Every member of the crew has been subjected to terror of some kind one time or another," Bucher said. "Whether it was actual physical beating or not is beside the point, because the terror of expecting a beating is just as terrifying."

BUCHER had been scheduled to participate in the Naval Hospital press conference with four members of his crew. But a spokesman said the skipper was "so emotionally exhausted" by his ordeal and the trauma of the homecoming he would not attend.

Three of the six chairs on the stage were removed leaving seats only for Murphy, Rosenberg and a four-striper who buzzed around the Pueblo's executive officer like fighters around an aircraft carrier.

Murphy, who lost 45 pounds in captivity, said at "the beginning I doubted I would come back alive. But I can't talk about that."

THE GRAY-HAIRED, bespectacled second-in-command of the captured vessel said the men had absolute faith in their fellow countrymen and their government and never lost confidence they would be freed.

Both Murphy and Rosenberg refused to answer questions concerning chances for the repatriation of the $110-million intelligence ship. Nor would they comment on "confessions" obtained by the North Koreans which indicted the Pueblo's crew was a "spy ship" poaching on North Korean territorial waters in defiance of international law.

Murphy was asked about "solitary confinement," to which Bucher said he was subjected.

"There was no solitary confinement as such," he said. "Each officer had his own room. We got together for exercise, meals, reading, and discussion of world affairs."

"We read literature supplied by the North Koreans," Murphy said. "It contained helpful information of the people, history and culture of North Korea."

"If anybody was brainwashed this time, it was the other way around."

DIGNITARIES meeting the crew at the air station included Gov. Ronald Reagan, Mrs. Reagan and their son, Skipper; Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Me., and Mayor Frank Curran of San Diego.

But the crew obviously only had eyes for wives, children and parents. And their thoughts were with a dead shipmate, Fireman Duane Hodges, Creswell, Ore., who was killed by enemy gunfire when the vessel was captured last Jan. 23.

His voice choking with emotion, Bucher asked the crowd for a "few minutes of silent prayer," the "amen" of which was said when the casket was taken from the plane and placed in a hearse.

ABOUT THE ship's capture, Bucher said:

"There were too many of them (North Koreans) and too little of us. While I was in prison, the one thing I thought about over and over again was the embarrassment I had caused the United States by the loss of one of its very fine ships to North Koreans."

"It preyed on my mind all the time."

The haunted eyes which gazed into the face of tiny, spunky Rose Bucher, who led a one-woman fight to free the crew, showed that the thought still preys on the mind of the Pueblo's captain.

GUNSHOTS AT YULE

America's Apollo 8 astronauts.

It was the day of a bell for Hakodate. The Greek Orthodox church in that Japanese city received from shipowner John G. P. Livnos of New York a 1,287-pound bell, about three feet in diameter, to replace one the Japanese melted down 24 years ago for military hardware in World War II.

Snow blanketed Berlin and it was cheerless and gray along the Berlin Wall. Thousands of families remained forcibly separated by the Communist barrier for the third straight Christmas. The last Christmas season in which the East German regime granted passes was in 1965.

MUNICH authorities reported a 16-year-old East German boy wishing to spend the holidays with an aunt in Bavaria, escaped by having himself shipped from Leipzig in a crate of a type commonly used for Christmas packages. The boy was freed by workers at Selb, who heard him knock against the crate. His name was not disclosed.

Snow blanketed much of the northern area of the United States. Generally cool temperatures and clear skies seemed the order of the day.

In the Holy Land threat and counter-threat of war added tensions to the freezing lot of pilgrims. With Israeli troops standing guard from church tops, bells pealed in the still, icy air over Bethlehem and services for peace were conducted to herald Christmas.

The tensions and solemnity gave way briefly when a group of hippies danced and kissed at the stroke of midnight in Manger Square near Jesus' traditional birthplace.

In nearby St. Catherine's church, the Latin Catholic patriarch, Msgr. Alberto Gori, celebrated midnight Mass attended by 1,200 worshippers. Another 1,000 stood outside Manger Square, watching the ceremony on closed-circuit television. The Mass also was broadcast over the Israeli state radio and TV stations.

The bearded patriarch was met by the military governor of Bethlehem, the police commandant — both Israelis — and the Arab mayor, Elias Bandak.

THE PATRIARCH led a colorful procession of priests and Arab notables to St. Catherine's Catholic church, which stands next to the Greek Orthodox Church of the Nativity.

All World Awed by Apollo Feat

Well, Almost All—Flat Earth Society
Calls It 'Ballyhoo'

Combined News Services

The spacemen aboard Apollo 8 replaced Santa Claus in the hearts and television screens of Europeans Christmas Eve. And in the nations that ignore the Christmas story, the voyage to the moon was simply an astounding event.

Germans rushed home not to open packages but to watch another live telecast from lunar orbit. Swedes and Filipinos and Frenchmen followed each orbit on radios.

And, as it had after the successful launch, the world's press celebrated the event with huge headlines, dozens of pictures and pages of type.

ONLY a few openly pooch-pooched the awesome voyage. The most notable was Samuel Shenton, secretary of London's Flat Earth Society, who said the "public are being ballyhooed, taken for a ride."

A retired sign-painter who devotes his days to disputing science, Shenton contended, "These men haven't gone as far as has been told to us, and if anything happens they would plop down to earth again."

"If they show us a very clear picture of the earth from space, and the picture does not show all the continents, and the dge of the picture is out of perspective, then that would prove that the earth is round. Until then, we shall continue fighting to prove the earth is flat," Shenton said.

THE unique event brought forth an unusual headline in the London Evening Standard Tuesday, which simply said, "Bloody Marvellous." That may have been a bit crude for some British readers, but the paper expressed more exuberance in an accompanying editorial that said:

"Circling the moon are men like us—braver and more skillful than we are, but still of our bone and blood. And that is a reason for added rejoicing this year."

Sir Bernard Lovell, the astronomer who had expressed doubts about the Apollo project before it began, seemed increasingly enthusiastic with its success.

"VIEWING the moon from only 70 miles away must be regarded as one of the historic moments in the development of the human race," he said from his Jodrell Bank Observatory.

Elsewhere in the world there were these reactions:

Soviet Union — The Tass news agency reported with accuracy but no comment the lunar insertion and orbiting. It also announced the emergence of three Russian scientists from a year of confinement inside an air-tight capsule designed to simulate conditions man will encounter on long trips through space "The men are in sound health," Tass said.

France — Afternoon papers bannered the Apollo story and American space expert Wernher Von Braun predicted in Paris that man would land on Mars in the next 20 years.

Italy — "Merry Christmas From the Moon," headlined the pro-Communist daily Paese Sera of Rome.

Portugal — The Lisbon press prominently reported the lunar events, but without editorial comment.

LAUD APOLLO
Unmanned
Probe Best

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Soviet commentators paid tribute to the Apollo astronauts Tuesday but suggested that it is too soon to send manned ships deep into space.

A possible interpretation of their comments is that Russia will not try to land a man on the moon before the United States does.

In statements distributed by the Soviet embassy, academician Georgy Petrov and science correspondent Yuri Marinin said there is much to be learned from unmanned, automatic space vehicles before risking men in outer space.

MARININ, science correspondent for the Novosti Press Agency, said Soviet scientists feel that the potential for automatic probes of the moon still is far from exhausted.

"This is also the view of many foreign scientists," he said. "Bernard Lovell, director of Jodrell Bank Radio Observatory and a noted British astronomer, feels for instance that scientific tasks now set to astronauts of manned Apollo craft can be successfully accomplished in three years' time by automatic probes.

"An automatic probe can lift a bigger payload of scientific instrumentation and experiments, let alone that their use will involve no hazards for humans."

At the same time he said Soviet scientists realize that manned craft will be needed "at a certain stage for future scientific progress."

Verne Set Pattern for Moon Orbit

By DEE WEDEMEYER
NEW YORK (AP) — More than 100 years ago, Jules Verne wrote prophetically of a space capsule orbiting the moon. His tale has much in common with the journey of Apollo 8.

In the book, "From the Earth to the Moon," published in 1865, the French science-fiction storyteller wrote of launching a projectile which, like the Apollo, had three men aboard.

The Frenchman chose a launching site about 100 miles from Cape Kennedy, Fla., near Tampa. Dec. 1 was the date of the fictitious flight, Dec. 11 its splashdown in the Pacific ocean, and Dec. 29 the day the capsule was to float to the surface.

Apollo 8 was launched Dec. 22, with splashdown scheduled for Dec. 27 in the Pacific.

Writing at a time when the airplane had not even been invented, Verne estimated his projectile would initially travel at 12,000 yards per second — or about 25,000 miles per hour — for the 238,833-mile journey.

Apollo 8 began traveling at 24,200 miles per hour for the 225,000-mile flight.

Verne's characters included a Frenchman named Andan. The Apollo crew includes Maj. William A. Anders.

Verne described his projectile as a cast iron tube lined in aluminum, 12 feet high with a base of 54 square feet and weighing 12,230 pounds.

The Apollo 8 crew compartment capsule is a cone-shaped capsule which, minus the 36-story Saturn rocket, is 12 feet long and about 13 feet wide.

IT HAS an aluminum alloy inner structure encased by a brazed stainless steel heat shield coated with plastic.

It weighs 12,392 pounds.

As Verne's characters orbited within 25 miles of the moon they described in detail the lifeless satellite with its crusty surface and deep craters.

BROWN TO REAGAN

Asks Life Terms for San Quentin 85

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) Former Gov. Edmund G. Brown has urged Gov. Ronald Reagan to commute to life in prison the sentences of all 85 prisoners now awaiting execution on San Quentin's death row.

In a letter to Reagan from his Beverly Hills law office, Brown noted the U.S. Supreme Court's recent decision that the guarantee of due process was violated if jurors who did not believe in the death penalty were excused for that reason.

"May I respectfully suggest that you commute to life in prison, without possibility of parole, every one of the cases where you have the power to do so," said Brown. "This would make unnecessary the retrial of these cases. It would clear the decks and let these people know that they are going to spend the rest of their life in prison."

Brown said that if the state went ahead with the executions "it would be a blot on the good name of California and, incidentally, the United States for years to come."

"I know this would not be an easy thing to," Brown told the governor, "but in my opinion it would give dignity to the whole administration of justice in our state."

Reagan said he would withhold comment on the recommendations until he had a chance to study the matter more thoroughly.

High Court Spares
Convicted Slayer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)

A 40-year-old San Jose taxi driver's death penalty was set aside Tuesday and his conviction reduced from first to second degree murder by the state Supreme Court.

Robert Arthur Anderson had been convicted of the Dec. 7, 1962 stabbing death of his 10-year-old stepdaughter, Victoria Hammond.

The court ruled, in its 4-3 decision, that the prosecution did not establish premeditation and deliberation. The death penalty was overturned under the U.S. Supreme Court's Witherspoon decision limiting the exclusion of jurors opposed to the death penalty.

JUSTICE MATHEW O. Tobriner noted for the majority that Anderson had been drinking heavily when the girl was attacked and stabbed more than 60 times. He added, "The brutality of a killing cannot in itself support a finding that the killer acted with premeditation and deliberation."

A dissenting opinion by Justice Louis H. Burke said the first-degree murder conviction and death sentence were justified on evidence that the victim died of sexual assault. Justices Marshall F. McComb and Raymond L. Sullivan joined in the dissenting opinion.

In 1965, the tribunal had reversed Anderson's first conviction of first-degree murder following the Escobedo decision by the U. S. Supreme Court. This barred confessions obtained without warning the accused of his right to remain silent and be advised by an attorney.

THE COURT also took action on four other San Quentin death row cases.

Habeas corpus stays were granted to Joshua N. Hill, 23, and James W. Saunders, 23, convicted in the 1965 robbery-killing of a Los Angeles liquor store clerk. The state was directed to answer the challenge of the death penalties before Jan. 17.

The court unanimously upheld the death penalty against Gerald Albert Bievelman, found guilty of killing a liquor store clerk in a Sacramento holdup in March, 1967.

THE JUSTICES reversed the sentence of Herman Yvonne Risenhoover in the 1962 slaying of an 18-year-old boy in Fresno County.

They said the jury had not been chosen in accordance with rules which require a juror opposed to capital punishment may be excused only if his belief is so strong he cannot possibly agree to a death sentence.

S. I. HAYAKAWA AND HIS EMBLEM
S.F. State College President Sets New Style

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

When S. I. Hayakawa pulled the plug on a student striker's sound truck the morning he became acting president of strife-torn San Francisco State College, he wore a tam-o-shanter perched jauntily on his head.

Events that chilly, angry morning made the tam Hayakawa's personal symbol — and the symbol of a get-tough attitude toward student militants.

Tuesday, three weeks later, state legislators and college officials got their own Hayakawa tam-o-shanters in the mail — courtesy of two Long Beach men who are long-time admirers of the semanticist-turned-college prexy.

Writer Jim Phelan and public relations man Bob Irvin sent out 205 of the colorful, knitted tams "in support of Hayakawa's courage against students who grab college officials by the throat and demand to have their way."

Assemblyman James Hayes, R-Long Beach, and State Sen. Joseph Kennick, D-Long Beach, also went on record in support of the tam project.

"This emblem is a means of showing to Dr. Hayakawa my firm support of his expressed resolve to restore order to the campus of San Francisco State College by all necessary and reasonable means," Hayes said.

"It is further my expression to Dr. Hayakawa that I do not want or expect him to vacillate or weaken or bend under pressure of violent elements whose only real purpose is to disrupt or destroy our excellent education system in California."

Hayes urged all Californians "to this same belief" to join "in this same expression."

Phelan, who has written for the Saturday Evening Post and other magazines, said he had read Hayakawa's books on semantics for 25 years.

"I also talked with a lot of militants at Cal State Long Beach during the Spater demonstrations last spring and was struck by their childish intemperance," he said.

Phelan and Irvin hatched the tam idea last week, called several friends and quickly collected $800 to buy enough tams to send to state assemblymen and senators, members of the state college Board of Trustees and the university Board of Regents, and college presidents.

In a letter sent with the tams, they compared student militants at San Francisco and other colleges with Nazis.

"When a small group attempts to impose its will on others with disregard for law and for the rights of the majority, we again are confronted with the same darkness of the human spirit that sent stones crashing through Jewish store windows in Germany 35 years ago," the letter said.

"A lot of people are calling these people Reds, but they are more like fascists," Phelan said.

Accept $400 Donation

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Black Student Union at San Francisco State College defended Rev. Cecil Williams Tuesday for turning over a $400 lecture fee to the militant student group.

Ben Stewart, president of the BSU, said Rev. Williams, pastor of the Glide Memorial Methodist Church, was "a Christian gentleman who turned over the check in a Christian act."

An investigation by the state attorney general's office revealed the BSU received the check from Rev. Williams. It also found that the SF state student government, which controls over $400,000 from student fees, gave the BSU $22,000 and the Third World Liberation Front $15,000 this fall.

Acting President S. I. Hayakawa said the college plans to curb the spending power of student body officers but indicated no action would be disclosed until some time after Christmas.

Nesbit Crutchfield, a student instructor and BSU bookkeeper, said Williams' donation was a gesture in the tradition of Christ that was being "transferred by the racist power structure to be conspiratorial and immoral."

Williams denied a published report that Leory Goodwin, a BSU leader, used a $150 check from the student government to help pay for a high-powered rifle Dec. 8.

He said no check from student funds had ever been used to purchase a gun. "We have decided that if ever we have money left over from keeping people out of jail we will make a down payment on an atom bomb if necessary to help mankind," Williams said.

The 25-member student legislature has played an active role in the student strike which resulted in a month of classroom disruptions, sporadic violence and led to an early closing of the 18,000-student campus for the holidays.

Strike leaders have vowed to resume the strike when the campus reopens Jan. 6.

City Honors Alice Lucas

Mrs. Alice Lucas, secretary to City Manager John R. Mansell, was presented with a 25-year service plaque Tuesday by the Long Beach City Council.

Mrs. Lucas, who was unable to attend the recent dinner at which service pins and plaques were given to several hundred city employees, was the recipient at a special presentation during the council's morning recess.

LBJ: 'WORLD
PEACE HOPE'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson told American military forces Tuesday that on his last Christmas in the White House "the world is brightened with the hope of peace."

As Commander-in-Chief, Johnson broadcast Christmas greetings to servicemen throughout the world, saluting the role they played in maintaining freedom.

"It was your destiny to serve your nation in an hour of grave crisis," he said. "To you fell the hard duty of preserving freedom in the agony of war — during a restless time of doubt and division. But you have stood as the rock of our resolve that freedom shall endure on this earth."

Turning to the future, the President declared: "This Christmas, the world is brightened with the hope of peace. When it comes — when hope turns to substance and the guns are quiet once again — it will come because you have pursued it with courage and skill. It will come because you have won it with a steadfast spirit that adds new luster to the honored tradition of American arms."

President's Last Yule in Office

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson gathered his family Tuesday for his last Christmas in the White House, thankful for the release of the Pueblo crew, heartened with the progress of the Apollo moon mission and hopeful "that peace on earth will soon be a reality."

With most of the attention going to Johnson's two grandchildren, the first family opened most of their gifts Christmas Eve in the Yellow Oval Room where eight bright red Christmas stockings hung from the fireplace mantle.

TWO OF THE socks were for Johnson's absent sons-in-law, Marine Maj. Charles S. Robb and Airman 1. C. Patrick J. Nugent. Both are serving in Vietnam.

Asked about the First Family's thoughts on their final Christmas in the executive mansion press aide Tom Johnson said: "The First Family is particularly thankful this Christmas Eve that the men of the Pueblo are to be reunited with their families. Like all Americans their thoughts and prayers will be with America's space men who for the first time circled the moon."

Johnson, still having the sniffles after being hospitalized with the flu, struck the same "hope for peace" note himself in his traditional Christmas Eve broadcast to U.S. military men throughout the world.

MOST of the Johnson family festivities will focus on 18-month-old Patrick Lyndon Nugent, Luci's son, who is just beginning to be aware of Christmas and Santa Claus. Two-month-old Lucinda Dasha Robb is too young to comprehend the celebration, but her mother, Lynda, had many gifts for her.

In addition to the stockings on the mantle, the Christmas scene in the Yellow Oval Room was dominated by a glittering tree with presents spread out around it. The gifts were secret. "Nobody wanted to say what they were," said Mrs. Johnson's press assistant Marcia Maddox.

The Johnsons were expected to attend Christmas services at one or possibly two churches on the holiday and then they planned a "quiet day" with perhaps a few close friends and relatives.

Nixon Has 'No News' Christmas

Family Prepares Yule Observance
at Biscayne Bay

KEY BISCAYNE (UPI) — Richard Nixon and his honeymoon-depleted family Tuesday made ready for a Christmas in the subtropics that featured a tree in the living room, a wreath on the door and crisp record-low temperatures outside.

The president-elect, his wife Pat and their oldest daughter, Tricia, 22, planned to spend Christmas in the contemporary home on Biscayne Bay that he is renting and soon intends to buy from his old friend, Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla.

NO DETAILS on how the Nixon's would celebrate Christmas were yet available. Press spokesman Alan Woods said a decorated tree was in place, a wreath was hanging from the front door and a Christmas table cloth covered a table.

Nixon made an hour-long visit in the afternoon to coed Barbara Jane Mackle, who was resting from her ordeal at the hands of kidnapers.

Miss Mackle's parents are friends of the Nixons, and the Emory University junior worked for Nixon at the Republican National Convention in Miami and during the presidential campaign.

With Nixon during the visit was another friend, C. G. (Bebe) Rebozo, a Key Biscayne businessman and Nixon's next door neighbor. A Nixon spokesman said the president-elect "initiated the visit."

THE NIXON'S youngest daughter, Julie, and her new husband, David Eisenhower, were honeymooning Tuesday at a "secret" location. Unconfirmed reports persisted, however, that the newlyweds, married only Sunday, would fly here Wednesday to spend Christmas with the Nixons.

Even the weather cooperated with the season. Temperatures hovering in the low and mid-40's broke records for this time of the year and provided the Nixon's with traditional Christmas cold.

But at the same time, the sky was clear, brilliant blue and on normally placid Biscayne Bay choppy white caps glittered in the sun.

State police and secret service men kept sightseers and anyone else from getting through the residential area and close to the Nixon household. On one side of the home is a house which Nixon recently bought. On the other is one owned by his good friend, C. G. (Bebe) Rebozo.

Nixon made it clear upon his arrival in Florida Monday that rest and relaxation were his principal objectives during his 10-day stay here. Official visitors would be held to a minimum and he said he would conduct no news conferences and issue no statements.

THE "NO NEWS" policy will apply to the one business meeting he has set — a "National Security Affairs" session that will be attended by six of his closest advisors, including Secretary of State designate William P. Rogers, and Defense Secretary designate Melvin Laird.

One possible subject of discussion is the pending treaty to bar the spread of nuclear weapons. The issue is likely to be a lively one soon after Congress convenes Jan. 3, either because President Johnson will have decided to make a stab at winning Senate ratification of the pact before he leaves office or because after Jan. 20 President Nixon will have to decide whether to push for immediate approval.

During the campaign, Nixon said he favored the treaty but that it would be inappropriate for the United States to ratify it so soon after Soviet troops occupied Czechoslovakia.

CREWMEMBERS OF THE USS PUEBLO ARE WELCOMED HOME BY THEIR FAMILIES AND FRIENDS TUESDAY
This Joyful Scene Took Place at Miramar Naval Air Station in San Diego as Men Prepared to Head Home for Christmas

NO DRY EYES VISIBLE

Cheers, Tears Greet 82 Pueblo Crewmen

By MARY NEISWENDER
Staff Writer

It was a hero's welcome.

... a Christmas present for family and crew they will long remember ... and a reunion scene spectators will find hard to forget.

Amid cheers and tears, the crew of the USS Pueblo came home Tuesday.

There were no dry eyes — not among the 82 crew members, their families, which numbered almost 200, or the crowds of Navy men who came to welcome them home.

ALTHOUGH national, state and local dignitaries as well as Navy brass crowded the welcome area at San Diego's Miramar Naval Air Station, all eyes were on the doors of the two planes carrying the crewmen from Korea as they slowly rolled to a stop.

The crowds of family, spectators and newsmen were almost silent as the plane's wheels finally halted.

Then the band began to play.

And although most of the crowd thought the music strange — "The Lonely Bull" — to crewmen it was significant. It was the "fight song" they had used during their entire 11-month imprisonment. A song, they said earlier, which kept them "unified."

COMMANDER Lloyd (Pete) Bucher, captain of the captured ship — looking gaunt and haggard and at least 20 years older than his 41 years — was first off the plane.

His steps were slow and faltering, but he waved to the crowds as he stepped onto the red-carpet put out minutes before.

He walked, limping

Anders Shoots Films of Sea of Tranquility

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Astronaut William Anders, the photographer of the Apollo 8 crew, shot enough film Tuesday to make many professional photographers envious.

Anders shot continuous movies and sequence pictures of approaches to a site in the Sea of Tranquility where astronauts may land later.

The film will be used to make a "pilot's eye" training film for future astronauts. "By having a camera along that we can point in various directions, by having an eyeball and a brain up there that can look around and observe, we'll hopefully be able to add some good scientific data to that gathered by the unmanned (spacecraft) program," Anders said before launch.

slightly, toward the makeshift barrier set up to keep relatives back from the airport runway and into the arms of his wife, Rose, who was standing with other crew member's wives and mothers.

He buried his head in her shoulder and wept.

AND THERE he remained for several minutes, leaning across the rope barrier which separated him from his family.

Other crewmen, who appeared healthier and in better condition than their skipper, rushed past him and into the arms of wives, mothers and sweethearts.

But Bucher remained almost motionless. Finally he sighed, straightened up and saw his two sons — Mark, 16, and Mike, 14 — who waited beside their mother. He embraced them, one in each arm.

The captain and his sons all were teary-eyed when they finally faced others who came up to welcome the obviously-ailing skipper home.

AS HE walked slowly to the speaker's platform to be welcomed by Gov. Ronald Reagan and Maine Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, along with San Diego city and Navy officials, Capt. Bucher stopped briefly to speak directly to the reporters lining one side of the red-carpeted walkway:

"I am proud to be home ... I am proud to be an American citizen ... I am so proud of you people ... and I am so proud of my wonderful wife."

But crewmen paid little attention to the formal ceremonies which followed.

First to rush past his captain and to his wife, Patricia, was Chief Petty Officer Monroe Goldman of Lakewood.

The 20-year-Navy veteran had an extra Christmas present awaiting him — a six-month-old daughter, Lisa — who he had never seen.

He talked to the little baby, animatedly, but — as the rest of the crewmen — his words were not for the press.

HIS WIFE later said that she and their three children — had spent an hour with her husband immediately following his arrival, but couldn't talk much about what he had told her "due to restrictions put on by the Navy."

"He looks well, though, although he's lost some weight," she said.

She said they would have more time together on Christmas day, and he "should be home by the weekend."

But the restrictions, necessary because of planned medical examinations and an impending board of inquiry, failed to dim the welcome given the crewmen.

As the buses that carried the men and their families to the Balboa Naval Hospital wound the 15 miles from the Air Station, crowds — waving flags and welcome-home banners — filled the roadway.

THOUSANDS lined the roadbanks, stood atop parked cars and even lined pedestrian overpasses to give the sailors a hero's welcome.

And, despite what may come in the weeks ahead, to the crowds they were heroes and were deserving of the tribute given to returning heroes.

There were plans being made for a giant Christmas Eve party, and plans for a giant Christmas Day, and plans for going home, and plans for a bright new year.

Only one sailor had no plans.

The body of Duane Hodges came home with the rest of the Pueblo's crewmen.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hodges, stood silently on hand to welcome home the Pueblo's crew.

Then they had one thing to do — plan for their son's funeral.

of the American intelligence ship back to the U.S. Christmas Eve. Hodges was killed when the USS Pueblo was captured.

Moon Features Easy to Spot

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Visibility and spotting of landmarks on the moon may be a relatively simple task for future space travelers, based on reports from the three Apollo 8 astronauts.

The Apollo 8 crew apparently had little trouble picking out craters to be used as landmarks in later flights, especially a crater in the Sea of Tranquility which was picked as a test to determine how well future astronauts could spot a landing area.

"It's very easy to spot. I can see the rims of the crater, including the white spot on the far side where the sun is shining on it," astronaut James Lovell said.

Crash Kills Woman

A 26-year-old Wilmington woman was dead on arrival at Harbor General Hospital Tuesday after a two-car accident at Sepulveda Boulevard and Alameda Street in Wilmington.

The victim, Donna Hollis of 24212 Maribel Ave., was driver of a car involved in a collision with an auto driven by Steven J. Birtzer, 26, of 13637½ Doty Ave., Hawthorne.

Birtzer was in critical condition at the hospital after the 7:45 p.m. accident.

Police said one of the drivers ran a red light.

CREWMAN TELLS ALL ---IN CONFESSIONAL

The crew of the intelligence ship Pueblo was kept under close scrutiny by Navy brass at Balboa Naval Hospital in San Diego — but one man slipped away into the early darkness to tell someone the things the Navy wouldn't permit him to tell the press.

He was a Pueblo crewman, unidentified except for his blue utilities. And he was seen walking to the chapel below the hospital administration building shortly after 5:30.

A priest sat on the steps of the church, used by members of all faiths, and watched the man as he entered the sanctuary and genuflected.

What the crewman said inside the church was unknown. But it was heard in the stars of Christmas Eve. No reporter followed.

A Navy officer sprinted toward the chapel, but slowed to a walk when he neared the open door. He looked inside, turned away and strolled over to the step to join the priest, who was reading his breviary.

They waited as the night closed in. Neither obviously would trespass on the crewman's moment of privacy with his God.

It happened in the Balboa Naval Hospital chapel on a Christmas Eve. One man who had known close confinement with 81 other men for 11 harsh months was alone at last.

Laud Red Viet Army Catholics

HONG KONG (AP) — Communist North Vietnam praised its Roman Catholics Tuesday for achievements in "production and in killing the U.S. aggressors — the best offerings to the infant Jesus Christ."

FINCH PROMISES

Racial Equality
Nixon Era Goal

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Robert H. Finch promises the Nixon Administration will make racial equality a national goal but will not be intimidated by the activities of black militants.

"I find that many of these so-called militants have a very narrow constituency," the secretary-designate of health, education and welfare said in an interview. "I hope our programs can be geared to the responsible members of all the minority communities," he said.

Finch, probably President-elect Richard M. Nixon's closest personal friend in the cabinet, could become the key man in the Republican Administration's domestic programs.

He was asked if he endorsed outgoing HEW Secretary Wilbur J. Cohen's call for an end to racial discrimination by 1976.

"All we can do is work as hard as we can on it," Finch said. "I'm not going to hold myself up as a man who says anything can be achieved overnight or by 1976. All we can do is put in our best efforts."

FINCH He said the new Administration could deal with racial problems with "a new kind of candor and a new kind of directness" because it owes no political debts to the black establishment.

"IT IS perfectly clear that we hardly owe our election to the Negro community," he said. "In a way we get a kind of freedom out of this in terms of options because we can deal directly with this problem without any hint of political obligation."

Finch, always a pragmatist, said he would meet with recognized Negro leaders to ask: "OK, where do we start, how do we get at these problems, what has worked and what hasn't worked?"

Finch was interviewed in the cluttered office of the California Lieutenant Governor on the second floor of the capitol building, just outside of the ornate state Senate chamber.

The secretary-designate plans to resign his present post, the only elective office he has held in a lifetime of politics, before Nixon's Jan. 20 inauguration.

He said Cohen's proposal for comprehensive health insurance for all Americans was "both possible and desirable." But, like the outgoing secretary, he said the specifics of such a plan have not yet been developed.

He said some sort of federal-private partnership would be needed because "it is perfectly obvious that we can't continue to fund this purely with tax dollars." He also said some procedure should be included to permit people to decline the insurance if they do not wish to carry it.

FINCH called on the nation's elementary schools to modernize their curriculum to deal with switched on youngsters who know about things like rockets through television and are bored with bland textbooks. The schools, he said, "are still working on the basis of the old system where we treated children as some kind of large vat into which we had to pour so much information."

"The average child that comes into the system today has had three or four thousand hours in front of that television. He has had much more input than we had when we came into the system. He has just shot past Jack and Jill."

Finch said if the Vietnam war can be ended soon, it would free vast sums of money for domestic programs. But he warned that even after Vietnam, the nation must continue to spend money abroad.

"Obviously, we cannot withdraw as a world leader," he said. But he said the nation must also find the resources to solve the problems of its cities. We have to start at home. Obviously we can hardly be world leaders if we don't get our own house in order."

A Holiday Thought From Boyd's Pet Shop

I wonder if Christ had a little old dog
All shiny and silky like mine?
With cute little ears a nose round and wet
And eyes brown and tender that shine.

I'm sure if He had, that little dog Knew right from the start He was God.
That he needed no proof that Christ was divine
And just worshipped the ground where He trod.

I'm afraid that He hadn't because I have read
How He prayed in the garden alone.
When all of His friends and disciples had fled.
Even Peter the one called The Stone.

And I am so sure that that little dog his heart so tender and warm
Would never have left Him to suffer alone but creeping right under His arm
Would have licked His dear fingers in agony clasped
And knowing no feeling but loss.
When they took Him away would have trotted behind
And followed Him right to the Cross.

Power Shortages Feared in Rush to Harness Atom

By BAXTER OMCHUNDRO
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Electrical "brownouts," reminiscent of World War II's light dimmings, are threatened in various parts of the country because of utilities' rush to harness the power of the atom.

Knowledgeable observers here say that localized power shortages are nearly inevitable during the early 1970s because of delays in getting nuclear-powered electrical generators into reliable service.

Where these shortages are apt to come is impossible to predict now, but they seem probable among some of the 27 states in which 86 nuclear power plants are either under construction or planned.

THE shortages would develop in systems where the nuclear plants are being depended upon to provide base-load power by a certain date — 1971 being the most critical year.

Twenty-five plants now under construction are scheduled for completion through 1971 in California, Alabama, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Vermont, Virginia and Wisconsin.

And all of these are "second generation" plants, designed to produce 500 megawatts of power or more. The design capacity of some exceeds 1,000 megawatts.

Considerable concern has been expressed that some of these may not be able to begin operation on schedule for two basic reasons:

—Based on the experience of smaller plants, the state of the art is not sufficiently advanced for reasonable guarantee against extended delays for technical reasons.

—Licensing procedures are so snarled in red tape that operation often is held up for months.

Concern for the technical risks was expressed earlier this year in a report prepared by Congress's Joint Atomic Energy Committee, which raised a red flag on "major dependence being placed on this revolutionary new technology during the next few years."

The committee report questioned "the adequacy and logic of the evaluations upon which some of these decisions (to use nuclear generators) were made, or the seller's art employed by some to propel this drive."

PROBABLY the strongest warning came from Rep. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., chairman of the House Interior Committee, in a discussion of what the joint committee called a "rush" to nuclear-powered generators:

"Interested observers cannot help but feel a certain concern over what might happen if some of these plants experienced significant delays in availability, or performed substantially less efficiently than expected. The result could well be electrical energy shortages in certain parts of the nation."

Aspinall's concern was echoed and extended by Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif., ranking minority House member of the joint committee and a widely recognized authority on nuclear affairs.

WHILE agreeing with Aspinall on the technical hazards, Hosmer last month charged that the Atomic Energy Commission's reactor safeguards committee has caused many delays. Hosmer said the committee, which advises the AEC on licensing of reactors, has been unnecessarily slow in making its recommendations and thus slowing the issuance of operating permits for power reactors.

Continuation of the present system, Hosmer

REP. CRAIG HOSMER

warned, will cause delays that "will run us into drastic power shortages and severe public censure of the whole idea of nuclear kilowatts."

Technical concerns stem primarily from the experiences of lower-powered generators that have been in operation to one extent or another for nearly a decade.

THE AEC claims that 14 of these currently are in "operational status." But the hard truth is that three of these now are down and at least one of them probably will never be reactivated.

These are the Rural Cooperative Power Association's 22-megawatt plant at Elk River, Minn.; The Detroit Edison Co.'s 61-megawatt plant at Lagoona Beach, Mich., and the Northern States Power Co.'s 59-megawatt plant at Sioux Falls, S.D. The last is being replaced by a fossil fuel plant, while the future of the other two is up in the air.

The Michigan plant has been down for over two years because of a coolant system problem, the South Dakota plant stopped over a year ago because of conditions in its steam system and the Minnesota plant went off in March because of a leak in the thick jacket of the reactor cooling system.

ALL of these were difficulties in the primary systems of low-power plants, leading observers to worry about what might happen in the comparable systems of higher-power plants.

A hint came in March when the 500-megawatt plant of the Southern California Edison and San Diego Gas & Electric Companies' plant near San Onofre, Calif., came acrop-per. The San Onofre plant was down for about six months due largely to a fire in a cable assembly point — a part of the system not directly connected with the nuclear power system.

This experience served to point up another warning in the committee report:

"Contrary to attitudes that appear to exist in certain parts of the utility industry, nuclear power does involve significant changes in nearly all aspects of power generation, running the gamut from plant design to operation."

THE committee also advised the industry that it must develop a technical competence to handle complicated nuclear power plants "if significant delays in plant availability are to be avoided and if performance and safety requirements are to be met."

The difficulties of the nuclear power industry have been a source of some comfort to suppliers of other fuels, such as coal, and some of these have tended to exaggerate the problems with the atom. At the same time, they have urged an end to government subsidies of nuclear plants and have questioned the price of nuclear fuel while lobbying against financing of plants that would create economical fuel.

Cranked in also to the problem of the nuclear plants is the public's underlying fear of radioactive pollution.

THE AEC repeatedly has stated that the operation of these plants carries with it no chance of radiological hazard to either the operating personnel or residents in the vicinity. And AEC specifically denies such hazards in the cases where things have gone wrong.

In fact, one of the attractions for some power producers for nuclear energy is that, unlike coal, oil or natural gas, it emits virtually no pollutants into the atmosphere.

While this is generally admitted by conservationists, nuclear power recently has come under fire as a source of thermal pollution — the discharge of very hot water into rivers and lakes.

THIS problem was mentioned in the latest issue of the National Academy of Sciences news bulletin, which cited a report that nuclear plants discharge 50 per cent more hot water into a lake or river than does a conventional plant.

Grape Strike Seen as Major Issue Confronting Legislature

By CHRIS MORGESE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The long and bitter farm workers' strike against California grape growers is expected to be a major issue confronting the 1969 Legislature.

A UPI poll of the lawmakers shows a majority of assemblymen favor state legislation to extend collective bargaining rights to farm workers.

However, chances of such legislation passing the Senate appear dim. Senators responding to the poll voted better than 2-to-1 against changing the present law.

THE FARM workers, led by Cesar Chavez, launched the strike in September 1965 to gain recognition of their union and bargaining rights. Last June, Chavez's United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, AFL-CIO, started a nationwide boycott of California table grapes to put pressure on the growers.

Chavez's demand that the National Labor Relations Act be extended to cover farm workers has little support among legislators and is opposed by Gov. Ronald Reagan. The act requires industrial firms to bargain collectively with unions representing their workers.

Most assemblymen who feel the Legislature should enact a law requiring growers to deal with unions favor a provision to outlaw strikes at harvest time.

REPUBLICAN Assemblyman Robert T. Monagan, almost certain to be elected speaker when the Legislature convenes Jan. 6, said he would support such legislation. But he said it "would have to incorporate absolute no-strike provisions during harvest season."

Assemblyman Alan G. Pattee, Republican chairman of the lower house Agriculture Committee, also indicated he favored a bill along the same lines.

But there was little support for any legislation in the Senate. Among opponents are Senate President Pro Tem Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno, and Sen. Howard Way, R-Exeter, chairman of the upper house Agriculture committee.

DURING the fall election campaign, Burns refused to support the U.S. Senate candidacy of Democrat Alan Cranston because Cranston backed the grape boycott.

Reagan earlier this month said it would be "unwise" to apply labor act provisions to agriculture because "the farmer has very little bargaining power at harvest time and when other critical operations must be performed because of seasonal and weather factors."

Instead, the governor called on voluntary farm organizations such as the Grange and Farm Bureau Federation to establish written codes of conduct urging members to improve the wages and living conditions of farm workers.

He said no new state laws in the farm labor field were necessary because "California already requires more liberal benefits for farm workers than any other state."

Trade Centers to Be Dropped

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Reagan administration made clear Tuesday it intends to go ahead with elimination of world trade centers in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

J. Bryan Sullivan, director of the State Commerce Department, said a series of meetings in recent months made it "abundantly clear to all that the program was not only failing to meet its objectives, but lacked support both in the Legislature and the private sector."

He pointed out that legislation authored by Democratic Assemblyman Robert Crown required the shutdown of the centers.

Bryan also noted that there still will be a California World Trade Authority within the State Commerce Department.

The centers seek to stimulate California trade with other nations, and provide California businessmen with information about foreign sales prospects.

Some businessmen in San Francisco and Los Angeles had protested the closing of the centers.

LBJ Knowledge of Government Impresses Prof

By PEGGY SIMPSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — A history professor who has interviewed scores of President Johnson's associates says what has impressed him most is the chief executive's amazingly detailed knowledge of the government's structure — a knowledge enabling him to get things done.
Dr. Joe Frantz, on leave from his post as chairman of the department of history at the University of Texas, has with a team of four recorded interviews with 150 persons so far, seeking their insights into Johnson.

In his unusual task of recording history orally, Frantz anticipates he may interview another 350 persons about their association with Johnson from the time he entered Congress in 1931 until he leaves the presidency Jan.
20. Those being interviewed include both political allies and opponents.

"THE THING which has been impressive about President Johnson which even his opponents have brought out is his tremendously intimate knowledge of every facet of government," Frantz said.

"They say he has done things no one else knew how to do. For instance, there may appear to be an obstacle somewhere in the government to a project being done. But Johnson knows there is an obscure law, an obscure person, an obscure agency to go to.
Somewhere there is a way to get it done — and he knows where that somewhere is."

Frantz hopes to have ready the first of the taped interviews and transcripts when the Lyndon B. Johnson Library opens in the spring of 1970 in Austin, Tex.

To some extent, a person's job or his relationship with the President determines the content of the interview, Frantz said.

"WITH AN assistant attorney general, you talk about civil rights, with the secretary of the interior you discuss conservation and beautification efforts by both the President and his wife, with James Farley you reminisce, with Sen Carl Hayden you talk about his association with Johnson in the Senate,"

Frantz said.

The subject of the interview may set embargoes on use of the material.
When national security is involved, the Defense of State departments also may be in on the decisions about timing the availability of the interviews.

"What it does is fill in the gaps," Frantz said.
"Documentation about important events is kind of the bare bones. We try to flesh it out."

"MOST PEOPLE at least of our generation, use only the transcripts in current oral history collections. But future generations may be very interested in the tapes. We play with the idea today of whether Abe Lincoln sounded like Raymond Massey or like a dirt farmer down the road. We don't really know. We'll know about these people."

Frantz said he has not talked to the President of his wife yet. "One reason for leaving them until later is educational," he said.
"Any of us on the team could conduct a much more probing interview now than we could have in September when we began."

Magnolia Avenue Renaming Sought

A suggestion that Long number of cities of the gency services was filed Tuesday with the City

mitted by Edward M. Bill, 5520 Orange Ave. Apt. B,

Councilmen referred the

LBJ APPROVAL SEEN

Nixon Gets Job in Time for Raise

By FRANK ELEAZER
WASHINGTON (UPI) —
President-elect Richard M.
Nixon has been all but promised a hefty pay raise even before he starts work.

Those who held out the prospect to him say he grimaced a little, said he didn't need it, but stopped short of turning it down.

The president's pay now is $100,000 a year. He also gets a $50,000 expense allowance. A governmental pay commission has proposed that the salary be raised to $200,000.

Under the Constitution, a president's pay cannot be changed during his four-year term. So Republican congressional leaders have told Nixon they expect President Johnson to recommend enactment of the pay boost — though not necessarily the full amount — as one of his last acts.

THEY said they look for Congress, which convenes Jan. 3, to rush it through before Jan. 20, inauguration day.

"How much are they recommending?" Nixon was said to have asked.

When told the commission's proposal was to double the pay, Nixon screwed up his face in surprise. "That's a lot of money," he was reported to have said. "I don't need it."

House GOP Leader Gar-ald R. Ford explained to Nixon that some increase in the president's pay is almost necessary to accommodate other raises proposed by the commission for almost the whole top level of government, including members of Congress.

The commission, created by Congress last year, was directed to set new salary levels for congressmen, cabinet members, judges and some other high level officials, subject to revision by the President and a possible veto by Congress.

FOR HOUSE and Senate members, it proposed a boost from $30,000 to $50,000 a year. Some members have called this outrageous. Others have predicted that unless Johnson trims it, the increase will be rejected by one house or the other.

The commission had no authority over the president's pay level. However, it said that "to preserve equity" in light of the other increases the president's pay ought to be raised. It recommended that Congress fix it at $200,000.

From Our National Bureau
WASHINGTON — The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Tuesday awarded a $214,014 grant to Long Beach for the city's beautification program.

HUD told Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Long Beach, the total estimate of the program has been increased to $681,420. The federal grants represent 50 per cent of the $428,028 increase over previous sums spent on the program.

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — This gambling mecca of green felt tables and clanging slot machines grew bigger and richer this year. Many observers attribute the boom to the presence of billionaire Howard Hughes.

Comparative figures from 1965 — the year before the shy tycoon moved here — and the end of 1968 reveal strong increases in population, school enrollment and financial activity.

Purchases by Hughes alone have totaled $200 million in Clark County. His first buy was the Desert Inn Hotel, followed by the Sands, Castaways, Silver Slipper, Frontier and Landmark Towers resorts. He also bought a 518-mile ranch near Las Vegas, previously owned some 40 square miles west of town and acquired KLAS-TV from newspaper publisher Hank Greenspun.

HUGHES, who turned 63 Tuesday, also has offered to buy Air West for more than $90 million. Airline stockholders will reach a decision Friday on Hughes' bid to take over the West Coast carrier which serves passengers from Canada to Mexico.

The Hughes Tool Co. also acquired numerous vacant parcels of land on and around the glittering Las Vegas "Strip," announced plans to expand the Sands Hotel to the tune of $150 million and called for establishment of a jet-age airport somewhere near Las Vegas.

Some citizens complain that Hughes is a giant landlord in southern Nevada and that none of the announced plans has materialized. Others contend the Hughes organization depends heavily on long-range planning and that it will take time.

AFTER Hughes arrived on the scene, real estate activity perked up. On the November day in 1966 when Hughes arrived secretly on a chartered train from Boston, the southern Nevada economy was in a painful slump. Today it is not.

Hughes the Fuse for Vegas Boom

HOWARD HUGHES
Catalyst for Economy

Charles Glover of Title Insurance and Trust Co. said total real estate transactions which cleared county financial institutions — excluding cash deals — was $263.5 million in 1965. By December of this year the figure was almost $20 million higher.

All of the Hughes purchases were with cash and were not reflected in real estate dollar volume sales reports issued by financial institutions.

Out-of-state investors became more interested in southern Nevada with the arrival of Hughes, according to Al Levy, owner and president of a realty firm.

"HUGHES is not only responsible for property values increasing from 15 to 35 per cent, causing more inquiries from serious out-of-state investors and generally boosting the economy; but, if he does any kind of new construction that brings in additional people, we will see an increase in the building of homes and apartments," Levy said.

In 1965 southern Nevada overbuilt. The economic squeeze on construction hit the year Hughes took up residency.

The valuation of Clark County building permits issued in 1965 was almost $45 million and similar permits issued by the City of Las Vegas for the same year were $33 million. The following year construction came to a near standstill and apartment houses stood vacant. By the end of November 1968, Clark County permits, had rallied to $32 million and the city issued more than $22 million in building permits.

LEVY SAID apartments now are filled, the slump has passed and the way is clearing for a new high in building.

His observation was echoed during the last political campaign when some county candidates recommended tight rent controls. During the past year, with apartments filled to the brim, rents pushed higher and higher and some apartment dwellers began to invest in private homes.

Norman Kaye, an entertainer and real estate firm owner, put it this way:

"Hughes has revolutionized this town. We have left 'the green felt jungle' era behind and are now in the 'greenback forest.'"

THE CLARK County Bureau of the Budget, also responsible for keeping an estimated census, said the 1965 population of the county was 265,421 with Las Vegas accounting for 132,000. Now the estimated population in Clark County is 302,300 with Las Vegas totaling 153,284.

Harvey Dondero, assistant superintendent of schools for Clark County, says the December enrollment for the school year 1965-66 was 57,666 students in 78 schools. This year December records show 67,695 students attending classes in the county at 87 schools.

Dondero says Hughes' residency contributed to the increase because of the number of persons attracted to southern Nevada since the arrival of the industrialist.

THE NEW residents in southern Nevada have proved to be a talkative bunch. They increased the number of telephones in use from 111,580 in 1965 to 146,576 today. Frank Rogers, vice president of Central Telephone Co., said that in order to keep pace with the growth the firm's gross plant investment jumped from $58.1 million to $75.3 million and would continue to increase.

New Nevadans also have increased the business of Southwest Gas Corp., John Dubois, gas company executive, says. In 1965 there were 1,707 new customers out of a total of 22,511.

"This year we had 2,252 new users with a total of 27,466 being served. Certainly Hughes has had an impact on this area," said Dubois.

Zel Lowman, public relations director for Nevada Power Co., which serves the greatest portion of the county, said there were 70,852 commercial and residential customers in 1965 and 81,312 today.

ALSO, more residents are going into business for themselves. The Clark County Business License Bureau issued about 700 licenses in 1965, excluding gambling licenses. This year the total is expected to pass 1,100.

Total bank deposits in Clark County three years ago were $293 million. At mid-December this year the deposit total was $444.8 million.

The southern Nevada economy also has some good spenders. Ken O'Connell, manager of the Greater Las Vegas Chamber of Commerce, said total taxable sales in 1965 were $562.1 million and predicted at least $700 million by the end of this year.

Denies Slaying of USC Student

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 21-year-old man charged with murder in the knife slaying of a University of Southern California student pleaded innocent Tuesday.

George Williams, 21, was ordered to stand trial Feb. 17.

Williams and two other men charged with the slaying were arraigned before Superior Court Judge William B. Keene. Williams was the only one to enter a plea. He and George W. Jordan, 26, and Douglas L. Turnbeau, 30, were indicted by a county grand jury on Dec. 20.

The USC freshman student killed was Brian G. Clay, 18, whose family lives in Honolulu. The youth had left a fraternity house to get something out of a car when three men surrounded him, witnesses said. Mortally wounded, he staggered into the fraternity house where he died.

Northwest Airlines, Hughes Vie for Air West Control

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Air West President G. Robert Henry said Tuesday he will probably move to adjourn a special stockholders meeting Friday so shareholders can consider competing purchase offers from Howard Hughes and Northwest Airlines.

Northwest announced Tuesday a tender offer of one share of its common stock for every four shares of Air West common stock, joining Hughes and the Mallory Randall Corp. of Brooklyn in competition to buy the recently merged airline.

Henry estimated Northwest's bid as worth about $22 a share.

The Friday meeting has been called to consider the Hughes offer of $22 a share.

MALLORY Randall hasn't formally presented its offer. An effort to put it before the Friday meeting was sidetracked when a quorum failed to show up for a special meeting of Air West directors Dec. 16.

A motion to adjourn the Friday meeting would have to be put to the stockholders. The board has been split on the Hughes offer, with half of the 24 directors favoring it.

It was uncertain what support the Northwest offer has among shareholders.

Henry said that because of the Christmas holidays it would be impossible to call a board meeting before the stockholders' meeting.

Vegas Hotelman Bids for Western Airlines

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Financier Kirk Kerkorian said Tuesday he has secured options on 1,265,000 shares of stock in Western Airlines and plans to seek a position on the airline's board of directors.

Spokesmen for the hotel executive said Kerkorian's would be the largest single block of the 4.8 million outstanding shares of Western.

Kerkorian on Dec. 9 offered $45 a share for up to 1.5 million shares of Western. His offer, which expired last Thursday, drew less than that amount, but represents an investment of about $57 million.

PACIFIC Southwest Airlines, following Kerkorian's offer, had offered to trade 1.8 of its shares for each share of Western stock.

Kerkorian owns the Flamingo Hotel, is building the $50-million International Hotel and has offered to buy the bankrupt meeting or to cancel the Friday session.

HE SAID the Northwest offer was "pretty close" to $22 a share, adding, "I think it's far superior to the Hughes proposal or to the Mallory Randall proposal."

A Hughes spokesman in Las Vegas said the Hughes organization had no advance word of the Northwest bid and would not comment until the terms had been studied.

Northwest President Donald W. Nyrop said in a telegram from the airline's headquarters in Minneapolis: "Northwest Airlines intends to file a registration statement with the Securities Exchange Commission covering this offer."

Henry said a merger of Air West and Northwest would be "an excellent mesh." He noted that Northwest had just been awarded Central Pacific routes through Oakland, San Jose, Ontario and Long Beach — points where Air West also operates.

"THIS would add considerable strength to the Central Pacific award of Northwest and create a tremendous tie in long-haul traffic," he said.

Meanwhile, Air West resumed its normal operating schedule Tuesday after completing safety checks on its 34 F-27 jetprops. The airline had made a limited cutback in service to check the F-27s for possible structural defects.

Air West was formed last April in the merger of three small lines, Pacific, Bonanza and West Coast.

Bonanza Hotel, all in Las Vegas.

The 51-year-old executive became a millionaire as founder of Trans-International Airlines of Oakland, which merged with Transamerica Corp. He sold his stock in the company in March for a reported $114 million.

Kerkorian, in making his offer, said that although he intends to seek representation on the board of Western for the shares required, he does "not presently intend to seek any changes in the executive officers of Western."

HE SAID money to purchase tendered shares would be obtained through a loan from a major U.S. bank.

Western closed at 42 3/4 Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

Kerkorian said he would file with the Securities and Exchange Commission a statement disclosing his options in the airline's stock, which he said includes approximately 186,000 shares issued upon conversion of subordinated debentures of Western.

Western routes go as far east as Minneapolis, north to Canada and Alaska and along the West Coast to Mexico.

Merry Christmas

*We are once again reminded that Christmas is a family day... a day of reunions and feasting, and a day of joyous gifting. But let us not forget, as we fill the stockings and surround the tree with packages, the most important gifts of all
... the gifts that bear neither price tags nor gay wrappings, yet are of infinite value. These are the gifts of kindness, tolerance, consideration and compassion. Let us hope that this Christmas will revive the true spirit of giving that began with the Birth of a Holy Child... to bring peace and good will to all.*

Malnutrition Hits Not Only Poor, U.S. Study Shows

By JACK MILLER
WASHINGTON (AP) — Malnutrition afflicts not just the poor but expectant mothers and teenagers from well-to-do families as well, preliminary government study findings indicate.

Some teen-agers, even those from middle-class families, simply don't eat the right foods, or they go on starvation binges to reduce, according to Dr. Arnold E. Schaefer who is conducting the study for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

He said lack of proper nutrition among expectant mothers and their offspring is one of the most serious problems discovered yet by the study, which is at least a year away from final publication.

THE STUDY, to be based on physical examinations of up to 65,000 people, should "cut out all this criticism" from Congress that the malnutrition problem in America has not been documented, Schaefer said.

The study's first phase — costing $1.5 million — is gathering results from examinations of about 30,000 people.

Findings from Texas and parts of Louisiana, New York and Kentucky are being fed into a computer and the first tabulated results are expected early next month, Schaefer said.

If another $2 million can be wrung from HEW's budget, Schaefer said, another 35,000 people are to be examined beginning early next year in West Virginia, Massachusetts, California, Washington, South Carolina and New York City.

THE STUDY will document malnutrition, not hunger, Schaefer said. "You can't really determine hunger," he said. "Everybody's hungry three times a day or so."

Malnutrition is especially severe among teen-age and poor mothers, some of whom are illiterate and don't know about government food programs available to them, Schaefer said.

He said teen-agers often refuse to eat enough of the right foods, such as

Mafia Book Tells How Our Tax Could Be Cut by 10%

NEW YORK (UPI) — A long-delayed book quoting a Mafia insider says that if organized crime's income were taxed every body else's taxes could be reduced 10 per cent.

A condensation of "The Valachi Papers" in the current Reader's Digest says Cosa Nostra — the insider's name for the Mafia — is still the dominant force in the $40-billion-a-year business of organized crime in the U.S. despite recent revelations of its activities.

"So huge are its profits that if they were reported and taxed this year the nation could have a 10 per cent reduction (in taxes) instead of the present 10 per cent surcharge," said author Peter Maas.

THE book is based on conversations with Joseph Valachi, the informer who testified about Mafia activities before a crime commission in 1963 and introduced the term Cosa Nostra to the general public.

Maas, a frequent writer on mob activities, says

BEE-LINE TO CARETAKER Elephant Kathy Runs for Help in Yule Fire

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) — 'Twas two night before Christmas and all through Larry Dorland's house not a creature was stirring except Kathy Sh-Boom, a one-tone elephant who was banging at the door.

Dorland, caretaker at the Naibi Zoo, leaped to the window and found himself staring at the shaggy-eared, 4 year-old elephant which usually is penned a quarter-mile from Dorland's house.

Dorland led Kathy Sh-Boom back to the elephant compound and discovered a fire had broken out in an adjacent furnace room.

Kathy had opened a 30-inch door and wiggled her 40-inch-wide body through it to reach the furnace room, then opened another door to escape the heat.

Once outside, the elephant headed straight for the caretaker's house.

Firemen extinguished the blaze which caused $1,000 damage. Kathy singed an ear where she brushed the furnace, which makes her Kathy, the red-eared elephant.

leafy vegetables or fruit juices, and "if they refuse to drink milk, then you've got real trouble."

The study also is turning up considerable iron deficiency anemia and some cases of goiter "which we were supposed to have eradicated 30 years ago," Schaefer said. He said the goiter problem could be eliminated if all states required salt to be iodized.

CONGRESSIONAL criticism that the problem has not been documented developed after a report titled "Hunger U.S.A.," claiming widespread hunger and malnutrition in the country, was published last April by a group called The Citizens Board of Inquiry.

The Poor People's Campaign in Washington at about the same time was claiming existence of widespread hunger in the country.

Schaefer suggested both events gave support to solving the problem.

A former Department of Agriculture employee, Schaefer has been studying malnutrition for years. And until last April, he said, "nobody paid much attention to us."

The book says Carlos Marcello of New Orleans is as powerful a figure as most of the "directors," though not formally a member of the board.

Bonanno has been deposed since the book was written.

POST OFFICE DELIVERS RECORD MAIL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Post Office Department reported Tuesday only a few scattered problems, none of them major, in its work of getting holiday mail delivered by Christmas Eve.

Postmaster General W. Marvin Watson said preliminary figures showed that some several billion pieces of mail were moved from Dec. 1 to Christmas Eve, about four per cent more than during the same period last year.

Watson said that the higher volume was delivered at less cost than during the month of December 1967 because of more effective scheduling of employees.

"Our career postal employees were better able to work at peak efficiency and this is the main reason for any savings that will accrue," Watson said. Problem areas included the upper Midwest with deep snow hampering mail delivery, very heavy mail in metropolitan New York City, and flu absenteeism in Southern California.

Organizational Problems, Intraparty Splits Face Both GOP, Demos in House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican successes in the November elections have mounted organizational problems for Republicans and Democrats alike in the House.

The problems could cause serious intraparty splits in caucuses set for Jan. 2, the day before the new Congress convenes.

Republicans have a major leadership position to fill at their party huddle. It was caused by selection of Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin to be secretary of defense in the Nixon cabinet.

Democrats face scraps as well as a now-minor revolt against the present leadership.

Two members have announced their candidacies to replace Laird as chairman of the Republican Conference, or caucus. They are Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois, whose backers claim more than enough votes to put him across, and Rep. Albert H. Quie of Minnesota.

Several others may enter the contest, which will be decided by secret ballot.

Should Anderson win, there may be a move to replace Rep. Leslie C. Arends of Illinois as Republican whip. The argument against Arends would be that Illinois should not be given two top leadership posts.

No one has announced his opposition to Arends who have survived past attempts to oust him from the job he has held for years.

Organizational problems facing the Democratic caucus center around a move to replace John W. McCormack of Massachusetts as speaker. The movement is being led by Rep. Brock Adams of Washington, who says the party needs younger and more vigorous leadership in the House.

While Adams, who has been conducting a poll of colleagues, claims sentiment for a change "is very close," no one has been named as having the votes and the popularity to wage a successful fight against McCormack.

"There's going to be a nomination against McCormack," Adams told a reporter. "There is no agreement on who it will be."

Spokesmen for the Democratic Study Group, composed of moderate and liberal members claiming a membership of up to 140, are more concerned about changing party rules.

The DSG wants to change the method of selecting and promoting members of legislative committees. They don't think seniority should be the controlling factor which it traditionally has been.

The study group has called a meeting for Jan. 1 to map proposals for presentation to the caucus the following day. Its leaders expect McCormack to agree to some of their proposals.

Democrats face a fight also over selection of a candidate for clerk of the House. The job now is held by Pat Jennings of Virginia, who replaced Ralph Roberts of Indiana two years ago. Roberts is conducting an aggressive campaign to regain the job.

Machine Proves Too Much for Author MacDonald

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — A man in Sarasota is suffering. He claims a thinking machine can do things with a credit card account — namely, his — that make Poe's "Pit and Pendulum" seem as mild as a diaper rash.

In fact, Travis McGee, fictional character in mystery novels written by John D. MacDonald, may soon have a new obstacle thrown in his path — a credit card and the ever-present computer.

The background for such a novel may well be included among the many documents on file in federal court here in a suit by MacDonald against American Express Co.

MacDonald has accused the credit card company of malicious defamation and breach of contract and asks for more than $600,000 for compensatory and punitive damages.

MacDonald contends the firm started making errors in his account in December 1967, when it wrongly billed him $7.20 for gasoline. Things kept going wrong, he claimed, until the crowning indignity: the company terminated his credit card privileges and told a travel agency last August it would not pay for airline tickets MacDonald had purchased because his account was closed.

During the ensuing months, the articulate MacDonald carried on an exchange of oft-time witty correspondence with various company customer representatives, berating the computer system of billing and calling for action to correct the ever-worsening situation.

IN ONE INSTANCE he wrote that his bill involved a duplicate charge and said he feared that by sending the bill through his bank for partial payment of the correct portion "we will be forever trying to get it all straightened out."

"Thus, I am sending it all back to you with the urgent request that you have the errors corrected, and that you return a correct billing to me and this time see if someone can manage to correct a billing without them sending it back with past due stamped on it," he wrote.

"It is not my fault it is past due, or will be by the time you straighten it out," he wrote.

In return, he got a notice that the credit adjustment would show up on "your next statement, or the following one."

"You are proving my long-standing contention that most people are either unable to read and comprehend a letter, or become utterly befuddled when more than one subject is mentioned in a letter," MacDonald retorted in a letter of reply.

"Surely you must have had my April 30th letter in front of you when you wrote your response," he wrote. "Here is another copy. Please read it. By doing half a job instead of the whole job you waste your time and mine."

A MONTH LATER MacDonald heard from a different customer representative, this one advising him his account was overdue and "despite reminders, we don't seem to have heard from you about it."

"We are not, however, infallible — and I am stepping into the picture now because it is possible that we have overlooked something you have told us in previous correspondence, or, we may have misunderstood some of your instructions, complaints or explanation," the representative wrote.

"Whether or not my account is past due, sir, is a matter of interpretation," MacDonald answered on July 6. "At least I have had no such notifications from your establishments. And you have heard from me."

"Ah, yes, you have heard from me time and again, a detail which may have the great machine overlooked when it upchucked my card into your 'in' basket."

"I would be bedazzled, humbled and grateful indeed if you would inspect the attached copies of certain documents and not only write me a prompt, personal, thorough and thoughtful answer, but also unravel and eliminate the ancient, unadjusted, semicorrected charge of $7.20, dating back, so help us all, to December of 1967," MacDonald wrote.

THEN, according to documents filed with the suit, a third customer representative joined in the exchange of letters on July 23 in a new effort to straighten out the account.

Three days later MacDonald approved payment through his bank of all but the disputed $7.20.

But before the bank could act, in came a new bill complete with the disputed charges and an added charge for being delinquent.

"It is really very disheartening, infuriating, distasteful and seventeen other similar words to find that there seems to be absolutely no coordination or cooperation between customer representative and the damned automatic machinery," MacDonald fired back.

"Can you not find some way to turn them off?"

MacDonald noted that in the many novels he had written, his character Travis McGee had been through many tough times.

"It is often very difficult to dream up brand new torments and handicaps for a fictional character soon to appear in this tenth book. I now realize that I have been overlooking an affliction which perhaps even Mr. McGee might not be able to overcome," he said.

He said he may give McGee a credit card in his next novel.

"It would make Poe's bit about the pit and the pendulum look no more distressing than diaper rash," he said.

BUT ON AUG. 14, the crowning blow to MacDonald's way of thinking came when two letters were written by company employees — one from a customer representative telling him everything would be straightened out on the following billing; the second from the collection department terminating credit card service.

Back went heated letters to both advising them to "take a look at your stupid letters which arrived together in today's mail."

MacDonald called the lengthy matter "idiotic, inefficient, and asinine" and demanded a letter of apology and correction with copies to his bank and assurance that there would be no blemish on his credit record.

That was on Aug. 17.

On Aug. 20 the travel agency notified him his charge for the airlines tickets had bounced, and MacDonald sued.

No trial date has been set but depositions are being taken now by attorneys in the case.

But, on a motion by American Express attorneys, the court has ordered the depositions be kept as confidential material until heard in open court, or until the court releases them.

GYNECOLOGIST SAYS:

'Pill' Turns Some Mates Impotent

NEW YORK (UPI) — Birth control pills taken by women are having an adverse affect on their husbands, making some of them impotent and causing other problems, a gynecologist says.

"The pill apparently was responsible for marital difficulties, not because of an effect on the wife, but because of a change in the husband's attitude," Dr. Robert W. Kistner of the Harvard Medical School writes in the current issue of the Ladies Home Journal.

Kistner quotes a Chicago psychiatrist, Dr. M. J. Meldman, as speculating "that the liberating effect of the pill on the wife evokes all the latent emotional and sexual immaturity in the husband, once he is faced with real demands on his sexuality."

"Wives have complained to me about their impotent husbands who developed this difficulty only after they started on the pills."

"APPARENTLY," Kistner concludes, "some husbands are pleased when their wife refuses to have intercourse. The husband suggests sex, becomes aggressive, complains when his wife is unwilling but is secretly pleased and possibly relieved when she is disinterested."

"Combining the problems of stress with excessive smoking, overindulgence in alcohol and the use of certain drugs such as amphetamines, the American male is lucky if he can become aroused at all."

Kistner adds, however, that only a minority of American husbands are "mentally and physically spent and in no mood to satisfy" pill-taking wives.

"The pill poses a problem for only a minority of husbands and even then it exposes only those problems that were latent in the marriage," Kistner says.

CHRISTMAS CHEER IN VIETNAM Cards Delight Servicemen

By BUCK LANIER
Military Affairs Editor
LIA KHE, Vietnam — Proud and delighted, Long Beach-area servicemen in Vietnam and Thailand took time Christmas Eve to count the many expressions of good will received in their mail — all unsolicited.

Their names had been turned over to the Independent, Press-Telegram in response to the Christmas mail-for-servicemen promotion.

Greeting included cards, letters and packages. One man even received a $5 bill, another a pint of Scotch and many packaged goodies. Some of them:

In Lia Khe, 40 miles from Saigon, Army Pfc. Randy Gillott, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gillot, 2236 Spaulding Ave., Long Beach, was amazed at the 31 pieces of mail he received from strangers.

"It's great to know the folks back home are thinking of us," he said. "Gillott, an engineer with the 1st Engineers, 1st Infantry Division (Big Red 1), wants to become a 'tunnel rat' instead of 'doing all this building.'"

"Another GI from Long Beach, Pfc. Barry Wilson, has received 35 letters and cards. He said, 'This is good . . . it sure surprised me and now my buddies allow I'm from a pretty good town.'"

"He is the son of Mrs. Eleanor Diaz, 718 Walnut Ave., and is the second oldest of 11 children. His unit is in Dong Tam near Saigon's rocket belt."

"S/Sgt. Dean C. Phillips, chief engineering NCO for the Long Binh Army Base post command, has logged 87 cards and letters."

"I'M GOING to try to answer each one personally," he said. Phillips' mother is Mrs. Charles Corey, 22411 Anza Ave., Torrance.

The maintenance and plans office at Long Binh was the Army jackpot, though. Maj. Bob Epps received 208 pieces of mail, including some "great packages."

He said he "was sure" his folks (Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Epps, 3217 Eckleson Ave., Lakewood) sent his name in.

"All of the messages were sincere and expressed genuine concern for us over here. The men in the office were really impressed, too. They offered to help in acknowledging," he said, "for they helped me eat the great cakes, cookies, candies and fruit."

LONG BEACH'S battleship New Jersey received over 10,000 greetings from well-wishers over the nation — all strangers to Big J's men.

The ship reported these four recipients of Long Beach-area mail:

Signalman 2.c. Robert J. Williams, 125 E. Eagle St., Long Beach, 29 cards, letters, "never thought strangers would respond like this in sending servicemen season's greetings."

Signalman 3.c. Robert

Shepard, Brooklyn, 37 letters — "I love this mail but I am going to be slow answering."

Signalman Seaman Robert Aten, Manassas, N.J., 51 cards, letters, plus a package — "A pleasure to hear from people I have never met . . . something I did not expect."

SEAMAN James Ryan, Slingerlands, N.Y., 58 cards, 32 letters — "I hope to find time to answer them all but do plan on keeping up a regular correspondence with a girl from Huntington Beach . . . one of the first letters I got."

From below the sea the submarine USS Bonefish said Lakewood Seaman Bob Griffith got 25 letters from I.P.T. readers. Griffith, of 6012 Loomis St., said, "Mail calls are a long way apart on a submarine but these batches of mail really have made my Christmas. There are a lot of fine people in my area."

Abnard Long Beach's "one-stop" supply ship, USS Camden, fireman David L. Dooley, 8617 Park Ave., Bellflower,

"liked the idea of getting 32 extra letters for Christmas."

A MYSTIFIED Rockaway Beach, N.Y., airman aboard the Norfolk carrier Intrepid is busy answering 37 letters.

"I don't know how they got my name. I've never lived in California. Messages are from girls, grandmothers and families. I've answered 10 already," Joe Franco said.

A "happy and surprised" seaman in the missile destroyer Towers, P. R. Murdock, received 35 cards. He is from Meriden, Conn., and is "going to answer them all."

On the tank landing ship San Joaquin County, Seaman David Lamb was $5 richer. One of his 44 letters or cards had the bill enclosed. He lives at 5729 California Ave., Long Beach.

"I'M GOING to try to answer all, especially those from school classes, PTA groups and the $5 one," he said.

Seaman Walt Smith on the Long Beach oiler Che-mung said, "It is wonderful people back there take the time. I'm proud of my 14 cards and letters."

"NOEL... NOEL... NOELLLLL"

The USS Snergy, a Long Beach ocean minesweeper, reported electronic technician L.C. Arvin K. Holloway received 19 cards. Holloway said, "I appreciate the efforts of the paper in going to this trouble."

Another Long Beach 'sweep, the Advance, messaged: "Favorable responses from seamen William Hodges, Carl Munson and radioman 2.c. Dennis Simpson on their extra mail."

AIR FORCE personnel in Thailand were not left out. From Ubon, Sgts. Tim Giabb, Tom Carragulla, Bob Miller, John Moore, all from east of the Mississippi, said:

"Among our 60 letters and packages was a great selection of cheeses, pumpkin bread and canned meal. We are going to answer everything, particularly the special card from a Dr. Gonzales. The paper's program is great."

In Vietnam at Phu Cat Air Base, Sgt. David Wilkinson, 3752 Farwood Ave., Long Beach, said: "Getting mail here is one thing you have to look forward to. I really appreciated the 18 cards and letters for they boosted my morale. A number of people even offered to correspond."

At Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Air Base, 62 cards and letters went into S/Sgt. Frank Hoekstra's box. He lives at 6009 Eastbrook Ave., Lakewood.

"IT IS good to know the people back home are thinking about the guys over here. This is a worthwhile program," he said.

The Marines were tough to locate — seven were out in the field in the dangerous I Corps area. Four were on an operation.

MAY NEVER SEE HOME

6 Yanks Languish in China Prisons

By JEFF PRICE
HONG KONG (AP) — There is a street in New Britain, Conn., named for John Downey, but many residents there must wonder who he is.

The street sign stands as one of the few reminders that Downey and five of his lonely compatriots must languish this Christmas in prisons somewhere on the vast mainland of China. Some have little hope of ever seeing home again.

Downey is now 38. He was sentenced to life in prison in 1954 two years after the Chinese Communists shot down a plane in which he was flying from South Korea.

CAPTURED from the same plane was Richard Fecteau, 41, of Lynn, Mass. Fecteau drew a 20-year sentence.

The Chinese charged that both men were making air drops to anti-Communist agents in Manchuria.

The other captives are: Roman Catholic Bishop James E. Walsh, 77, Cumberland, Md., who was sentenced to 20 years in prison on vague espionage charges nine years ago.

Hugh F. Redmond, 49, of Yonkers, N.Y., a businessman in China, who elected to stay after the Communist takeover. He was sentenced to life imprisonment on similar charges 19 years ago.

Capt. Philip E. Smith, an Air Force pilot from Victorville, Calif., who was captured when his plane was shot down after it strayed over Red China's Hainan Island off the south coast in 1965.

Lt. Robert J. Flynn, a Navy pilot from Houston, Minn., who was shot down over Kwangsi Province when he accidentally flew over China in 1967.

The last two were on missions over North Vietnam when their planes strayed into Communist Chinese air space. American government officials in Hong Kong say they do not believe the two have been tried or sentenced. A SMALL piece of evidence that all are still living comes from the International Red Cross, which maintains a semblance of communication with the prisoners through two 10-pound packages that are handed over to Chinese authorities at the Hong Kong-China border for prisoners once a month.

The men's despair may have been best expressed by Bishop Walsh in 1961 when he told his visiting brother in Shanghai: "We will meet in heaven."

Bishop Walsh has been confined to a hospital bed since 1962.

Downey and Redmond have also seen relatives in the past, but it is unlikely that any of the prisoners will be permitted visitors from America under present political conditions.

MARY DOWNEY traveled from New Britain in 1962 to see her son in a Peking prison and Mrs. Ruth F. Redmond went to China from Yonkers to visit her son in a Shanghai prison in 1963.

Fecteau has not seen any relatives since his imprisonment 16 years ago in Peking. He may be the first of the six to leave China. His sentence will be completed in 1972, but whether the Communists will release him then is a matter for conjecture.

Smith and Flynn were captured after Chinese-U.S. relations deteriorated further because of the war in Vietnam. It is unlikely that the Communists would entertain special requests from two soldiers of the Vietnam war.

The prisoners are not forced to do hard labor, and they are believed to be fed better than the average Chinese.

That the men are so relatively unknown must be attributed largely to the fact that diplomatic communications between their country and that of their captors is infrequent and usually fruitless.

Viet GIs Queue Up to Phone Home

SAIGON (UPI) — They stood in line up to five hours, these war-weary GIs, for a brief chance to say "Hi, Mom, Merry Christmas."

Hundreds of American soldiers, Marines and navy-men made transoceanic phone calls, limited to three minutes each, as their way of sending holiday greetings and best wishes to the States.

The calls, placed at the USO lounge in Saigon, are inevitably filled with words of emotion, reassurance, greetings and queries about things back home.

The waiting in line, an integral part of military life, has become one of the happier times of Christmas for GIs in South Vietnam, along with eating fruit cakes from home, receiving homemade cookies and candy at military hospitals near the front, and opening cards and letters flown in from America.

This year there was something special for servicemen in Saigon: a six-mile long Christmas card assembled by a California newspaper, the Hayward Daily Review, for U.S. troops.

Thirty-eight pounds of the letter was unrolled across the floor, draped on tables and chairs, and pinned to the walls in a conference room at the U.S. Advisory group headquarters here.

The card was made up of hundreds of cards and letters from well-wishers around the United States, and included greetings from Dean Martin, Bob Hope, Jimmy Durante and Jerry Lewis.

The men of the advisory group say they will try to answer many of the letters, especially, according to Lt. Chester Brown of Decatur, Ill., the "cute ones . . . the cute 21- and 22-year-olds." For GIs and officers elsewhere in the war-torn land there were no six-mile cards, but there were greetings nevertheless, as Maj. Glenn Peters of Fayetteville, N.C. found out.

In disappointed jest, he had told Pfc. Allen Johnson of Kingston, Ill., "If I don't get a letter today, you'd better write me one."

Johnson took the major at his word, but also wrote to his girlfriend back in Illinois and asked her to write a letter to the major.

A few days later the 1st Infantry Division officer was swamped with cards, letters and notes from students and teachers at the school where Johnson's friend, Jean Janicki, teaches.

Pfc. John Crabb, Long Beach, reported 17 pieces of mail.

"Something to make Christmas a little better over here," he said.

Prize Home Yule Sets Worth Seeing

By FRED HAMLIN
Staff Writer

Reverence, imagination and tradition — with an occasional "mod" version of folklore — keynote home decoration displays throughout the Long Beach area.

Some won high honors for their artistic designer-building crews, but all help spread a warm glow of "Christmas-present" over the Yuletide scene.

Among the best for passersby to view, whether by day's light or after the sun has set, are those which took division awards in the I.B. Jaycees' 1968 lighting contest, including:

Outdoor Lighting — A reindeer-dominated scene with a mantle of imitation snow at the Ambrose Fortna residence, 2236 Golden Ave.

Novelty — Impish leprechauns — or maybe overworked elves — "helping" Santa Claus make his world-around trip, in a clever scene at the Perrin Lindress residence, 1800 College Circle.

MALCOLM EPLEY

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

It's my wish for all readers; for all who have helped make it another good Beach Combing year; for everybody else, for that matter.

Now hoary with age, as columns go (its B-C's 20th Christmas) there's deep gratitude here for the friendly interest of thousands for this favored spot in the paper held for so long; for a community that sparkles with interesting facets that make columnizing here a challenge and a pleasure.

THIS is the prime day for nostalgia. Memories and sentiment are at flood tide.

I never set up our tree without a tender thought for the first Christmas tree I remember. My mother fashioned it, using white cloth strips and cotton wrapped on a bare branch from a shade tree in the yard. Evergreen trees were scarce in Nebraska, and the cost of those available no doubt was beyond our family means.

And when I plug in the lights, I remember the red, white and green candles on the trees of my childhood. How did we survive that fire hazard?

I could go on and on. But enough. Each has his own.

GUESTS at Dave Tallichet's appreciation luncheon (for harbor people, etc.) at the Reef Restaurant took on all the fine food and drink appreciatively enough, but raised quizzical eyebrows when they sampled the dessert.

Topping on the mound of pear and ice cream turned out to be steak sauce instead of the intended chocolate syrup. Reef Mgr. Ralph Fulton saw the eyebrows, tasted the dessert and raced for the kitchen. At 11 dessert consumption stopped until a switch was made.

HIPPIE-looking people aren't all out of this world. Under an unkempt exterior may beat a heart warmer than that of some better-groomed type.

That was demonstrated to Dick Major of the city's civil defense office this week.

A fellow with long hair and beard came into the office with a package under his arm. Major glanced at it a little apprehensively.

"It's a turkey," said the visitor. "My boss gave it to me. I want it to go to some needy family."

Major shook the guy's hand and called the Salvation Army.

DRIFTWOOD — Herb Shannon was watching those pictures of the earth taken by the astronauts. "Wave," he said to his companions, "you're on TV." Jim Gordon was talking to a florist the other cold morning, who reported the temperature in his shop was 45 degrees, that in his refrigerator 55. . . . And Al Posner opines that the astronauts got fabulous Christmas presents "in fact, they're out of this world."

My little piece the other day about the psychosomatic aspects of Hong Kong flue got varied reactions. People who haven't had the flu liked it, those who had it when they read it were sore. "When you get yours, I hope it's a dandy," said one hoarse voice calling on the telephone. . . . On a cold day at the downtown Animal Fair, Santa Claus suddenly found his leg warm — and also wet. He judiciously removed the 2-year-old from his lap and set her on the floor.

56 New Employees for Court

From Our L.A. Bureau

Campus disorders, a shift in prosecutions of dangerous drug cases and a 25 per cent increase in the juvenile court workload prompted County Supervisors Tuesday to approve 56 more court employees at a cost of $354,037.

Chief Administrative Officer Lindon S. Hollinger said the cost of the new jobs will have to be financed by a budget adjustment at a later date.

Hollinger said 24 of the new employees will be assigned to the district attorney, 19 to the public defender, nine to the county clerk and four to the Superior Courts.

Supervisors slammed the door on the Probation Officers Union, which had asked for additional help in the face of mounting caseloads.

Ralph Merula, representing the union, said the need was immediate.

But Hollinger said the county recently added 194 new posts in the department, and he doubted additional deputies could be recruited even if the job positions were created.

CITY RENEWS EDISON PACT

A five-year renewal of the contract with Southern California Edison Co. for furnishing electric service and energy to the city was approved Tuesday by the City Council.

The contract, effective Jan. 1, basically provides that the Edison Co. will furnish all required electric service and energy, and that the city will pay prevailing rates authorized by the State Public Utilities Commission.

The city's electric bill runs approximately $1 million a year.

'JOY TO WORLD'

Spirit of Giving Pervades Area

By WALT MURRAY

Eighty-three-year-old Daniel Martin baked 35 pounds of Christmas cookies on the tiny stove in his Bellflower trailer, wrapped them in packages and brought them to friends who work at a nearby drugstore.

Off-duty Long Beach city firemen spread across the city to deliver 60 Christmas baskets of food and toys to families with barren cupboards.

Individuals acting alone — and hundreds coordinating their efforts in projects that were months in preparation — spread Christmas joy across the Southland Tuesday.

AND THAT WAS JUST THE BEGINNING.

Today, when downtown cash registers are silent, gifts will be exchanged, dinner parties will be held for the underprivileged young and the lonely elderly, and — private and public welfare agencies hope — no one will be forgotten this Christmas Day, 1968.

Airport Reversal Motion Postponed

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

A motion by Councilman William A. Graham that the city reverse itself and ask to be removed as a "hyphenated" terminal with Los Angeles International Airport failed Tuesday for want of a second.

Other councilmen seemed influenced by the fact three of their number were absent because of illness, and by a desire to await the city manager's report next month on a study of Long Beach Airport.

Vice Mayor Robert F. Crow noted two of the absentees, Mayor Edwin W. Wade and Councilman Dr. Thomas J. Clark, represent a large part of the area around Long Beach Airport.

"Peculiarly enough, it was Mayor Wade who suggested this motion," said Graham.

"Peculiarly enough, I had a conversation yesterday afternoon with Mayor Wade, and he didn't say anything about such a motion," responded Crow. "He agreed with me that it should await a full council."

Crow, who was presiding, then asked several times if there was a second to Graham's motion, but got no response.

The discussion came up following receipt of more letters opposing further expansion of commercial activities at the airport, and the appearance of two persons on the same subject.

Graham said he is "still concerned" about the approximately 17 air lines whose certificates list Long Beach as a hyphenated terminal with Los Angeles International Airport and who could choose to begin operations at the local field.

It's Home Holiday—for Most, That Is

By STAN LEPPARD

Christmas is a home day. On the Fourth of July, Memorial Day, Labor Day — people get out of town. Gleeefully.

Even on Thanksgiving, it's over the freeway and through the smog to grandmother's house we go. But Christmas is a home day. Everybody celebrates the joyous Yule with the family—everybody has the day off.

Well, almost everybody. There are a few working.

Such as the police and other law enforcement agencies, working harder than usual operating checkpoints that result in a few citizens not spending Christmas at home, either.

Firemen will be kept busy by short-circuiting Christmas tree lights or other home crises—such as flaming cherries going from jubilee to a major blaze.

DOCTORS, NURSES, HOSPITAL staffs—already overworked by the Hong Kong flu—and the coroner's staff will work their caseloads increased by people who missed the earlier noted police checkpoints.

Salespeople will work in some stores, as will attendants and mechanics in some service stations.

Restaurant employees will have their hands full. Even though Christmas is a home day, lots of folks don't want to do anything ridiculous, such as cook.

Hotel employees, and plenty of working bartenders as well as liquor clerks — how do you think Christmas gets so merry, anyway, ho-ho-ho? — will labor.

Communications people are on the job, as well as postmen making their appointed rounds — for special delivery mail and holiday routine pickups — that is. Water and power emergency crews are ready for most holiday problems.

Transportation is booming — taxi drivers, bus drivers, airplane drivers, ship drivers — all are busy moving late arrivals in and early departures out. The Weather Bureau is on call.

Ministers and church staffs are on the job in special services, and the Salvation Army people are having a field day operating rescue missions for the less fortunate.

Surely there is a crew of men working some freeway — blocking one lane — through which the greatest flow of traffic is destined to pass.

It's business as usual for the Coast Guard — fish-

Together on an uncertain journey...

THOSE REMARKABLE television images from Apollo 8, out yonder near the moon, show the earth to be quite small, brilliant in its way but seemingly lopsided. Much of it remains dark and mysterious at any instant in time.

And so it is with the human race that dominates the earth, as we ought to acknowledge at Christmas. At the moment our hearts are full of good will for one another. We must hope that such is the natural state of man, the brilliant light on the near side, and that it will prevail on the dark side as well.

THE DARK side is filled with mysterious suspicions, hatreds, aggressions and, through all, clouds of ignorance.

None of these shadowy deeps has been conquered since Christmas of 1967, but they have been exposed to the light from time to time and perhaps some progress has been made in understanding.

In the United States we are struggling toward the realization that this is a period of extraordinarily rapid change. The demands of the young, the black and the poor mirror this sudden acceleration. We have learned to live with confrontations and to realize that our society and our economy will not be the same next year and the year after as they are now.

With this realization, we may hope that we will move more steadily toward harmony and justice.

In foreign affairs, it is worthy of note that the United States has invited the Soviet Union to resume discussions of cultural exchanges, despite a "mourning period" for Czechoslovakia; and a House foreign affairs subcommittee is seeking to improve the U.S. "image" around the world, though it believes this country is still the most popular of the major powers.

Also in world affairs, there can be little doubt that the war in Vietnam is slowly ending and that somehow peace terms will be arranged. Last Christmas no glimmer of peace could be seen. Even the more skeptical agree today that there are many glimmers.

OUR IGNORANCE and our prejudices diminish but slowly. Yet when we can contrive to show a television picture of our world as it appears from the vicinity of the moon, we must have faith in our capacity for unlikely achievements.

When we see our world as it is brought to us, we perceive how tiny it is in the infinity of space. Seeing this, we are reminded that all of us are passengers together on an uncertain journey; and that the times of greatest joy and excitement occur on days such as Christmas when we proclaim our human kinship.

shall love the Lord with all your heart, soul and mind, and your neighbor as yourself.

In "Anti-Memoires," Andre Malraux wrote "Christianity's genius is that the path to the deepest mystery is love which transcends men's emotions like the soul of the world, more powerful than death and justice."

Jesus gave wonderful gifts when he said "God is love" and "The Kingdom of God is within you." Judaism and Christianity teach that one aspect of heaven is the consciousness of perfect love.

St. Paul said that love encompasses patience, kindness, humility, generosity, forgiveness, modesty, innocence, endurance and truth.

Our Christmas wish is that you shall radiate love and exemplify St. Paul's promise: "Christ in you, the hope of Glory." — Virginia Kelly.

The miracle of this day told again

NOW WHEN Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, Saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him.

When Herod the king had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him.

"KING OF the Jews, you say?" said Herod, staring coldly at the three Wise Men standing before him. "Is that why you would worship him?"

"No, your highness," said one. "It is because of the miraculous gift he brings — the greatest miracle of all."

"The age of miracles has passed," said Herod. "Tell me about this supposed miracle."

"He will go forth among men, teaching them peace and brotherhood," said the second. "He will tell them to turn aside from wealth and to love even their enemies."

"Any fool can talk about peace and brotherhood," said Herod. "That's no miracle. If the people listened to such twaddle, that would be a miracle."

"The people will come to worship him," said the third Wise Man, "and will build costly temples in his honor throughout the known world and worlds yet unknown."

"Still no miracle," said Herod. "People are always building temples to this god or that. And it's no miracle if one sect happens to triumph over the others. I suppose there will be battles?"

"Yes," conceded the first Wise Man sadly. "Those who worship him as The Prince of Peace will slaughter, rape and pillage in his name for centuries yet to come. His followers will grow rich and struggle for temporal power — all in his name."

"You call that a miracle?" said Herod. "He preaches love and poverty and his supposed followers practice hate and greed. Far from being a miracle that is precisely what I would expect of the miserable human race. Hypocrites, all."

"But wait, your highness," said the second Wise Man. "On one day each year in the millennium to come, the world will celebrate his birth."

"The world celebrates the birth of emperors and kings," said Herod. "That's no miracle."

"And on this one day each year," said the third, "his followers will give of their wealth to each other and love their neighbors and lay aside their arms in war. Brotherhood and joy shall fill their hearts on this one day each year."

"You might call that a miracle," said Herod. "But if men can be saints one day each year, it only emphasizes what hypocrites they are on all the other days of the year. And that would be no miracle."

"No, sire," agreed the first Wise Man. "But all men yearn to be saints, even though most men fail. And therein lies the miraculous gift of this day that will sustain men in the ages yet to come."

"What gift?" said Herod frowning. "Hope," said the three Wise Men simply.

THEN Herod, when he saw that he was mocked of the wise men, was exceeding wrath, and sent forth, and slew all the children that were in Bethlehem, and in all the coasts thereof, from two years old and under.

Yet, lo, the hope survived.

Will the "hippie" look be "in" next year, or "out"? (Asked at Locust Avenue and Fifth Street).

AL SMITH, parking lot operator, Long Beach: Golly, I don't know. I know one thing—I don't think much of it.

LOIS FAIR, housewife, Long Beach: I hope it's out. I don't care for it.

KATHY KNAUFF, student, Poly High School: Oh, out — definitely so. Because there are hardly any people left wearing those things. The ones still wearing hippie clothes are just a bunch of ninth graders trying to look big.

The real spirit of Christmas

(Reprinted by Request)

EVERYONE says that what is wrong with Christmas is that it is "too commercial" — but that is not the trouble. What is wrong with Christmas is that it is "too spiritual" — in the wrong way. The commercial aspect of Christmas can easily be ignored or repudiated by anyone who wants to take this holiday seriously. But the false "spiritual" aspect is harder to separate from the true message.

The three wise men, and the star of Bethlehem, and the babe in the manger, and the mystery and the miracle — all these make it tempting and easy for us to forget what the whole story is about. And the whole story — the whole message of the whole messiahship — can be summed up in two sentences from Jesus' own lips:

"If anyone says 'I love God,' and hates his brother, he is a liar." (1 John 4:20).

"Inasmuch as you did it to one of the least of my brethren, you did it unto Me." (Matthew 25:40).

This is what Christmas — the mass of Christ — must mean, if it is to mean anything. If it does not mean this to us, then what we worship is superstition and idolatry. You cannot love God without loving every fellow creature He made; and an act of contempt or rejection or injustice or neglect toward the least — the lowest, the poorest, the weakest, the dumbest — is an act against Him. If Christianity does not mean this, it means nothing. If this central fact is ignored or slurred or rationalized away, the whole structure of Christianity falls apart, and we are left with nothing but another primitive "magic" religion.

And it is not the impious, the pagans and unbelievers, who must be most on guard against forgetting this message. It is the believers, the "spiritual" people, who mistake form for substance, prayers for performance, worship for practice. For Christianity is not a "spiritual" religion, like some religions of the East. It is an intensely "practical" religion, having its moral roots in the practicality of Judaism. It was not designed to change the way men think or believe as much as to change the way they act.

It is easy to think Christmas, and easy to believe Christmas; but it is hard — sometimes intolerably hard — to act Christmas. It is not our false commercialism that prevents it, but our false spirituality. Not the clang of the cash register, but the jingle of bells, calling us to sentimentality, and seducing us from the grim, patient, year-around task of brotherhood.

A slim vote for optimism

New York Times Service

EDGARTOWN, Mass. — Where do we stand at the end of this agonizing year? The pessimists see the nation standing at the twilight of night; the optimists see it standing at the twilight of morning; but what is the outlook for the children, singing the lovely Christmas anthems of peace and reconciliation here in this lovely sea-girt town?

The facts for the moment seem to be with the pessimists, but the tendencies of history for the longer future are probably with the optimists. The young men die in Vietnam while the old men wrangle in Paris — that is the depressing fact — but the turn away from violence has been made: it will take a long time to roll up the barbed wire, but the tendency is toward peace.

IT IS, of course, a matter of opinion, but even at home we may have made the turn — without quite knowing it — toward reconciliation. The evidence is not yet in the headlines, but the American people have drifted just far enough out into dangerous waters in this last year to glimpse the terrible consequences of division, and have, I believe, begun at least to pause and turn back.

There is some hope at the end of the year for progress in the control of arms — which is the key to the domestic budgets in all the major states. There is movement toward unification of Western Europe, despite President De Gaulle. There is progress toward world monetary reform, after the alarms of 1968. And even in the Middle East — probably the most dangerous spot in the world today — there is a balance of power and a realization in both Moscow and Washington that the situation must be controlled.

The news of contention, dissent, and violence in the world does not tell the whole story. There is still in this country a vast reservoir of tolerance, good temper, and sympathy among the people. It is seldom in the headlines, but it is there, and in the end it may very well prevail over the forces on the extremes shouting for blood.

Nobody could accuse Gunnar Myrdal, the Swedish scholar, of being a Pollyanna about America. He has been studying our racial tensions for two generations and is certainly one of our most severe critics about the problems of Vietnam and the American cities.

YET, ON balance, he comes down on the side of the optimists. "There is no country on earth," he told J. Robert Moskin, the foreign editor of Look Magazine, "which has more of a common, explicit ideology — more of a common explicit morality, I might say. This is the old Enlightenment ideal: dignity of the human individual, justice between people, liberty, equality of opportunity and brotherhood."

"You could write an American history which was just a history of violence, corruption, of evilness. That type of American history is now becoming quite popular in the rest of the world because of the Vietnam war and other things. But American history, as I see it, is that, in spite of serious setbacks, the trend is toward a gradual, ever-better fulfillment of these ideals."

Jean Monnet, another thoughtful European, has been in this country recently, talking to the leaders of the Johnson and Nixon administrations, and he, too, has gone home believing, not that we are going into a tranquil period, not even that we are going to master our problems, but that we are going to control war and inflation and racial tensions and gradually make our way toward a more decent and unified world.

This of course may not be right, but Monnet, like Myrdal, sees the conflict between facts and tendencies and believes the latter are more important. Myrdal puts it this way:

"Americans, for the time being, are moving to the right, which means away from the American ideals. You might say America is a conservative country but what you have conserved very often are liberal ideals, and now you have been moving away from them. You are dissatisfied, frustrated. This is what I see in the American nation now. I believe this is temporary. This is the reason I am not pessimistic about America."

Richard Nixon, since his election to the presidency, is a fairly good illustration of the point. He is not rushing to the right; he is not even talking like the Nixon of the campaign; he is conserving the liberal policies and even hiring some of the liberal spokesmen, who have opposed him in the past.

MOREOVER THE reaction in the country to this, while not pleasing to the people on the extreme right and left and certainly not to the very poor and the blacks, is on the whole favorable. The scope of the problems abroad and at home is still much wider and deeper than the policies of the new or the old administrations for dealing with them, but they are being actively discussed and the tolerance, good temper, and sympathy of the great majority of the people are important factors in the debate.

It will be a long time before there is peace and goodwill everywhere in the land, but there is enough of it to keep us going in the right direction. Maybe because there was so much violence and ill will in 1968, the fever has reached the crisis point and turned downward. The infection of domination — one group against another — still exists, but the body and spirit of the nation are strong. Otherwise they could not have endured the events of a troubled and depressing year.

Zhivago—a story

By L.A. COLLINS Sr.

MILLIONS of theater goers have enjoyed the popular motion picture "Doctor Zhivago." Because he voiced a faith in Christianity, its author the Russian poet and author, Boris Pasternak, was branded a traitor — his book suppressed in Russia. But later he was awarded the Nobel Prize. It was printed and circulated all around the western world. Some of the excerpts from the book are appropriate for this day as we observe the birth of Christ and Christmas. They are as follows:

"Now what is history? It is the centuries of systematic explorations of the riddle of death, with a view to overcoming death. That's why people discover mathematical infinity and electromagnetic waves, that's why they write symphonies. Now, you can't advance in this direction without a certain faith. You can't make such discoveries without spiritual equipment. And the basic elements of this equipment are in the Gospels. What are they? To begin with, love of one's neighbor, which is the supreme form of vital energy. Once it fills the heart of man it has to overflow and spend itself. And then the two basic ideals of modern man — without them he is unthinkable — the idea of free personality and the idea of life as sacrifice. Mind you all this is still extraordinarily new. There was no history in this sense among the ancients. They had blood and beastliness and cruelty and pockmarked Caligulas who had no idea of how inferior the system of slavery is. They had the boastful dead eternity of bronze monuments and marble columns. It was not until after the coming of Christ that time and man could breathe freely. It was not until after Him that men began to live toward the future. Man does not die in a ditch like a dog — but at home in history, while the work toward the conquest of death is in full swing; he dies sharing in this work . . .

"And then, into this tasteless heap of gold and marble, He came, light and clothed in an aura, emphatically human, deliberately provincial, Galilean, and at that moment gods and nations ceased to be and man came into being — man the carpenter, man the plowman, man the shepherd with his flock of sheep at sunset, man who does not sound in the least proud, man thankfully celebrated in all the cradle songs of mothers and in all the picture galleries of the world over . . .

"Something in the world had changed. Rome was at an end. The reign of numbers was at an end. The duty, imposed by armed force, to live unanimously as a people, as a whole nation, was abolished. Leaders and nations were relegated to the past. They were replaced by the doctrine of individuality and freedom. Individual human life became the life story of God, and its contents filled the vast expanses of the universe."

The attitude of the atheist Communist governments is an example of the wide differences between them and those who have faith in God and the teaching of Him whose birthday is observed today. But there is evidence that many other Russians also believe in the teachings of Him. There is hope that this return to religion will be greatly accelerated in the future. It is the one great weakness of communism and the greatest strength of the free nations.

As we, in this country, observe this day we are the most prosperous people on earth — and we are the most kindly. We owe what we have to the faith of our people — a faith in the teachings of Christ and the adherence to the principles set forth in the Bible. Many of us are not formally religious, but few of us fail to appreciate the goodness of the teachings of our varied religions. The spirit of Christmas and that of "Peace on earth, good will toward men" is found throughout our land. Each of us might well dedicate ourselves to carrying out the spirit of Christmas during all the other days of the year to come.

MEDICINE AND YOU

By BEN ZINSER

Medical-Science Editor

HEALTH experts are becoming concerned about the lack of iron in the American diet.

Two recent reports call attention to the problem.

In Today's Health, a magazine published by the American Medical Association, Dr. Philip L. White, secretary of the AMA's council on foods and nutrition, remarks:

"There are reports that young girls and women consume diets that provide approximately half of their iron requirements."

The AMA and the National Research Council, he says, recommend a daily intake of at least 18 to 20 milligrams of iron. However, the amount of iron available for consumption in the total array of foods on the market is about 10 milligrams for every 2,000 calories.

Women, on the average, consume eight to 12 milligrams a day.

"Thus it is apparent that only about half of the necessary iron is available," he notes.

In another report, this in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition, a doctor states that iron deficiency is common — and "inadequate intake of available iron is the major causative factor."

Part of the problem is due to dieting. Another factor is that modern food handling reduces dirt contamination.

While this "clean" diet may be accepted as a way of life, the report says, its low iron content is not.

The solution is the effective fortification of food with iron, the journal says.

TOWN MEETING

Political ironies

EDITOR:

Every political era produces its own ironies.

Despite the fact that all through the years of Russia's rise, when Democratic administrations were in power, and these administrations introduced and implemented many measures that impeded communism all over the world, as well as here at home, somehow the Democrats found themselves on the defensive on this issue.

"It is difficult to pinpoint reasons for this contradictory situation, but I fear one thing that helped create this phenomenon was that the Republican party, being out of power for so much of this period, found this an everready, handy rallying cry, since they had no more viable criticism.

From FDR, who put the private enterprise system back on its feet after it had fallen flat on its face, through Truman with his Marshall Plan, Point 4 Program, aid to Turkey and Greece, Korea, etc., to Kennedy's eye-to-eyeball stand to Khrushchev and LBJ's Vietnam War, Democratic Presidents have been actively confronting Russia very effectively.

Yet the charge of "soft on Communist" against Democrats is still heard. Republicans are not inhibited, as are Democrats, by a compulsion to reassure the citizenry of their opposition or their awareness of Communist activities.

It is ironical that with Mr. Nixon as president, it is a safe prediction that he will be yielding to America's yearning for peace. Mr. Nixon's administration will be noted for its continuously extending the spirit of mutual co-operation with Russia, in every possible way so that relations, if they won't improve, at least won't get worse.

For this stance, Mr. Nixon will be greeted with nods of approbation. A Democratic president assuming this same position would be finding himself the target of bitter condemnation for dealing with the Russians, who can't be trusted.

Another ironical situation exists here in California. Mr. Reagan, the prior-to-election "citizen politician," is now hailed as a "masterful politician."

If the present campus disturbances were marking the scene of a Democratic State administration, after two years in office, Mr. Brown wouldn't be able to show his face in public.

WASHINGTON — These are days when the goals of Him whose birthday we celebrate are frequently lost in the tinsel and trappings of commercialism; when the chicanery of politics obscures political achievement, when the achievements of international diplomacy get buried among diplomatic failures.

Yet slowly, we do push ahead. There are thousands among us who do strive, against uphill odds and unknown to others, to make the world a better place to live in. You find them in and out of government.

You don't hear much for instance about a grand old lady who's been pushing for better public schools over the years. But President and Mrs. Johnson do know her and made one of their rare personal calls recently on Mrs. Eugene Meyer. She has been plugging for better schools ever since the Eisenhower administration — none too successfully in those days — much more so under Johnson.

AS A tribute, LBJ and Lady Bird brought Mrs. Meyer 60 pens which the President had used to sign all of the 80 education bills passed in the Johnson administration. The President had mounted the pens on a large board under this inscription: "To Agnes Meyer, who helped write the record." Mrs. Meyer's National Committee for support of the Public Schools did much to push these bills through Congress.

You heard a lot about the 200 youngsters from Junior Village who came to the White House for ice cream and cookies and Santa Claus in the state dining room where kings, prime ministers and potentates are wined and dined. This got into the newspapers. But you have not heard much about the many other times when Mrs. Johnson made special trips to Junior Village to cheer up the youngsters who seldom see a parent and who are so hungry for affection that they hugged Sonny Liston's knees and called him "Mommie."

You don't hear much about Quaker relief work anymore. It's got to be commonplace. The new President, Richard Nixon, incidentally, is a Quaker. But if it wasn't for the dedicated, difficult money-raising efforts by the American Friends Service Committee to buy and distribute food to Arab refugees, they would be starving. Many Jews contribute to this program, just as they also contribute to Ira Guilden's great project of Boys Town Jerusalem.

Vice President Humphrey suffered a lot of headaches during his recent defeat and received thousands of letters of condolence. One letter in particular brought joy. It came from a girl in Reading, Mass., who had been rehabilitated by HEW's rehabilitation program and read in part:

"My name is Donna Veno. I am a 19-year-old student from Boston. During your campaign I was a worker for you. I am not writing this letter to tell you how 'sorry I am' or anything of that sort. I am writing this letter to thank you."

"You see, sir, for the first time in my life I was able to be a part of something that mattered. I know that the small part I played was nothing that would move mountains, but it meant a great deal to me. It meant that I was involved in something that meant something . . .

GEORGE ROBESON

With a putt-putt
and a hardy ho-ho

THE MIDNIGHT RIDE of Paul Revere has no edge at all on the Christmas Eve ride of Charles Legeman. Mr. Legeman is a man of many parts. He is an attorney. He is co-owner, with his wife, Grace, of The Docket. (The Docket is an oasis for beaten attorneys which I have mentioned before.)

And, once a year, he is Santa Claus. He is a different sort of Santa, a jet-set Santa, and he rides about the town every December 24 on a mini-bike given to him a few years ago by a client as prepayment on a legal fee. When he rides out on the town, he wears a Santa-suit that set him back about $30. It is complete with beard, fur trim and phony black boot-tops over his white sneakers. It has bells and a tassled hat, but it is the inner Man that makes the Santa, and that is Charles Legeman.

I covered the Legeman tour this year, and saw for myself how he brings warmth and actual joy to the sick and lonely patrons of bars, banks and doctor's offices. He putt-putted into the Broadway Bar, where he distributed lollipops to good little girls and a miniature booze-bottle to two detectives; the V-Room, where a customer commented, "Santa really DOES have a red nose;" the 117 Club, into which a crowd of people followed Santa to collect some candy and then left without drinking.

A NOTABLE EVENT was Santa's visit to the staid First Western Bank on First Street. After distributing the usual lollipops to the good-little-girl tellers, he gave Assistant Manager Hugh Rae a pair of dice, because Rae once had proclaimed himself the world's greatest gambler for losing Legeman some money. Jolly Old Santa, ho-ho-hoing all the way, dropped into the mortgage office where a solemn-faced elderly couple sat. I have no idea what their business was, but they brightened and chuckled when Legeman gave them some candy.

Back on the mini-bike, he headed off two little old ladies on the sidewalk, who promised they would get to bed early so that he wouldn't pass up their apartment. "Ho-ho-ho," said Santa, "I'll be there at midnight." Shame on you, Santa.

Another never-to-be-forgotten event was the visit to the office of Dr. Wesley Rowe (who happens to be the man who has kept me alive all these years, despite my tendency to dissipation). Santa gave candy to all the patients, who suddenly looked much less sick than they did before he roared in, and then went into the examination room to give the good doctor whatever Santa Claus gives to doctors. A nurse had been talking to a patient on the front-office phone and had forgotten all about it during the chaos.

"Oh, yes, where were we?" I heard her say. "Well, not right now . . . you see the doctor is . . . the doctor is talking to . . ." I could understand her hesitancy. How do you tell a patient that the doctor is busy talking to Santa Claus?

THE TOPPER HIT when Legeman returned to his very own saloon, and there sat Llewellyn Bixby, Jr., a member of the Long Beach Board of Harbor Commissioners and former president of that board. Santa reached into his sack for an appropriate gift and found the very thing: a book of matches emblazoned with a "welcome to Long Beach" for the Queen Mary.

"Ho-ho-ho," Santa gasped (for he was fast running out of hardy ho-ho's). "The city and the Harbor Board have committed us all to $17 million for the Queen Mary project and all we have to show for it is a book of matches — her is one for you, little boy."

There was the female mail-carrier, or female mailman-woman, who tried to talk him out of his mini-bike and the Ocean Boulevard construction workers who threw down their tools to wave and shout, and all in all I wouldn't have missed it for the world. Because my 5-year-old asked me the other day if Santa Claus ever visits grownups and now I can say that he does, and he spreads great joy and consternation wherever he goes.

COLOR FINISHING NOTE

When a customer pays several dollars for Kodachrome or Kodacolor Film and processing, he has every right to expect the best in quality finishing. This is particularly true in the many cases when pictures taken on special occasions cannot be retaken. The processing must be right the first time. There is no second chance.

It is for these reasons that we continue to send all Kodachrome and Kodacolor Film to Kodak for processing. We know from experience that we can expect top-quality color processing by Kodak day after day, year after year. It's the surest way we can think of to reach our goal, and yours--customer satisfaction!

animals, placed on white flocking and illuminated by floodlights. Address is 2249 Tulane St.

Religious — A Nativity scene of mural-like quality won the prize for James Farrington of 5449 Anaheim St. This impressive production was accomplished entirely with broken glass.

Although it didn't catch the eyes of the judges, there's a snowman — made of tumbleweeds — that deserves mention and a lot of sightseeing attention. It's at 1133 Cartagena Drive, and is the amusing work of Mary Ann Glavinic plus her six brothers and sisters.

Another unique display, at 1735 W. Canton St., is the work of the Robert and Helen Boyd family. Its dominant feature is a giant lighted star that spreads the Christmas message from on high.

Lakewood also offers scores of eye-filling scenes, including one at the home of Kenneth Koch, 5213 Premiere Ave., which won the sweepstakes award in the annual Jaycee sponsored home decoration contest.

And while you're in that neighborhood, drop over to 4908 Premiere — the Donald R. Taylor residence — to see and admire "Santa's Elves At Play."

NATIVITY SCENE HAS MURAL-LIKE LOOK

The decorators have done themselves proud this year and they hope you'll drop by to enjoy a glimpse — or a good, long look — at their holiday hobby works.

Area Abounds in Yule Spirit

of the most unusual individual efforts in spreading Yuletide cheer.

Employees at the Thrifty Drug Store, 17251 Bellflower Blvd., say Martin began baking Yule cookies for friends more than 10 years ago. The retired engineer, who lives in a small trailer near the store, struck up an acquaintance with employees when he started eating meals at the store fountain.

"He brings in flowers he grows himself," says Richard Romero, a cook. "He never forgets our birthdays. And each Christmas, there are always the cookies."

"He's the sort of guy who brightens everybody's lives," Romero says.

Meanwhile, at the Long Beach Fire Department, fireman Murray Cohn directed the Christmas basket project he's conducted for 19 years.

A fellow fireman, Don Richardson, said the baskets were distributed to the neediest families with the most children.

The Salvation Army was at the center of many Christmas cheer projects.

Capt. Fred Gibson, local commanding officer, said the Army also distributed Christmas baskets of clothing, toys and groceries to needy families.

And it played a major role in the supplying gifts for scores of Christmas parties for needy kids throughout the Southland. Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls, Bluebirds and other young people have been helping to select and wrap the gifts since October.

Citizens Advisor Appointed

Appointment of Msgr. Ernest J. Gualderon, pastor of St. Anthony's Church, to a three-year term on the Citizens Advisory Committee for Community Improvement was confirmed Tuesday by the City Council.

Msgr. Gualderon was appointed by Mayor Edwin W. Wade to succeed to the advisory committee, all for three-year terms, of Hugh Gibbs, Mrs. John Grigsby, Paul F. McKenzie Jr. and Robert Zieg.

LONG BEACH STUDY DUE

L.B. Airport Motion Delayed

he made at prior meetings, that Long Beach Airport not become the "wastebasket" for flights crowded out of Los Angeles.

Such flights, Sullivan contends, would do nothing for the economy of Long Beach, because the passengers merely would deplane here, then be bussed into Los Angeles.

"They aren't worth a nickel to us economically," he said.

Graham agreed the final decision on the future of Long Beach Airport should await City Manager John R. Mansell's submission of the Quinton Engineering Ltd., airport study next month.

Councilman Paul R. Deats also urged a delay until the report is in.

"Had we had more of the facts before us to begin with, we wouldn't be in the dilemma we are today," Deats declared.

In a related action, councilmen were advised by City Attorney Leonard Putnam that the State Public Utilities Commission had, in effect, denied the city's request for a 90-day delay in the pending case on the applications of Pacific Southwest Airlines, Air California and Pacific Air Transport to serve Long Beach Airport.

The PUC ordered all briefs submitted by Dec. 31, which amounted to an extension of about two weeks.

Despite the denial, councilmen unanimously adopted a motion by Deats to ask the PUC to extend the deadline until Feb. 15.

Inasmuch as it seemed unlikely the PUC would grant the additional extension, the effect would probably be that the city will submit no briefs in the pending case of the three lines.

Councilmen also adopted two resolutions, one urging the Southern California Association of Governments to include in its proposed 10-county air traffic study the feasibility of an offshore airport, and the other asking the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors to request SCAG to include the offshore field in its study.

County Says No to Compton Missile Base

County supervisors made it unanimous Tuesday when they voted to tell the Federal government no antiballistics missile base is wanted in Compton.

It was the second time supervisors voted opposition to a missile installation.

Earlier, the board opposed installation of a similar facility at Chell Air Force Depot.

Responding to a request from Supervisor Burton W. Chace, the board voted against a missile site in Compton, and urged the government to consider a less populated area.

ing folks out of the chancel after they decided to make a run to Catalina in new Christmas-present boats without reading the instruction book.

Members of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force are on the job, at home and abroad.

Come to think of it, some ranged even farther — Merry Christmas across newly-tracked miles of bleak space to three guys named Borman, Lovell, Anders . . .

There probably are more people working in other jobs, but we'll hear about them later.

Oh yes — one more. There are also the poor guys who work Christmas Day writing stories about people who have to work on Christmas Day.

City OKs Tideland Excess Gas Sale

An agreement under which excess dry gas from the tideland oil field will be sold to Pacific Lighting Service and Supply Co. was approved Tuesday by the Long Beach City Council.

Earlier this year, the city had contemplated leasing compressor plant and pipeline facilities, and having the Gas Department deliver the excess dry gas to Edison Co. as fuel for electric generation.

City Manager John R. Mansell said it was feared the earlier plan might have limited oil and gas production of the Long Beach Unit, since production would be dependent upon capabilities of the plant facilities.

The new agreement is the result of "many months of consultations and studies," Mansell said.

Rites Set for Union Man Berkson

Services are set Thursday at 3 p.m. in MacDougall Mortuary, Santa Ana, for a 93-year-old man who worked with Samuel Gompers in organizing the early labor movement shortly after the turn of the century.

Abraham Berkson, New York City labor leader for more than 50 years, died Monday night at his daughter's home in Laguna Hills.

The daughter, Miss Florence Berkson, 62, said her father was responsible for the first general strike of garment workers in 1913 in which 150,000 persons walked off their jobs.

The strike brought changes in wages and working conditions.

Berkson retired in 1959 when he and his daughter moved to Laguna Hills.

The labor leader is also survived by a son, Albert, four grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

There's "peace of mind" for all in the pages of the Holy Bible. Follow its teachings for a life of great beauty.

Hearing Scheduled on Peninsula Plan

By BILL MAYER
From Our L.A. Bureau

Residents of the 15.2 square miles of unincorporated territory in the Palos Verdes Peninsula will have a chance Jan. 3 to express their views on a proposed general plan for the area.

The Regional Planning Commission fixed the date at the request of Supervisor Burton Chace. The 7:30 p.m. session will be in the Palos Verdes Central Library, 27650 Deep Valley Drive, Rolling Hills Estates. It will deal with residential building density, location and amount of multiple-residential, commercial and business uses, and recreation and community facilities.

"Major attention will be given to the undeveloped sections of land," Chace said.

Planning Commission staff members said some of their number will be on hand to explain what major interest groups have proposed.

"It is very important," Chace said, "that the community express itself on these planning matters."

The commissioners reported they have completed an inventory of present uses and zones and surveying public opinion, and in time they will come up with a preliminary plan.

They said they will schedule a public hearing at that time.

The unincorporated section of the peninsula is bounded by Rolling Hills Estates, Palos Verdes Estates, Rolling Hills, Los Angeles and the Pacific. Some 35,000 people live there.

Plans for the second reach of the six-mile water pipeline from El Dorado Park to offshore oil Island Bravo were approved Tuesday by the City Council.

The work will involve installation of about 14,250 feet of 21-inch water pipe, and will cost an estimated $260,000. Councilmen authorized advertising for bids on the project.

The second reach will run from Anaheim Street and Clark Avenue to the ocean bluff at Paloma Avenue. It will follow Anaheim Street to Park Avenue, south to 11th Street, west to Obispo Avenue, south to Second Street and west to Paloma Avenue.

A CONTRACT FOR THE first reach, which will run from El Dorado Park to the intersection of Anaheim Street and Clark Avenue was awarded last month to Hood Corp. of Whittier, which bid $212,916. Construction is scheduled to get under way the first week in January.

The third and final reach, which will carry the line under water to the offshore drilling island, is expected to come before the City Council in about two weeks for approval of plans.

All of the work is to be finished and the pipeline is to become operational in April, according to terms of the contracts.

Ultimately the line will carry water from the County Sanitation Districts' treatment plant at the southerly tip of El Dorado Park East to the oil island. Thums Long Beach Co. will use the water in its injection program.

Bixby Park Area Lighting OK'd by City

First steps to form a new street-lighting district, covering the area north and west of Bixby Park, were taken Tuesday by the City Council.

Councilmen adopted a resolution of intention to establish the Third Street Lighting District, and set Feb. 11 for public hearing.

The district will involve the area south of Seventh Street to Appleton Street, from Alamitos Avenue to Junipero Avenue. It will cost an estimated $163,100, of which the city will pay one half.

MAYOR EDWIN WADE

Community Problems Meet OKd

Mayor Edwin W. Wade was authorized Tuesday by the City Council to convene a cross-section of community representatives to determine how Long Beach's resources can best be mobilized to meet urban problems.

The suggestion for such a meeting was made jointly by the Long Beach

Chamber of Commerce and the Long Beach Urban Coalition.

It was endorsed by City Manager John R. Mansell, who reminded councilmen that "the city has long recognized the fundamental need to provide organizational machinery to cope with community problems as they arise within our democratic framework."

Mansell said he has conferred with chamber officials and has agreed that what is needed is "a vehicle or process through which individual leaders and community groups can get together and work toward a solution of critical urban problems."

A joint letter from John L. Barrett, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Norman Self, president pro tem of the Urban Coalition, said that "an all-important objective is to reduce the fragmentation that now exists among community organizations and between those groups and their city government."

"We are in full agreement that it is imperative to mobilize the wisdom and energies of our citizens and their organizations in a way that will broaden perspectives, heighten sensitivities and enhance individual efforts through a coordinated response to the problems and opportunities of our time," the joint letter said.

$10 Million Conversion Plan for Queen Mary OK'd by City

Plans for conversion of the Queen Mary to a floating museum and tour area at an estimated cost of $10 million were approved Tuesday by the Long Beach City Council.

The city manager's office was authorized to advertise for bids on the project, which will be financed from tideland oil revenues.

The plans approved Tuesday do not include the conversion of that portion of the ship proposed for the hotel facilities to be operated by Diners Club.

Work proposed under the current plans will include structural, electrical and mechanical modifications and refurbishment necessary to accommodate a museum of the sea and city-directed public tours.

IT ALSO includes adapting utilities and services systems to receive their support from shore-based facilities on a permanent basis, the rebuilding and replacing of funnels, and the refurbishing of all exterior fittings and surfaces and all interior, city-controlled and common spaces to "a safe and slightly condition for public occupancy."

The specifications make up a book 1 1/4 inches thick, and the stack of plans stands about a foot high and weighs about 20 pounds.

The plans were prepared by the joint-venture firm of Rados-Harcos-Forster, naval architects and marine engineers, of San Pedro.

The proposed contract calls for completion of the work within 12 months, except for limited items which would not restrict public access.

MADRIGAL SINGERS BRING NOEL TO NEWSROOM

The Madrigal Singers of Long Beach City College caroled their way up and down Pine Avenue Christmas Eve, adding a tuneful tone to the last-minute Yule shopping hustle-bustle, performing at Buffums' and banks among other places. They made a special stop at the Independent, Press-Telegram newsroom (above),

PROPOSE LAW Private Club Gambling Crackdown

From Our L. A. Bureau

A new law allowing sheriff's deputies to crack down on private social clubs running illegal gambling games was ordered Tuesday by Los Angeles County supervisors.

The new ordinance, proposed last week by Sheriff Peter J. Pitchess, would give police the power to close down the clubs as public nuisances.

PITCHESS SAID such gambling organizations — fronting as social clubs, veterans clubs and charity clubs — are now operating under state charters and are immune from on-the-spot police inspections.

Supervisors directed County Counsel John Maharg to prepare an anti-gambling amendment, and also try again to add gambling to the list of activities covered by the state's Red Light Abatement Act.

Maharg said he felt state legislation would be "more effective" than a local ordinance in closing down the clubs.

Norwalk Court Building Use to Begin

Long Beach, Calif., Wed., Dec. 25, 1968

By VINI MADER
Staff Writer

Norwalk's long-awaited Southeast District Superior Courts building will go into operation with the first working day of the New Year, bringing a gleaming, modern legal center to some 800,000 population in 22 cities and adjoining unincorporated areas of Los Angeles County.

Though the seven-story structure is planned for an eventual 16 Superior Courts and their many related services, three judges will conduct the proceedings of its first few weeks.

Presiding Judge Vincen S. Dalsimer, of Bellflower, sitting as master-calendar court, will also hear civil cases, along with Judge Edward J. Guirado of Whittier.

Judges Dalsimer and Guirado, who have been previously sitting at the Southeast District at South Gate Civic Center, will start at the new location with largely the same calendar of cases.

However, Judge John L. Donnellan will begin the year as a one-court Criminal Department, a feature that has not previously existed in the Southeast District Superior Courts.

Judge Donnellan, of Whittier, has been sitting in Long Beach Superior Court (South District).

Judge Dalsimer said he expects court business to increase at a rapid rate in the new facility.

"We're anticipating it will be increasing at such a rate we'll have to have an additional judge about each month."

He emphasized the importance of new juvenile services that will be added to the district for the first time.

"We will begin this new service with two referees sitting in Juvenile Court and we will also have several juvenile traffic hearing officers.

"The traffic hearings will be a great boon to parents who must accompany their teen-agers on driving cases," he added.

"This will save the busy parent from having to go to Los Angeles, which sometimes can cost a father or mother a full day."

The new court edifice will include among its facilities a branch office of the L.A. County district attorney and public defender offices, offices for the sheriff's civil division and other county offices.

Atop its roof is a concrete helicopter landing pad. The building, on a seven-acre site next to Norwalk's new city hall, has a street address of 12720 Norwalk Blvd. Its grounds provide parking space for about 370 vehicles.

Total staff of the structure is projected at 143 county personnel, with annual payroll of about $1.35 million.

Norwalk Owners to Get Refund

From Our L.A. Bureau

Property owners along four Norwalk area streets will get refunds totaling $20,805 in unspent assessments for paving and sewerage.

The money will go to taxpayers owning property fronting Eric, Alora, Graystone and Mapes avenues and a part of the Artesia Freeway frontage road, all south of 166th Street.

The refunds and bond credits will run 16 and 15 per cent, respectively.

Astronauts Get 'Safe Journey'

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — The Apollo 8 astronauts and mission control center exchanged greetings as the spaceship swung behind the moon for the first time, losing contact for 36 minutes.

"The custard's in the oven," ground controller Jerry Carri told the astronauts. "Safe journey, guys."

L.B. Police D.C. Party Funds OK'd

Use of city funds to pay for a reception by the Long Beach Mounted Police for all elected California congressmen and key Nixon administration officials was authorized Tuesday by the City Council.

The local mounted unit has been invited to take part in the Inauguration Parade in Washington, D.C., next month, and plans the reception for the evening of Jan. 20.

MEMBERS of the Long Beach Mounted Police are paying their own expenses to Washington, including transportation of 30 horses. Councilman R. E. (Pat) Corbett suggested that the reception, which is expected to attract from 350 to 400 guests, be financed by the city.

"This will be one of the best public relations moves the City of Long Beach could possibly make," agreed Councilman Bert B. Bond.

Vice Mayor Robert F. Crow called the proposal "excellent public relations," and noted the Long Beach Mounted Police would be seen by an estimated 100 million U.S. viewers on Inauguration Day, not to mention millions overseas, as a result of television coverage.

'Fact or Farce' City Election Reform Forum

A community forum, "City Council Election Reforms—Fact or Farce," will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday in Long Beach's Bay Shore Branch library, sponsored by the Petition Campaign Committee of the Community for New Politics. The library is at 195 Bay Shore Ave.

The Petition Committee seeks 16,500 signatures to place on the ballot a charter amendment providing for direct election of city councilmen by district.

Saul Stoltzberg, chairman, said volunteers are needed to circulate petitions noon to 4 p.m. Saturday at Los Altos Shopping Center mall and 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday near the Unimart store on Bellflower Boulevard.

Volunteers may call petition headquarters, 1100 E. Seventh St., 7 to 10 p.m., phone 436-7755.

Hospital Addition Gets OK

From Our L.A. Bureau
County Supervisors voted Tuesday to spend $498,000 for a surgical and central supply addition to Long Beach General Hospital.
The board approved preliminary plans. Now the project goes to architects to draw the final designs, a job that could take up to a year to complete.
The cost estimate, Supervisor Burton Chace explained, breaks down into two parts, site clearing and construction.
Chace said the building job will cost about $447,000. That will include demolition of an employee dormitory.

The construction will create three operating rooms, sub-sterile and scrub areas, a post-anesthesia recovery room, sterilizer rooms and physicians' and nurses service areas. There will also be a penthouse for heating and air-conditioning equipment.

NEW MASTER

Ronald D. Guest will be installed as Master of Los Cerritos Lodge No. 674, F. & A.M., at 8 p.m., Saturday, at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, Ninth and Elm Streets.

Torrance Residents Get Refund

From Our L.A. Bureau
A surplus of $2,529 in funds assessed for recent road improvements along 215th Place in Torrance will go back to the property owners.
County Supervisor Burton Chace said the project involved installation of pavements, curbs, gutters and driveway aprons east of Vera St. The surplus represents money assessed on the basis of an engineer's estimate and not needed for construction and inspections costs. Those who paid cash will get about 8 per cent back. Those who let their share go to bond will receive credits running to about 10 per cent on each bonded dollar.

TRACING PATTERN IS EXACTING JOB

What is lacking in dexterity is more than compensated for in enthusiasm as retarded young adults gain new dignity, and a paycheck.

Their hands are not idle

By JOYCE CHRISTENSEN

Punching a timeclock is a pretty prosaic chore for the average person, but to the 25 employees of Hillside Enterprises, 2951 E. Hathaway, it's an exhilarating experience.

Long the goal of Retarded Childrens Foundation, the sheltered workshop came into being in November, giving young adults with an average IQ of 50 an opportunity to become contributing members of society.

"Absenteeism is practically non-existent," smiles director Rudy Doaks. "Our young people love to come to work. Their reaction to earning is terrific because they're doing something for themselves. It gives them dignity — a normal life with timeclocks and lunch breaks and challenge."

The challenge might be sorting 10 washers into a specially designed holder and then transferring them to a plastic spindle.

IT MIGHT BE laboriously applying glue to address labels—a current contract being fulfilled for National Association of Retarded Children.

"Our employees are good at small assembly, sorting and packaging, heat sealing, electric stapling, even some woodwork," said Mrs. Doaks, "and we're always on the lookout for new contracts—new jobs for them to do. In fact, if we had enough work, we could double our work force, giving twice as many of our area's retarded young adults—young people who will never be able to join life's mainstream—an opportunity for a sense of personal worth."

Industries interested in aiding Hillside Enterprises may contact either the workshop or Retarded Childrens Foundation, 4515 E. Stearns St.

SLOWLY, ADDRESSES ARE AFFIXED

IDLE at the moment, these hands are waiting for a new job, a new challenge.

WILD WAVES SAY

Christmas glitters for local top brass

By IOLA MASTERSON
Society Editor

AND HERE it is — the long-awaited and joyful day to say MERRY CHRISTMAS. May all your gifts be exactly what you wanted and just the right size. Ho, ho, ho! or ha, ha, ha, whichever the case may be.

The night before Christmas Eve (it seems forever since Monday, doesn't it), Long Beach Mounted Police galloped through a highly successful 31st annual Christmas party. It was a cocktails, dinner and dancing affair at Virginia Country Club.

Paul Deats, there with wife, Loraine, went in as president..... and John Downing, present with Audrey, became the veep during the annual switchover of officers. John was chairman of the party which honored not only new officers, but outgoing ones as well, including immediate past-president Jim Bragg and wife, Sue.

Special guests included Bob and Helen Crow and Pat and Mary Corbett.

Also in festive crowd of 142 were Hal and Annabelle Haney. Hal is chairman for Mounted Police's appearance in the inaugural parade in Washington, D.C., on day president-elect Nixon is sworn into office.

Our famous Long Beach group will have 30 riders in the parade!

Frank Finch, who also was at Monday's fun function, is in charge of housing for the Long Beach crowd going to the inaugural — 129 including the 30 riders. Was hesitant to ask if he was in charge of finding housing for the horses, too. If so, at least he won't get any kicks from the palominos. Or might he?

Capt. Ward Thompson, Dr. Wilmer and Connie Starr, Bill and Ruth Cozart, Fred Dean and John and Dorothy Flanagan were others among the crowd wishing each other happiness for the holidays. Many who were expected didn't make it due to the flu.

ANOTHER ANNUAL glitter-plenty holiday party was affair given by Armed Forces Committee of Chamber of Commerce at Virginia Country Club.

"Mr. Navy" Clint Furrer, there with wife,

Arty, was in charge. He has been chairman of the Armed Forces committee for something like a quarter of a century.

C of C president and his wife, John and Susan Barrett, were in the receiving line with the Furrers.

It's most impressive for those attending to be with and talk to top echelon military people stationed in this area. People like such honored guests as Adm. Horace Bird, USN, and wife, Elsa; Gen Art Adams, USMC, and Mrs. Adams; Rear Adm. Norm Gillette, USN; Rear Adm. Jerry King, USN, and Mrs. King; Rear Adm. Charles Tighe, USCG; Gen. Bill Thrash, USMC, El Toro; Rear Adm. Tommy Rudden, USN, and Mrs. Rudden.

Among civilians there to let officers and wives know how greatly we all appreciate what they do were Dr. Orville and Florence Cole, Ted and Cleo Bowman, Harry and Joyce Christensen, Pete and Nancy Drake, Al and Josephine Cornwell, Clive and Jo Graham, Les and Della Lawson, the Dean Quinlans, Harry and Marylu Kruz, Aaron and Mrs. Schultz, the Bob Farnhams and several dozen more.

WISHED EACH OTHER "MERRY" JUST BEFORE THE EVE... at annual Long Beach Mounted Police Christmas party were John and Audrey Downing (left), Loraine and Paul Deats, admiring moulded palomino head made by Margaret (Mrs. Wells) Campbell. Paul assumed presidency of renowned riding group; John became vice president.

AT WIT'S END

From one scrawny tree comes love and hope

By ERMA BOMBECK

This is my Christmas column. It doesn't have anything to do with wise men, chestnuts on an open fire, or kids in Dr. Denton pajamas. It's about a woman and a tree.

The woman was from China who became my neighbor several weeks before a Christmas five years ago. The tree came with her house. It had been given a builder's promise to provide shade within two weeks, but it stood spindly and crooked and swayed everytime a car went by.

We share something, this woman and I. I offered friendship and a box of Christmas cookies (which is usually interpreted as an act of aggression). She returned warmth and bits of a culture which heretofore had been foreign to me.

In typical Yankee enthusiasm I was bent on her conversion to American Suburbia. I would show her how to make pot roast, feed three children for three years on 18 glasses of peanut butter and how to get the chenille marks off your face in less time than it takes for your husband to get from the car to the front door.

It backfired, of course. Within a month I was serving hot pot, making my own egg rolls and eating with chopsticks. We talked a lot... of her home in Formosa after she had fled China, her mother, Eugene O'Neill, John Steinbeck and what Chinese calendar I'd have to live by to take three years off my present age.

One day I saw her at the tree. "Why don't you do the decent thing and give that tree a Christian burial," I said sarcastically. She shrugged her shoulders. "It'll grow."

Later, she was on her hands and knees staking it. A spring came and went and the tree got to be a joke between us. I'd say, "When are you going to rake your leaf? You trying to kill your crab grass?"

"It's improving," she'd yell back. She fertilized it in the fall and planted petunias around it in the spring. I even heard her shout to her son one day in Chinese and I saw him let go of one of the limbs. (I don't know what she said but they always understood her better than my children understood English.)

ONE DAY as we sat in her kitchen I pointed toward the twig and said, "How does it feel to live in the only wooded plot in the plat?"

She smiled. "Didn't you ever hear the line one of your American authors said? 'If I were to die tomorrow, I would plant a tree today.' Haven't you ever heard a tree is like a child? It's a legacy... a hope. It's the part of you that grows after you are gone."

My friend died, but somehow I cannot cry for her. Tears are for someone whose life had no meaning. I think she was sent here to this strange soil to nurture a spindly tree that refuses to die. All I know is everytime I pass that damned, scrawny twig that bends with the winds but hangs onto life I remember her and I am filled with love... awe... and hope.

I think that's what Christmas is all about.

JACOBY Final bid in game pays off

When today's hand was played in the Team Trials we regret to report that only one of the five pairs who held the North-South cards got beyond game.

Three Souths elected to open with four spades. The fourth passed, then jumped to four spades after his partner opened one heart.

In all four cases spades was the final bid.

Bob Hamman and Eddy Kantar picked up a nice Christmas present by reaching the slam with the bidding shown in the box.

We approve heartily of Bob's one-spade opening. He has only 10 high card points but almost solid spades and two first-round controls.

Bob ruffed the opening diamond and played out his ace and king of spades. He discarded a diamond from dummy on the second one and stopped for a reappraisal of the hand when East failed to follow.

HAD SPADES broken 3-2 the hand would have been routine. Bob would have made either six or seven and gone on to the next deal but the necessity of losing a trump trick put Bob under considerable pressure.

He had two lines of play at his disposal. The first would be to play queen of another trump and then to decide between an attempt to discard a club on a heart or two hearts on clubs. This would be a 50 per cent play.

The second line was a trifle better so Bob adopted it. He abandoned trumps because he did not want to have to discard from dummy right away.

Instead he led a club and cashed dummy's ace and king. If the queen had not dropped he would have ruffed a diamond to get back to his hand and still have the play in hearts.

When the queen of clubs ropped, he simply ruffed a diamond back to his hand and played queen and another spade.

Adult games replace boring TV in the home

It's fun and games time in Southern California — and that's not another way of saying sex. Real games for adults are catching on in a big way.

Of course, if you want to get sexy about it, there are a couple of packaged board games just for you. And there are one or two designed for drinkers — if you stop on a certain square you have to chug-a-lug your drink. But most of them are sweetly innocent — just games designed for grownups.

The feeling in the industry is that the demand for these games grew as the quality of television fell. The now-generation is accustomed to finding its fun at home — they grew up with television — but television now bores them. Looking around for something to fill the fun gap, they have discovered games.

A few of the old stand-by games — such as Monopoly — were swiped from the kids and proved entertaining. Scrabble was probably the first purely-for-adults game to score big. Seven or eight years ago, the 3M Company brought out a line of adult games.

WHEN THESE CLICKED, the big toy makers hastily reworked their children's games into adult versions. These began selling, too.

The first company to go into business solely for the manufacture of adult games is Los Angeles' two-year-old CreaTek. This is the child of two bright young men, Larry Baron and Burt Nanus.

Between them, they hold six degrees, in things like engineering and finance and industrial management, from schools like MIT and USC. They're both computer experts — Nanus is an instructor at USC now — and inveterate game players.

As a boy, Baron used to spread all his games out on the living room floor, making one gigantic game. He was the only one who knew the rules, so it wasn't very practical.

Two years ago, they got together and invented a game about the election, using the real names and real issues. It was selling well, until Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was killed. Since his caricature was on the package, they pulled the game off the market.

THE SUCCESS of that one made them decide the adult game market was a good one. They sifted through more than 100 ideas that came to them from people who had played the election game and they tested the ones they liked.

BUT ALREADY THEY are encouraged to the point where, with other partners, they have formed a manufacturing plant. There never has been a game factory in the West — hitherto they've had to use eastern facilities — hitherto they've had to use eastern facilities — and this new plant should be a boon to western game companies.

One of the big problems with adult games is where to market them. They started out being sold in toy departments and stores but that wasn't exactly right. Now they are being retailed in stationery and gift shops and novelty stores.

Reception to attract dignitaries

A former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, is among dignitaries planning to attend Fort MacArthur's annual Civic and Command Reception New Year's Day.

The event will be held at Fort MacArthur's Officers Club; the 72nd U.S. Army Band will entertain.

Hosts for the gala event will be Col. and Mrs. Patrick D. Mulcahy and Col. and Mrs. Basil Spalding, Col.

Mulcahy is post commander; Col. Spalding is 19th Artillery Group commander.

More than 800 guests, including foreign consuls, civic and industrial leaders and senior military commanders from the Los Angeles area have been invited.

Also in attendance will be officers and their wives from Headquarters Fort MacArthur and the 19th Artillery Group.

Whose Preformance is this?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The other day you gave some advice to a man who wanted to watch the birth of his baby but whose wife was opposed to the idea.

You stated that "since it was his wife's body and her performance, it should be her decision."

Listen, if it weren't for his performance, there wouldn't be any baby. So I don't think she has the right to keep him out. K.E.G.: UNITED STATES ARMY.

DEAR ABBY: I am a physician (no name, please) who has delivered nearly a thousand babies and I have my own theory about women who want their husbands in the delivery room when they have their babies.

A woman who truly loves her husband will do everything in her power to spare him unpleasantness. But the vindictive woman, who takes pleasure in punishing her husband, will insist that he is right here when she has her baby.

I know, because when a patient asks my permission to have her husband in the delivery room and I invite the husband to do so, most of them say,

Holiday drink

Hot mulled wine is a cheering holiday recipe. First make a sugar flavored syrup with your favorite spices. Add in a 1-to-3 ratio to a California Burgundy, heated to simmering. And to serve it in style, use the handblown all-purpose wine glass, tempered to withstand heat. Recommended by the wine growers of California, it may be ordered by mail if not locally available. For pictures and prices, send a postcard to Wine Glasses, Box 732, Sausalito, Cal., 94965.

Feet need rest

To keep your feet healthy, elevate them occasionally during the day, or sleep with a pillow under your knees.

Cherish Your Complexion

For the woman who cherishes her complexion, there is nothing more rewarding than a film of moist oil smoothed lightly over the skin. This moist oil of Olay is vital to every type of complexion because it brings beauty as it protects the skin tissues against the drying, wrinkle-making effects of wind and weather. Used as a powder-base, oil of Olay will give your make-up a matt finish and ensure a lovely, line-free complexion in the years ahead.

Use with care

Many paint manufacturers recommend treating concrete surfaces with muriatic acid before applying a coat of paint. Use extreme caution, however, and wear protective hand covering.

A June 1 wedding is planned.

The prospective bridegroom is son of Mrs. Gaylor L. Fisher and Joseph A. Brun, both of Long Beach.

Both young persons are graduates of Wilson High school and attended Long Beach City College. The bridegroom-to-be also attended UCLA and UC Santa Barbara.

Giving gifts at Christmas has long, colorful history

While millions of Americans give flowers by wire, perfume by the bottle and even gems (by gosh!), few among those who give and receive the gifts this Christmas will realize what a long history the custom of gift-giving has.

It was the Three Wise Men who gave the first Christmas gifts in history, although the earliest Christians refused to exchange presents. To them, the custom was heathen — because gift-giving played a prominent role in many pagan festivals.

In time, they accepted the exchange of gifts as an expression of rejoicing — and legends about the bringers of gifts began to grow.

The jolly gent we know as St. Nick, for example, is based on the real-life St. Nicholas, bishop of Myra in Asia Minor (modern Turkey) in the fourth century. Legendary even in his own time for his generosity, and his love of children, he is said to have gone on many a mysterious journey carrying secret gifts to the poor.

ON ONE OF these expeditions, so the story goes, he dropped a bag of gold down a chimney. It fell by accident into a stocking hung up to dry by the fire — and prompted generations of hopeful children to hang up their hosiery, too.

The custom of bestowing gifts on friends and family members was popularized in England by King Henry VII, whose services are used extensively during the Christmas season.

Henry's granddaughter, Queen Elizabeth I, made the most of this custom: She depended on Christmas gifts to replenish her wardrobe, and made it very clear to courtiers that they had better come across handsomely on Christmas Day.

Court records show that the Archbishop of Canterbury gave her $200 every Yule for clothes. Court ladies presented her with the first silk stockings worn in Europe, and even the royal dustman (garbage collector) came through with two bolts of fine linen for the royal lingerie.

Father Christmas, as the English counterpart of Santa is called, rode high for another 40 years after the reign of Good Queen Bess. Then the Puritans took over. They abolished him and his gifts, and indeed all Christmas celebrations, as fit only for heathen.

THE STERN Puritans brought their distrust of Christmas merriment to New England's shores as well; in 1659, the observance of Christmas in Massachusetts became a penal offense!

On the other hand, fun-loving Dutch settlers had already brought "Sinter Klass" to New Amsterdam. Later, a German colony moved to Pennsylvania along with their gift-bringer, Christkindlein — who gave us the name "Kris Kringle."

Other immigrant groups contributed their own legends and customs of Christmas giving. And in 1822, a Presbyterian divinity professor named

Clement C. Moore sat down and combined many of these elements into the well-known poem beginning "Twas the night before Christmas..."

MANY GIFTS are stamped with Christmas seals, yet few Americans have any notion of when or where these originated. They were first used in Copenhagen, Denmark, in 1904 — the brainstorm of a postal clerk named Holboell, who dreamed them up as a benefit for a children's hospital.

The gift-giving customs of many lands form an interesting contrast to our own. Greek children rustle up their own gifts: on Christmas Day they go the rounds collecting raisins, walnuts, figs and sweets.

In Newfoundland, an important Christmas gift is — fish! Local fishermen fish for the church on Christmas Day, donating their catch to the parish.

Some countries enjoy Christmas giving so much that they do it twice: the French exchange gifts on New Year's Day, but the children are visited by Pere Noel on Christmas Eve.

ITALIAN CHILDREN receive their main presents on Jan. 6, but they and their parents draw for little gifts on Christmas Eve from an "Urn of Fate."

And Icelanders must hurry if they want to unwrap their presents Christmas morning. Almost the entire holiday must be spent in church services — for in Iceland there are only four hours of light on Christmas Day!

'New' Mike Battle to Debut in Rose Bowl

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

There is a new Mike Battle, but the current version looks surprisingly similar to the old one.

"I don't fight anymore, anywhere," emphasized Battle Thursday as USC wound up pre-Christmas workouts for its Rose Bowl football game with Ohio State.

Does that mean the combative all-America safety-man for the Trojans has gone soft?

"No, I don't think you should like your opponents before or after a football game," he said. "If you like them, you won't play a good game against them."

But the fighting, on and off the field, has ended, Battle emphasized.

"The pros don't like fighters, and I want to play professional football," said the all-America Trojan safety-man.

But a good, tough football game is something else.

"Take the Notre Dame game," he said of the Trojans' 21-21 tie with the Irish. "I wish that game could have lasted 10 quarters or two weeks. Who cares? It was just great."

"There was never a moment to relax. When you're playing the best, you play at your best."

"Some people wondered how we could be 18-point favorites against some teams and only win by a touchdown. It was because we had a tendency to relax against some of the other teams. But not against Notre Dame."

Battle, who started his collegiate career at Long Beach City College, drew a parallel between the Notre Dame game and the upcoming skirmish with Ohio State.

"It's for the national championship," he said. "They voted us out of the No. 1 position, but who the hell beat us? We'll decide the national championship in the Rose Bowl."

Battle is not taking the Buckeyes lightly.

"I think they will be the equal to Notre Dame as a game situation," he said. "We played some good teams this season but this will be the toughest game we've played."

After playing the first seven games as a defensive halfback, Battle was returned to safety where he had spent his first two seasons as a Trojan.

"I feel more at home, there," he said. "I like to be in the middle of things where I can hit from both sides."

Right in the middle of the action—that's where Battle likes it. But not with his fists, mind you. Not the new Mike Battle.

GIFT FOR A CUB FAN? HOLD ON TO YOUR SEAT

CHICAGO (AP) — For the man or woman who has everything — how about a reserved seat for Christmas? You can get a Wrigley Field reserved seat for only $1.05. The thing is they aren't in the park.

A wrecking company removed the old seats at the home of the Chicago Bears and Chicago Cubs and replaced them with new ones.

"We've had a rush of buyers for the old seats who are giving them as Christmas presents," said Paul Bergling, yard manager of the wrecking firm.

"Many people came in and bought six or eight of them and sent them as far as Florida and California as Christmas gifts."

"Most of the buyers are Bear or Cub fans."

NFL ROOKIE AWARD COMPENSATES FOR OLYMPICS

McCullouch Glad He Chose Football

DETROIT (NEA) — As a kid in Long Beach, Earl McCullouch had one goal in life.

He wanted to compete in the Olympic Games and bag a Gold Medal. Any race inside of 100 yards would do. His specialty: Instant acceleration. Four, five steps and watch him go. A five-second blur, they called him.

As a sprinter at Southern Cal, he set two world indoor records in short-distance hurdles. To break the monotony, he ran the 100 in 9.3; high-jumped 6-5, and long-jumped 23-4. Just for practice, of course.

To keep in shape for track, McCullouch played football at USC and streaked through opposing secondaries for 30 passes and 540 yards in his senior season. The pro scouts liked his speed, naturally; but his hands were good, too, and so was his durability for a mere 175-pounder. The Detroit Lions drafted him quickly.

"I had a difficult decision to make last summer," says McCullouch, who has a wife and three-year-old son. "I had to choose between signing with the Lions for a substantial amount of money, or passing it up for awhile to compete in the Olympics in October. With a family to support, I did the only thing I could do."

Earl McCullouch chose football.

The Lions immediately installed him as their starting split end. In his debut against the Green Bay Packers, he caught five passes for 132 yards, including one for an 80-yard touchdown. After the game, Lion coach Joe Schmidt beamed: "Earl can't miss becoming one of the real superstars in this league."

The rest of the coaches in the National Football League apparently are thinking along the same lines.

They voted McCullouch the 1968 Bert Bell Trophy as the NFL's Rookie of the Year. McCullouch received 39 votes in the 3-2-1 balloting, seven more than runner-up Claude Humphrey, speedy defensive end for the Atlanta Falcons. Bobby Duhan, New York Giant running back, finished a distant third with 18 votes.

McCullouch is the second successive Lion to be named the NFL's Rookie of the Year. Mel Farr won the award last season. McCullouch will receive the Bert Bell Trophy Jan. 16 in a special ceremony in Television City, Calif.

"Sure I thought about being the Rookie of the Year," said McCullouch, "but I didn't think I could beat out guys like Humphrey and Duhan. This sure compensates for not being able to compete in the Olympics. It also makes me feel a lot better about choosing to play pro football in the first place."

McCullouch says he felt some extra pressure this season because people were always referring to him as "another Bob Hayes." He says he'd prefer being known as the "original Earl McCullouch."

"I'll be the first to admit that Hayes is faster," he says, "but I'm right on his tail. He did the 100 in 9.1. I did it in 9.3. But for the 40-yard dash I've been timed in 4.4. I think that's Hayes' best time, too."

McCullouch will spend the off-season in Los Angeles, where he'll take some additional courses at Southern Cal and resume his part-time job as a bit actor at Universal Studios.

'Desire to Be a Champion Makes You Go' -- Deacon

NEW YORK (NEA) — Nobody likes to arouse Deacon Jones, for it could conclude with one's neck being refashioned into a spiral. But life is full of risks.

"Hello, Deacon?" asked the disembodied voice calling from New York. "Hope I didn't wake you. I know it's early morning in Los Angeles."

"Ugh," replied Jones, in somnolent tones. An image was evoked of the 6-5, 250-pound Jones holding the receiver the way he might hold the caller.

"Deacon, you've just been named the George Halas Trophy winner for the second straight year."

"I was!" he exclaimed. "That's the greatest thing that could happen. That's even worth waking up for. I'm happy as hell."

In the annual poll conducted by Newspaper Enterprise Assn., the players of the National Football League again selected the Rams' defensive end as the player they would least like to run into on the playing field, or anywhere else for that matter.

Jones did not receive as many total points this year — 129 compared to 137 last year—but the separation between him and the second best defensive player in the NFL is greater. Dick Butkus, middle linebacker of the Chicago Bears, received a total of 51 points for second place. In 1967, runnerup Tommy Nobis of Atlanta had 130 points.

Third place this year went to Bob Lilly of Dallas, followed by Nobis, Doug Atkins of New Orleans, Carl Eller of Minnesota, Chuck Howley of Dallas and Ray Nitschke of Green Bay.

Jones has caused untold damage to the morale and muscle of rivals since he came into the league eight years ago. What makes him the best at his business?

"There is a thin line," he said, "between a champion and a mediocre player. Eight out of 10 players in the league have superior ability. The difference is in three items: pride, determination and competitive spirit. An individual has to have these qualities to be a champion, in anything, law, medicine, football.

"Some guys just don't care enough to work at it all the time. They just hang on. But I play to the damndest of my ability whether I am sick or hurt or depressed. A couple weeks ago, for instance, I had the flu with a 102 temperature. But I played. My teammates depended on me, and the fans expected me to play."

"The desire to be a champion makes you go when you don't want to go, and you go because you love it."

Sitting in the stands, a spectator sees No. 75, his hands and forearms wrapped in tape, pound through the line and pursue the ball carrier like a angry bear after a hare. Is Jones really that angry?

"I am never angry on the field," he said. "Anger is a weakness. You get yourself up emotionally sure. But angry, no. You can't do a good job when you are angry. You can't think properly. A calm individual is a thinking individual. And you must be thinking or you'll bust the play."

"Oh, you get mad on the field. A guy will hit you from behind. Or maybe in the line you are fighting two or three guys. That burns me, too."

Browns Haven't Lost to Colts Since 1963

As someone once wrote, "Christmas is the season to be jolly." However, he didn't have the misfortune to have the Hong Kong flu like so many of us this Yuletide.

I don't feel very jolly... but with a couple of "ho, ho's" we'll at least try to pick a few post-season games for you.

NFL CHAMPIONSHIP — Baltimore is a six-point choice over Cleveland even though Colts haven't beaten the Browns since 1963. Last time the two teams met in the NFL title game, it also was in Cleveland's "ice box" stadium.

Baltimore pushed Cleveland all over the field in a scoreless first half... and Browns then came on to beat the favored Colts, 27-0, with a tremendous second-half surge.

Baltimore has lost but one game in each of the last two seasons and this year's loss was to the Browns, 30-20, on the Colts' home field. After Earl Morrall had a rough time in the first half as Cleveland took a 14-7 lead, Johnny Unitas was sent in for the first time this season... and this proved to be a disastrous move.

Johnny completed only one of 11 passes while having three intercepted. These "steals" led to two touchdowns and a field goal.

Colts anticipate better performances from their quarterbacks this time around, but Cleveland has the perfect type of team which can beat Baltimore. Browns have balanced attack with strong running by Leroy Kelly and excellent passing game plus outstanding kicking.

Naturally, we will be pulling for the Colts because they are representing our Coastal Division. And although we have a hunch that the odds are all wrong on this one, we are going to call it for Baltimore on a real squeaker.

AFL CHAMPIONSHIP — New York Jets are three-point favorites over the defending champion Oakland Raiders in their showdown at Shea Stadium.

In their only meeting this year, the Jets moved ahead on a field goal with less than a minute to play... leading the NBC network to switch to the children's special, "Heidi." Raiders snapped back with a quick touchdown to regain the lead and nine seconds later scored again after recovering a fumble on the kickoff. Score was 38-27.

This was the year the Jets have been waiting for. It is unlikely Oakland can repeat that wild finish, but we must string along with the underdog Raiders anyway. They have rebounded strong after a slight late-season slump due to an injury to quarterback Daryle Lamonica.

A field goal likely will settle it.
PEACH BOWL — Florida State's smashing 40-20 conquest of powerful Houston in finale makes Seminoles the choice over Louisiana State from the Southeastern Conference. Florida State has one of the outstanding aerial combinations in college ball — quarterback Bill Cappelman and flanker Ron Sellers, rated on "most pro teams" scouting lists as the finest receiver among the collegians.

SUN BOWL — This game pairs two teams — Auburn and Arizona — who believe the shortest distance between the goal lines is through the air. Auburn was only 6-4 this season but such fine wins over Miami, 31-8, and Tennessee, 28-14, recommend victory for the "Tigers." Sun Bowl officials picked a week too soon and got wrong Arizona team. They chose the Wildcats after a 14-7 victory over Wyoming in next to last game. Arizona State then handed Arizona decisive 30-7 whipping.

ASTRO-BLUEBONNET BOWL — Oklahoma lost three of its first games after being mauled by Notre Dame, 45-21, in opener. But Sooners finally recovered to win final five Big Eight starts to clinch title, beating both Kansas and Missouri on successive weekends.

Sooners shouldn't slow up now and could well post the most decisive victory in the post-season games over Southern Methodist.

GATOR BOWL — All season long, there have been rumors that Paul (Bear) Bryant would say farewell to coaching after taking Alabama to a bowl game. And these rumors are stronger than ever as the Crimson Tide prepares to oppose Missouri.

A total of three points cost Alabama a perfect season. In fact, they represent two defeats... to Mississippi, 10-8, and Tennessee, 10-9.

Alabama, with a senior team, is a strong favorite over a young Missouri team which has only six seniors on its roster.

ORANGE BOWL — We like undefeated Penn State over Kansas in what could be one of the two best games on the bowl schedule. Nittany Lions have great balance both offensively and defensively. In fact, their great defensive unit should swing the tide of battle.

SUGAR BOWL — Georgia over Arkansas in close game. Picked to finish no higher than sixth in SEC, Bulldogs won conference title with an unbeaten season. Only two ties marred a perfect slate, a 17-17 deadlock with Tennessee in the opener and the 10-10 draw with Houston in mid-season. Georgia finished season strong with decisive wins over Florida, 51-0; Auburn, 17-3, and Georgia Tech, 47-8.

Arkansas lost only one game and that to Texas. Razorbacks have been under-rated most of season and if there is a major upset, they could be the ones in record it.

COTTON BOWL — After a slow start, Texas has come on to prove itself one of the truly outstanding teams of 1963. And in what should be another great game, we feel the Longhorns will edge Tennessee.

ROSE BOWL — More about this later on.

SMU-Jerry Levias Saga: ALCINDOR SORE —SO ARE FOES

Combined News Service

NEW YORK (UPI)—Everybody likes a nice, warm story around Christmas time and the saga of Jerry Levias at SMU is a nice, warm story.

Levias and the rest of the Mustangs right now are getting ready to meet Oklahoma in the Bluebonnet Bowl Dec. 31. The game is to be played in the Astro dome and the Sooners are 12-1/2 point choices.

They'd be even bigger favorites if not for Levias but that's not the point of the story.

The point is that people are the same the world over and all it really takes to get them all together is some effort and understanding. There's one small catch, though. Both sides have to make that effort and show the necessary understanding.

Jerry Levias was the first black athlete to accept a scholarship in the Southwest Conference. That was four years ago.

He's about to be graduated from SMU now and in that section of the country there are some folks who try to tell you little Jerry Levias is the best college pass receiver to come along since Don Hutson.

That's a little hard to buy despite the fact the 5-foot-10, 175-pound Levias cracked two conference Bowl Dec. 31. The game is to be played in the Astro dome and the Sooners are 12-1/2 point choices.

Facts are facts, though, and it is a fact, if you have any faith at all in the pro scouts, that Levias is a coach to be drafted for professional ball in spite of his size.

"Jerry has unbelievable quickness and speed," says his coach Hayden Fry. "When he receives the football he's got one mission in mind and that's to cross the goal line. In three years with us he broke all the pass receiving records you can think of. Against Ohio State alone he caught 15 passes. That gives you some idea of what kind of competitor he is."

But the story of Jerry Levias at SMU has much more to do with him as an individual than as an outstanding athlete.

College coaches sometimes are like used car salesmen in that they have a tendency to get carried away selling their product. Hayden Fry doesn't fit into that category. He's a better-than-average evaluator and he was right there when Levias came out for football as the first black athlete in the conference. Everything did not go perfectly at the beginning.

"Jerry Levias came to the crossroads in his sophomore year," says Fry. "Some very bad things happened to him with regard to unprofessional conduct by other players. I don't like to think it was because of his color. It may have been. This was something I as a coach had prepared Jerry to expect."

"The true mark of a champion is one who overcomes all these things and Jerry did," Fry adds. "From a coach's standpoint, it is truly one of the most satisfying experiences of my life to have been associated with Jerry Levias."

"SMU fans, the city of Dallas and the Southwest Conference love him, not only as an athlete but as a human being. This young man has matured and grown up to become one of the outstanding citizens ever to play ball for SMU."

Thanks to Levias, the door now is open for other black students in the Southwest Conference and Hayden Fry finishes the story with one personal touch.

"I think Jerry loves SMU and appreciates the opportunity he got here, but I'll say this — he could never appreciate us as much as we appreciate him."

Lew Alcindor's sore foot is proving to be another pain in the neck for UCLA opponents.

Alcindor, nursing a pulled tendon in his left arch, didn't slow down and neither his Bruin teammates as they remained the No. 1 collegiate basketball team in the nation.

The Bruins received all 35 first-place votes from United Press International's board of coaches and all 42 first-place votes from the Associated Press panel of sports writers.

UCLA ran its record to 5-0 during the weekend with easy victories over Minnesota (90-51) and West Virginia (95-56).

The top five team in each poll are exactly the same as North Carolina received most second-place votes followed by Davidson, Kentucky and Villanova in that order.

Three of the top five teams — UCLA, North Carolina and Villanova — play in the Madison Square Garden Holiday Invitational beginning Friday. North Carolina and Villanova, in fact, clash head-on in a first-round game Friday night.

Surprising Santa Clara, boasting a 6-0 record, jumped from 10th to sixth on the UPI poll while the AP poll lists the Broncos in ninth place.

SUPER BOWL GAME SELECTIONS

Hoopie Speaks! USC by Three

By MAJ. AMOS HOOPLE
Football Foremost Forecaster

Every one of the Top Ten — except Notre Dame — will contest a heralded foe in one of the eight classics.

Fittingly, the Rose Bowl, "Granddaddy" of the bowls, possesses the greatest attraction: Ohio State, 9-0, rated No. 1, and Southern California, 9-0-1, ranked No. 2.

Frankly, friends, I was disappointed in the coaches who vote in the United Press International poll. Usually they are more astute than those typewriter wretches. The coaches elevated Ohio State to No. 1 after Notre Dame tied USC, 21-21.

The writers, who select the Associated Press champion, wisely decided it would be immoral to appoint a No. 1 prior to the Buckeye-Trojan donnybrook.

The Men of Troy, coached by John McKay, who throws out more one-liners than Bob Hope, will emerge triumphant, 25-22.

The Buckeyes' vituperative-tongued boss, Woody Hayes, probably will call on all the disciples of Mephistopheles to wreck the Rose Bowl after the shocking defeat.

You see, friends, Woody and defeat are no more compatible than, say, Major Daley and Cassius Clay.

Other tussles of note: Gator Bowl, Dec. 28; Missouri 23, Alabama 21, in a mild upset. Bama should be playing in the Camelia Bowl.

Sun Bowl, Dec. 28 — Auburn 20, Arizona 19, in a surprisingly close tussle. The sunburned lads will bounce back from a 30-0 humiliation in their last struggle.

Peach Bowl, Dec. 30 — Florida State 28, Louisiana State 16, as the Floridians have too many guns. Bluebonnet Bowl, Dec.

31 — Oklahoma 26, Southern Methodist 22, as two of the finest offenses in the land entertain in the Astro dome.

Sugar Bowl, Jan. 1 — Arkansas 33, Georgia 25, in a thriller and an upset. Cotton Bowl, Jan. 1 — Texas 18, Tennessee 15. Remember, you read it here first!

Orange Bowl, Jan. 1 — Penn State 30, Kansas 28. Don't bet, friends, that Penn State isn't No. 2 in the nation — behind USC. A hardy har-rumph until next season.

Irish-Directed North Shrine Game Favorite

MIAMI, Fla. — A North team coached by Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame and loaded with six of his own Fighting Irish, will be a slight favorite over the South in the Shrine's College All-Star football game today.

"It ain't easy," quipped the South coach, tobacco-chewing Frank Howard of Clemson. "To build a team in four days to play Notre Dame."

Parseghian brought quarterback Coley O'Brien, running backs Bob Gladieux and Ron Dushney, split end Jim Seymour tight end Jim Weingard-ner, and center Tim Monty.

Between them, O'Brien, Gladieux and Dushney accounted for 23 touchdowns and nearly 2,000 yards this fall.

O'Brien, an all-purpose back at Notre Dame, carried 64 times for 314 yards and three touchdowns, and added 272 yards and four touchdowns on pass receptions. Gladieux, Notre Dame's leading rusher, rambled for 717 yards and 12 TDs, Dushney for 540 and four.

Anchoring the North's defensive line will be Richard "Mountain" Monroe, 6-foot-7, 290-pound tackle from Villanova, and Tony Pleviak, 6-4, 240-pound tackle from Illinois.

The South squad will counter with some outstanding backfield talent of their own in Eugene (Mercury) Morris and Larry Renty.

Morris is the West Texas State running back who gained 1,571 yards rushing this season.

"The people ain't gonna believe ole Mercury when they first see him take off with the football," grinned Howard after watching the Texas speedster lope through the 44-yard dash in 4.4 seconds.

Next NFL Champion? 'Whoever's Highest'

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ernie Green figures the team that gets higher will take the National Football League title Sunday. "Every player on both sides, will come in high," the Cleveland Browns' running back and co-captain said Monday. "It will be a matter of who's the highest."

Green also had a comment for those who think the Browns' 30-20 victory over Baltimore this year was something that shouldn't have happened but did.

"Baltimore has a great team," he said. "But we want to show those people they're wrong."

The Colts are favored by six points. Baltimore Coach Don Shula, who will bring his Western Conference champions to Municipal Stadium for the title game, said about the Browns' victory.

"They didn't beat us by any fluke."

The Browns have a 5-4 edge over Baltimore in all games played since 1950, including exhibitions. Cleveland has a 3-2 advantage in regular season play with Baltimore holding a 2-1 exhibition lead.

The two clubs met once for the NFL title, in 1964, and Cleveland won that one 27-0.

Browns' quarterback Bill Nelsen said he watched the Baltimore-Minnesota game on television last Sunday and was impressed with the Colts' defense in the 24-14 victory.

"We must run more against them than the Vikings did," Nelsen said. "If we work at things as we have been we can get the job done, particularly if the coaches come up with a game plan as they did for Dallas."

Cleveland won that one last Saturday 31-20 to take the Eastern Conference title.

Nelsen quipped, however, that he wasn't looking forward to being a ball carrier against Baltimore.

"I can say I won't run as much as Joe Kapp did," Nelsen said, referring to the 52 yards gained by the Minnesota quarterback who kept running from Baltimore defenders.

'Year of Change' in Coaching

Associated Press

Vince Carrilot is the new coach at Tulsa. "Bump" Elliott is still coach at Michigan and Ohio State's Woody Hayes is coach of the Year.

Those were the major developments Tuesday on the topsy-turvy college football coaching front and they left six major schools looking for new mentors although one of them—Michigan—doesn't have a vacancy and another—Southern Mississippi —had its filled for a time.

In addition, Frank Carver resigned as athletic director at the University of Pittsburgh and was immediately replaced by Casimir Myslinski, center and captain of the 1943 Army football team. Carver will stay at the school as secretary of the board of trustees.

Tulsa tapped Carrilot, defensive coach at Michigan State, to succeed Glenn Dobbs, who stepped down after a 3-7 season and will confine himself to his duties as athletic director. Carrilot, 41, coached at Michigan State for eight years.

A Michigan spokesman said that Elliott has been offered a newly created post as associated athletic director, but the school must find a new football coach before he can take over.

"Right now, he's our coach," the spokesman said.

Still in the market for coaches are Southern Mississippi—where Roland

Dale accepted the job and then pulled out to stay at the University of Mississippi—Pitt. Navy. Holy Cross and Oklahoma State.

Wake Forest, Kentucky, Baylor and San Jose State have filled their openings. Finally, Hayes, coach of unbeaten and top-ranked Ohio State, was named Coach of the Year by the Football Writers Assn. of America, outdistancing Pepper Rodgers of Kansas and Joe Palermo of Penn State.

WHO SAID TARKANIAN DOESN'T HAVE WORRIES?

49ers Learn 'Can't Take Anyone Lightly'

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

With seven players on the Cal State Long Beach basketball team that averaged over 18 points a game last year, Jerry Tarkanian wouldn't appear to have many coaching worries.

Such, however, is not the case. "Sometimes," Tarkanian says, "it is harder to get kids with great ability to run your offense and defense than it is ones with only average talent."

"The problem is good athletes don't always need to use the offense to get open. Sometimes they can get a shot without working at all. The trouble there is that they still don't get as good a shot as they would out of the offense."

Tarkanian has seen his athletes abandon the offense occasionally in Cal State's first nine games and it alarms him although the 49ers have been winners eight times.

"We have gotten away with it because, with the exception of a couple of games, our schedule hasn't been that tough."

"But, it is going to get tougher. And, we have to learn to stick with our offense now, otherwise when we need it, we won't know how to use it."

For that reason, Tarkanian places great importance on his team's dedication to its offense during games Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the UC Irvine Tournament.

The 49ers' first game is Thursday night at 7 against Occidental, a team Cal State beat, 82-63, a week ago.

That in itself is interesting. The 49ers opened the season by whipping the University of San Diego by 25 points. A week later, they had to beat the same team with two free throws in the last four seconds.

Did the 49ers learn anything?

"We won't know about that until Thursday night," Tarkanian answers. "But I do think they are learning with experience. For example, we all felt we gave up against Tulsa, but the kids learned."

"Last week when we were in trouble against Athletics in Action, we didn't quit. We worked harder. And, we won. That was a good win for us."

Now, I hope they realize that we can't take anyone lightly. They should have learned that in the games with San Diego."

Tarkanian is quick to point out that the 49ers are improving on offense.

"We are doing a much better job now than five games ago, but we still have a long way to go."

"We still fall too many times to get the ball in low to (Sam) Robinson and (Dick) Nelson. When we do that consistently, I really don't think our offense can be defended."

"Our problem is that although we have a lot of good, even great shooters, we don't have any great passers. It is something we are still working on. When we get our passing down, then our offense will be indefensible."

Eight of Cal State's opponents would say the 49er offense already works well enough. But 49er fans should be happy to know that Tarkanian will improve it for the final 18 games.

If he improves it enough, maybe 18 more games won't end the 49er season.

'Starless' Lancers Still Happy

By KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

Fred Engels was probably the only Long Beach high school basketball coach that didn't ask Santa Claus for a 6-9 center this season that can pull down 20 rebounds a game and average as many points.

It's not that Lakewood has such a player, but with seven wins in 10 games the new Lancer coach isn't complaining one bit how things are going.

The school which has experienced but two winning campaigns in the last 11 could quit play right now and still boast that they had won one more game than last year's team.

All this has been done without a player who ranks in the city's top 10 scorers to date.

"Everyone has been a lot more surprised than I have," says Engels who was the school's Bee and Cee coach last year.

"We've been doing a lot of things that I stress and more important getting some confidence."

"People believe that this is a down year for teams in the Moore League, but I can't buy that. It's just that we have a lot of inexperienced teams who are getting better all the time."

Engels believes he has eight or nine players now who are pretty equal. "We like to run and press a lot. You have to have good depth to do that," he adds.

The Lancers resume play Thursday in the Covina Tournament.

Guards Larry Koontz, Mike Rae and Al LaRocque have been supplying good backcourt play. Only Rae, who was late reporting from football, had any varsity experience last year.

Koontz with a 10.7 average in the team's leading scorer. Forward Mike Lessley, in his first season of competition, is right behind with a 10.3 average.

Jordan High forward

Darrell Darrow, the only returning Panther starter from last year, is the city's top scorer with a 17.6 average for eight games.

Basketball Victory
Under Laker Tree?

PHOENIX (Special) — The Lakers, who didn't have a very merry Christmas, basketball-wise, a year ago, will try to make amends today against the lowly Phoenix Suns.

One year ago today the Lakers played another expansion team, San Diego, and lost by two points. It was their only loss to the Rockets before or since.

Phoenix, like San Diego a year ago, is finding wins hard to come by. The Suns have won only 8 of 34 games, the worst record in the NBA.

Today's game will be televised on KABC, channel 7, at 11:30 a.m. It is the first of 18 national telecasts. The Lakers also are on TV Jan. 26 and March 16.

Following today's game the Lakers play in Detroit on Thursday, also on TV, and in Chicago on Saturday.

Vikings Walk Right Path
in Quest of Tourney Titles

By DAVE DANIEL

Christmas vacation tournaments are a dime a dozen. The tournament championships are a little more expensive.

Long Beach City College goes after its third consecutive Santa Monica Invitational Tournament Thursday through Saturday and is coming on like a rich uncle.

The Vikings, under first-year coach Rex Hughes, have returned from Foothill College in Lus Altos Hills with their fourth consecutive North-South Christmas Classic championship.

If titles are hard to come by, the Vikings are walking the correct narrow path in reaching them.

The LBCC season record of 9-1 was enhanced with the three-game sweep at Foothill, which also stretched the Vikings' win streak there to a lucky 13 in a row, dating back to 1964.

While the Vikings dominated play up north, a more balanced tournament is on tap at Santa Monica.

Besides the Vikes and host Corsairs, De Anza, the consolation champion of the Foothill affair, and College of Marin journey down from the north; Palomar from the south, and area schools Harbor, Pierce and Compton will vie.

Last year the Vikings had a close call more than once in the tourney, just beating Pierce in the second round and then waiting for Sammy Washington to sink a 17-foot jumper with 2 seconds remaining to take the title from Santa Monica, 69-67.

Washington battled the flu all last week and still wound up on the all-tourney team at Foothill, buoyed by a career-high of 29 points in the win over Chabot. In the opening game against Canada, he collected nine assists.

The Vikings face De Anza in the 7 p.m. game Thursday preceded by Palomar-Harbor at 3 and Compton-Pierce at 5. SMCC tangles with Marin at 9.

Following is a capsule rundown of each of the tourney teams prepared by Lyle Spencer, athletic publicist for the Corsairs.

HARBOR COLLEGE — Sea Hawks bring 24 mark into tourney. ... edged El Camino, 89-87, in season opener ... SMCC 11-10 ...

DE ANZA COLLEGE — Don't boast a 4-0 record ... consolation title in North-South classic by beating host Foothill ...

LONG BEACH CITY COLLEGE — West-tough Vikings ... on the season ...

COMPTON COLLEGE — Tartars carry 4-4 record into tournament action ...

COLLEGE OF MARIN — Ties have 16 season record ... outstanding player ...

PALOMAR COLLEGE — Corsairs bring 2-6 mark into tourney ...

PIERCE COLLEGE — Brahmas sport 7-4 season slate ... this is their top new ...

IN BRIEF

Sandy Koufax is going to tie the knot.

The 32-year-old former Dodger pitching star said Tuesday he will marry Ann Widmark, 23-year-old daughter of actor Richard Widmark. No date has been set for the wedding.

WHEN THE clock struck midnight Monday, the game ended with the score 7,670 for the skins and 7,642 for the shirts, although no one really cared who won.

The game was basketball and 25 Greendale, Wis., High School seniors laid claim to the longest marathon game on record — 72 hours. The old record was held by Mayfair High School of Belflower, Calif.

THE MINNESOTA Pipers of the American Basketball Assn., announced that coach Jim Harding will take a six-week leave from the "physical and emotional job of coaching."

RON CLARKE, the world's top distance runner, said that a move to stage professional track and field meets as proposed by U.S. promoters is doomed to failure.

"It cannot possibly be a success. To stage such a meet, it would be necessary to hire a cast of more than 100. That would be prohibitive and would bankrupt the promoters," said the Melbourne accountant.

40,000 Fans to Christen Santa Anita Opening Day

Santa Anita Park opens its gates Thursday for the start of its 75-day winter season, with a crowd of 40,000 racegoers expected to witness a swift field compete in the $25,000-added Palos Verdes Handicap at six furlongs. First post is 12:30 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert W. Martin's Rising Market, narrowly beaten in Hollywood Park's opening Premiere 'Cap last April and a winner of three important California stakes in 1965, carries high weight of 124 pounds in the Palos Verdes, Santa Anita's traditional curtain-raising stakes. Laffit Pincay rides Rising Market, who won the $75,000 San Antonio Stakes here last season.

Expected to battle Rising Market right down to the wire are G. E. Robb's Tumiga, an eastern flash with Walter Blum aboard, and F. M. McMahon's Baffle, co-holder of the Santa Anita six-furlong record of 1:08 2-5, which he set Feb. 21. Bill Hartack rides Baffle.

Tumiga was clocked in 1:20 2-5 in winning the seven-furlong Arlington Handicap at Arlington Park last summer for a new track record. He went the first six furlongs in 1:09 4-5 in that dash. In 1967, Tumiga won the important Carter Handicap, one of the nation's major sprints.

Baffle, trained by ex-jockey John Longden, has won four stakes in California in 1968, including the Contra Costa Handicap at Golden Gate, the La Jolla Mile at Del Mar, the San Francisco Handicap in the Tanforan meeting and the Redwood City Handicap at Bay Meadows.

Others in the eight-horse Palos Verdes field are Praise Jay, Right or Wrong, Vale of Tears, Chagrin and Father Dino. If all eight enter the starting gate the purse will gross $29,150 with the winner earning $17,900. Vale of Tears drew the rail position, while Rising Market is on the outside.

Majestic Prince, purchased for a then record $250,000 as a yearling by owner Frank McMahon, will make the second start of his closely watched career Thursday at Santa Anita in the fifth race.

The contest is a six-furlong dash written "for two-year-olds which have never won a race other than maiden or claiming."

Majestic Prince, a splendidly constructed son of Raise A Native, was an easy winner if his only outing in 1:09 1-5 recently at Bay Meadows. Bill Hartack again has the call from trainer Longden on the handsome chestnut colt.

Santa Anita's gala winter meeting includes 45 stakes and total purses of almost $6,000,000. Five traditional $100,000 classic races will highlight the program. Initial Saturday stakes attraction of Dec. 28 is the $50,000 California Breeders' Champion Stakes, featuring Fleet Allied and Fleet Kirsch.

DONNELL CULPEPPER

What to Do About Yule Rods, Guns

So you bought Junior a fishing outfit or a gun for Christmas and today he wants to go fishing or hunting, and you don't know what to do about it. This happens every year. Often some mother, overly fond of her boy, accedes to his wishes and gets the present he has been wanting for several years.

First, let's take the fishing outfit. Take the word of this humble writer, who has drawn many blanks on fishing trips through the years, even this year, and the advice of some of the oldtimers who have been through similar situations.

Please, please, don't rush to the nearest pier or rocky entrance channel and expect to catch fish on that very first cast. It is highly important that the child, boy or girl, be taught that fishing and hunting require patience that would put old Job himself into a tizzy.

Yet, that first fishing trip can be an utter flop and the boy or girl will put the rod and reel in the garage and forget it because, as he thinks at that time, there are other things that afford more fun.

If you, yourself, don't know the principles of fishing, seek the advice of friends who do. Better yet, go with him (or her) and have that friend who knows fishing go along. If it's a salt-water outfit and the weather is right, try Belmont Pier or the barge Islander where bonito are still hitting well.

IF IT'S A FRESH-WATER OUTFIT, and the youngster wants to keep it for just that, wait a few days. Irvine Lake will be open in mid-January and Russ Clearly, the lake's operator, has stocked it heavily with rainbow trout. It will be the best bet for January fishing.

Cachuma Lake, in Santa Barbara County, also is being stocked weekly throughout the winter and spring period, and it will afford good fishing. Winter fishing in Southern California isn't very good on streams and in other lakes until the Department of Fish and Game gets busy and starts heavier plants of catchable-size trout.

Don't do the fishing for Junior while he eats and throws rocks in the water. Try to teach him the principles of proper fishing, along with good sportsmanship. Assure him that there will be days when the creel will be empty no matter how hard he tries.

If he's going to bait-fish and has never done it before, show him how to bait a hook, how to cast, how to set the hook when a fish hits and how to bring that fish to the boat or to shore and then, finally, how to take it off the hook and put it on a stringer.

If it isn't large enough, teach him conservation by gently putting it back in the water. But he will want to keep that first fish, no matter what size, and no game warden is going to bother him.

IF YOU BOUGHT JUNIOR A GUN, that has to come under far different rules. Let's hope that, first of all, you put Junior through the DFG's Hunter Safety Program so that he knows how to handle a gun. If he doesn't know the first principles of gun safety, he should not have been given the gun in the first place.

Now as for a place to shoot. This goes even for an air rifle. There is no place in any city that I can recall where even air rifles may be fired legally. Air rifles these days are high-powered weapons and can do damage to property and possible harm to humans.

If the gun is a .22-rifle, there is NO place in Los Angeles County where it can be fired except at gun ranges and those are few and far between. One must remember that a .22 bullet travels for at least a mile and it's a killer if it hits a vital spot in an animal or a human.

If it's a shotgun and the youngster has had proper training, remember that the cottontail rabbit, waterfowl, quail and chukar are legal prey in certain sectors through Jan. 12. After that, about all one can hunt is jackrabbits, legal the year 'round, and certain predators.

One of the first things that a youngster should read is the California Hunting Regulations, which gives definite information about seasons, limits, etc., but only a forest ranger can give you information on the open and closed areas.

PENNY ANN AT ANITA--NOT AS JOCKEY

Penny Ann Early, who aspires to be a jockey on major thoroughbred race tracks, has been duly licensed at Santa Anita by the California Horse Racing Board—not as a jockey, but as an exercise girl for the morning workouts—it was reported Tuesday.

She has performed these duties before for trainer Willard Proctor, who has a stable of horses at Santa Anita this winter. There are a number of other exercise girls already active at Santa Anita this season.

Penny Ann is now in the east for the Christmas holidays, but plans to return soon. The racing season begins Thursday.

Perfecta Returns $51,944

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (UPI)—Angel Cordero and Alvaro Pineda clashed headon for the first time at Tropical Park Tuesday in their battle for the 1968 jockey championship, but the confrontation was overshadowed by a $51,944.40 Perfecta.

Christmas came a few hours early for an unidentified Miami cab driver who named Vegas Frontier Gal and Hindu Princess to finish one-two in that order in the fifth race and then accurately predicted Chante Princess and Mademore would be first and second in the seventh race.

He was the only one among the 7,823 in attendance to do so and walked off with the entire pool.

MONEY was not the objective of Cordero and Pineda. They were after winners since they now are "riding for Uncle Sam" in the closing days of the year.

Both now are in the higher income brackets since Cordero's mounts have won about $2.5 million and Pineda's have won more than $1.7 million.

Cordero managed to get one winner in six mounts to bring his total winners for the year to 337. He scored with My Son Michael in the sixth race at $5.80.

Pineda's total remained at 326. He was out of the money with each of his nine mounts. The Mexican-born rider will ride again at Tropical Park Wednesday and then return to California for the opening of Santa Anita Thursday.

DEACON...

But you have to show mental discipline. I wait till the right opportunity, then boom, I am popping.

"If you decide to go over by yourself to bust someone, you are playing right into the enemy's hands. So you wait. Maybe you won't get him this game maybe not next either. But sooner or later. If a guy has done me wrong, I wait on the right opportunity, then boom, I even the score."

Jones has evened so many scores that he possesses the overwhelming respect of the opposition. That respect was emphasized in the George Halas Trophy balloting, again. He will receive his trophy at Television City, Jan. 16, at a ceremony to be taped by CBS and shown nationally at halftime of the Pro Bowl game Jan. 19.

Some Thoughts on Space Flight

By GEORGE ERES
TV-Radio Editor

There are very few "new" stories around — nearly everything that happens is a variation of something that has happened before.

There are a couple of exceptions to this and they have come in the scientific field — the latest being the circumlunar flight of Apollo 8.

The television networks have been covering the Apollo 8, breaking into regular programs for reports, and except for some rabid football fans who didn't want their game-viewing interrupted, there have been no particular protests against preemptions to cover the flight.

JUST BY coincidence I happened to take out of the library a book by Nifel Balchin, titled "Kings of Infinite Space," a novelized version of space programs in the future. I'm not very far in the book, but it does make some interesting observations of people-reaction to space flights.

The question is how to keep the people of the United States interested in the program, and the validity of attempts to keep this interest alive.

One of Balchin's characters notes that there is little difficulty in keeping people interested in astro-nauts. We are interested in heroes of all sorts — sports, music, political, scientific. But the interest in the work itself is secondary. The number of people who can tell you the names of the men who make the space flights possible through their scientific and mechanical brainwork is very small compared with those who can name the astronauts.

JUST WHAT will come of space flights is not known. The space program runs into billions of dollars and there is a lot of prosperity created as a result of this spending.

Those who are not neces-sarily against space explora-tion, but wonder about its value in terms of cost of the justifiable national pride which is attained as a result of these success-es, have to reckon with all exploration into the un-known of the past. The usual comment is made that suppose Columbus didn't make his voyage? Where would we be then, huh?

I HAVE two Christmas wishes. The first is for the successful completion of the Apollo 8 flight and the safe return of the as-tronauts to earth.

My second wish — de-spite all the possible ben-efits of a space program — is that the money that would be expended for it in the future be put into a crash program of eliminat-ing the causes of friction here on earth.

CH. 5, KTLA, has an-nounced that henceforth it will reject advertising for motion pictures which carry the Motion Picture As-sociation of America's X rating. The X rating for a film bars persons under 16 from theater admission. The category includes all films rated X because of treatment of sex, violence, crime or profanity.

MASKS TOO

Chinese Hats Worn in Battle With Flu

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Tellers at the Columbus Bank and Trust Co. have taken to wearing Chinese hats as part of precautionary measures against the spread of Hong Kong flu.

The tellers also donned surgical masks Monday in efforts to ward off the bug.

One lady ran screaming from the bank, thinking she had walked into a robbery, before officials put up signs at the doors to explain what was going on.

The hats were added to the costumes so police could separate employees from anyone attempting a masked holdup.

EARL WILSON

Christmas Years Ago: Was It Really Better?

NEW YORK — Was Christmas really better years ago — or is it only in our memories that it was better?

It was a time of surprises.

A great effort was made to keep the precious, most important gift a secret from the ones you loved. To overwhelm them with surprise.

Perhaps that is indelible in our memories because we were children with little else to think about.

It was a great struggle in our family on the farm in Ohio between my mother and father to find out what the other was buying them for Christmas. And since we children were usually in on the secret, we were subjected to inducements — "bribes" — to tattle the secret.

I can remember my father attempting to bribe me to tell him what mother had bought him for Christmas.

I MUST have been 6 or 7 and the thing I wanted most in life was a B-B gun (with which to shoot the hired hand in the derriere, as it later turned out).

My father knew this weakness and he undertook to buy me in the most villainous way possible. If I told him what mother had bought him for Christmas, he would speak to Santa Claus, with whom he claimed to have great influence, and see that I was certain to get a B-B gun in my stocking.

Shame crimsoned these cheeks now a half century later as I admit I allowed myself to be corrupted by my father.

I find it hard to believe that I whispered the secret words, the answer to the greatest mystery of that particularly year of life: "Mama bought you a fur cap."

A fur cap! A beautiful thing, rich and black in luxuriance, with ear tabs of course, and a chin strap, a wondrous article for him to hold his head up in, as he drove his sleigh along the country roads.

But what a blow to my mother that her son had turned squealer and sold her out for a B-B gun which he was going to get anyway!

Ah, well, my mother understood, for Christmas meant so much to all of us then.

AND IT WAS all straightened out when we went to Grandma Wilson's house for Christmas day — but not until we were punished a little for our squealing.

Grandpa Wilson's had the baseburner glowing and dishpans full of beautiful white popcorn and a gramophone ("His Master's Voice").

But there was a bad moment when Grandpa brought out the valise of presents for the children, my sisters and me.

"Oh, Molly!" Grandpa exclaimed bitterly to Grandma, "where's the key to this valise? You lost the key."

The key to Grandpa's bag of toys was lost!

We would not get our presents after all!

Grandpa Wilson kept us under suspense for 10 or 15 minutes, while we bravely tried to keep from crying, before he clapped his hands and broke out laughing, and admitted that he hadn't lost the keys at all... he was only teasing us... as he opened the valise which was so rich with all the gifts we had wanted and asked for.

All these years later, it seems that it was better then.

But then, come to think of it, doesn't everything seem to have been better then?

To be able to recapture the aching suspense of what we were going to find under the tree or in the stocking... that would be a nice Christmas present for all of us... and one we can never have.

As a guide to moviegoers, this newspaper on Wednesdays and Saturdays lists capsule contents of major motion pictures playing the Long Beach area. Most classifications represent the judgment of the Film Board of National Organizations.
